Beginning Teachers To Insist on $6,900 As Initial Contract

Teachers-to-be are alerting Minnesota school boards that beginning school teachers in the state next fall will insist that their initial contracts call for at least a $6,900 annual salary.

A letter from SMEA president Sandra Nelson to Glen Engebretson of Slayton, president of the Minnesota School Boards association (MSBA), spells out three aspects of the initial contract resolution adopted by the Student Minnesota Education association (SMEA):

1. That the initial contract for a first-year teacher with a bachelor's degree be adopted for the 1969-70 school year at 15 per cent above the median (half above and half below) for the 1968-69 first year salaries in the Minnesota schools.

(With $6,000 as the median beginning salary for the 1968-69 school year, this means that the 6,000-member SMEA—independent college student arm of the more-than-40,000 member Minnesota Education association—is urging all education degree candidates not to accept teaching positions in Minnesota for beginning annual salaries of less than $6,900.)

2. That written personnel policies of the school district be made available to the teacher before the contract.

3. That the specific academic and non-academic assignments be stated on the contract offered to the teacher.

Miss Nelson, Braham, is a science and mathematics senior at Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter. SMEA has 32 college chapters.

Our goal—as it always has been—is to provide our youngsters with the best possible education," Miss Nelson writes "one way of insuring quality teachers—one of the essential ingredients in a program of quality education—is to assure teaching candidates salaries that make it reasonable for them to invest their lives in this profession."

Miss Nelson cites statistics to support the student position, include the following:

From the so-called Domian Report — a statewide study of Minnesota education: only 78 per cent of persons graduating from college with teaching certificates ever go into teaching. Of the 1964-65 graduates of Minnesota institutions preparing teachers, only 64.9 per cent of the graduates from elementary education stayed in the state and only 49.3 per cent of graduates from secondary education stayed.

From the 1969 Endicott report (annual survey by Northwestern university): average annual starting salaries of bachelor-degree graduates in other fields include engineering, $9,816; science, $9,360; chemistry, $9,048; mathematics, $8,892; accounting, $8,844; economics, $8,304; marketing, $8,028; general business, $8,016.

"Finally," Miss Nelson concludes her contentions, "the U. S. bureau of labor statistics just a year ago reported that the amount of money at typical city worker's family needs, to achieve a 'moderate' standard of living is more than $9,000 annually. And to equal the 1939 purchasing power of $5,000 a married man with two children must have earned $14,282 — before taxes—in 1968."

Copies of Miss Nelson's letter are being distributed to school superintendents and chairmen of boards of education throughout the state.

only economic factors are negotiable items. Several changes in board policy, which had been requested by the teachers' council, were considered and will likely be reviewed with that council tonight.

Average starting monthly salaries of various professions requiring a bachelor's degree were reviewed by the board with the following comparisons noted: Engineering, $764; accounting, $681; business administration, $622; production management, $673; and teachers, $667.

It was noted that teachers' salaries showed a gain of 13.2 per cent in 1968 over the 1967 starting salary of $589. Accounting and production management, comparable salary range, showed 5.1 and 6.4 increases respectively. The school board release quoted the figures as obtained from "Trends in Employment of 1968 College and University Graduates in Business and Industry", the 22nd annual report by Frank S. Endicott of Northwestern university.

Minimum Wage For Farm Work Rises to $1.30

Farmers are reminded that the minimum wage in covered farm employment advances from $1.15 to $1.30 an hour on Feb. 1, 1969.

Gerald J. Mitchell, regional director of the United States labor department's wage and hour and public contracts division, pointed out that principally covered are large-scale farming operations involving use of more than 500-man days of agricultural labor in any calendar quarter of the preceding calendar year. Overtime pay is not required but the minimum wage applies regardless of whether pay is by the hour, or on a salary or piece-work basis.

"Man day" means any day during which an employee performs agricultural labor for not less than one hour. Some local casual hand harvest laborers paid piece rates are excluded when counting "man days" and are exempt from the minimum wage provisions of the law.

Farmers are also reminded that they may not employ children under 16—whether migrant or local—in farm work during school hours for the district where the children live while so employed.

Mitchell emphasized neither may any child under 16 be employed in agriculture in an occupation found by the secretary of labor to be hazardous, except where the child is employed by a parent on a farm owned or operated by the parent.

Official posters, which must be displayed, have been mailed to all covered farm employers by the divisions. Additional posters and information also may be obtained from the nearest wage and hour and public contracts divisions' regional office, located at 219 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill. 60604.

67,000 in State Receive USDA Food Assistance

Nearly 67,000 low-income persons in Minnesota received food assistance from the U.S. department of agriculture during November, according to Dennis M. Doyle, midwest district director of consumer food programs.

The total included 13,405 in 24 commodity distribution program projects and 53,542 in 45 food stamp program areas. Cook county transferred into the food stamp program during the month.

In 11 midwest states, about 1,108,000 persons received USDA food assistance. Around 432,000 were in 393 commodity programs and 676,000 in 391 food stamp projects.

The Commodity Program provides some 22 USDA donated foods to supplement the diets of needy people. The foods are shipped to the Minnesota department of public assistance which, in turn, handles the storage and transportation to local distribution centers and public assistance agencies.

The food stamp program enables low-income families to buy more food by exchanging the amount of money they normally spend on food for coupons worth more than they paid. The food coupons are spent like cash at authorized retail food outlets for any domestic foods. Minnesota recipients bought around $793,000 in coupons during November and were given over $336,000 in bonus coupons. The average bonus per person was $6.28.

The Library Corner

by Flora Allison

If you've seen the other issues of "Great Museums of the World," you'll know what to expect in the line of excellence when you take another of these series, National Gallery, Washington, and Prado Madrid. Unlike so many of the art books, which are references, these may be checked out and shared by the entire family. The photography is so realistic that you can almost feel the touch of the canvas under your fingers.

Legendary in western annals are a man and his horse, a vanishing legend if the experts were to be believed just a few short years ago. Proof that the horse has by no means passed into obscurity is found in the growing popularity of riding. In "My Horses, My Teachers," Alois Podhajsky demonstrates his equestrian skills as he shows how he trains horses for shows in both Europe and Canada. Some of the most beautiful horseflesh you'll every hope to see prances across the pages of this book.

"A man's way witr a hors is the structure of the volume, of training and showmanship. Although he has made appearances in the finest cities of two continents, the author is down-to-earth and offers his know-how in simple language of the layman. He tells of his beginnings in the hobby, from his embarrassment over the "poor little sausage" he acquired in Vienna, to his triumphs as he showed some of the most dazzling of horsedom's elite.

With his natural affinity for the animals, he consistently put on shows in which the happiness of his horses was most pronounced. Here is a fresh new look at the resurgent favorite of man, the horse.

A short time ago we told you about the book, "The Kennedy Wit". As a follow-up, we can now offer you the somewhat more zesty "The Johnson Wit" by the same author. Read how a quick mind, and a sharp one, makes with a ready retort that can be sharp and caustic, or simply pleasant. Frances Leighton is the author.

"Most of Us Are Mainly Mothers" combines the practical side of child-rearing with the humorous episodes that punctuate every hour of a mother's day. A quotation from the top-flight typewriter of author Carol Bartholomew should automatically send you scurrying to the library to get it. To wit: "Punishing the messer for squirting the shaving cream is useless. His memory span is very short, and being punished for the shaving cream will not be linked in his mind with the toothpaste or spray deordorant. Those are the next things he plans to investigate."

Prod Dad into reading this one. Perhaps it will soothe a ruffled feather when he comes home to a late dinner or a warmed-over version of that day's breakfast! Convince him that even in the best-managed of domestic establishments the results don't always mean that the effort was halfhearted!

Books for Teenagers

We ran across a couple of books in the junior non-fiction section that we think will make the scene with you as well as with your younger brother or sister. In this age of rhythm, the "First Book of Rhythms" by Langston Hughes explains the lure of the beat. This gets down to the basics, and explains a lot of things.

Another "First" book is C. Harrison's "The First Book of Hiking." If you haven't been a scout, you may have done very little in the way of using your feet in place of wheels. It's got a thing going for it, this hiking. Why not find out about it? The book takes you from that first idea and makes a veteran of you. Why not integrate it with the jogging that so many of you are taking up?

For social studies, there's a most helpful book by Abe Fortas (if you study social, you know that name!). His idea concerning America's alternatives to violence, in which he covers the right of citizens to protest what they do not agree with, are within the limits of the law. These limits of law are clearly defined in this book, which is written in as non-legal language as is possible to use and still get the legal points across.

He speaks out concerning the draft card burners, blocking access to public buildings or thoroughfares, picketing peacefully vs. destructively, protection of mass marchers, when and under what conditions such marches can be legally carried out, and other salient points. It answered a lot of questions for us, and we feel that it will certainly give you sensible guidelines as well.

Books for Children

Minnesotans have sometimes claimed Paul Bunyan as their own, but this book tells how he belongs to all America; the Main woods claim him, and all of the country west of the Pacific. He wasted most of America's timber, thinking it could never run out, and this was a great disservice to the notion. But you'll like his famous blue ox, and you'll laugh at the members of Paul's crew, like Shot Gunderson who could spin a log so fast the bark would come off in a solid piece and he would walk to shore on the bubbles! There were Dumb Cookie, Brimstone Bill, the Bull Whackers, and others equally as colorful. And you ought to see the pictures. . .

Pre-schoolers and others who are very young will like the word-rhythms in "The Clock," an Easy book by Georgiou, a former teacher of young children and now in children's literature at NYU. There is almost more picture than story . . . all the whimsical illustrations are by Bernard Lipscomb.

Also look for "The Blueberry Pie Elf" by a writer you all know, June Thayer. Like her other books, this one is a confection. When the blueberry pie turns up missing at YOUR house perhaps you can blame it on a little elf named Elmer, like the family in this story did. And their elf even wrote a thank you on the tablecloth by wading in the pie and getting his feet full of berry juice. On second though thought, maybe you can do without that kind of interior decorator!

Former Sergeant Will Speak on Viet Situation

Alan Davidson, former sergeant in the legendary "Green Berets" and who served with the U.S. special forces in Vietnam, will speak on "Victory Depends on You!" at the University of Minnesota technical institute in Crookston on Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Kiehle auditorium. His speech is sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota TRAIN (To Restore American Independence Now) committee.

After working with the Vietnamese people, living with them, aiding them and fighting by their sides, Davidson came to understand the incredible obstacles confronting South Vietnam and the American soldiers who went there to help them, the TRAIN committee says.

Davidson states, "In Vietnam we found that mission requests were denied, supplies many times did not get through, we were given isolated assignments that took up time and neutralized our overall mission. Someone didn't want us to function at full capacity. By no means were we allowed to fight to win. It was made clear that we were to maintain strictly a defensive posture."

Tickets to hear Sgt. Davidson, who is traveling and speaking for a total victory in Vietnam, may be purchased by calling 281-2432 in Crookston, 857-7314 in Climax, 773-1461 in East Forks, or 637-3005 in Mentor, or by writing to Mrs. Edwin Beiswenger, route 2, Crookston, Minn. 56716. Adult advance tickets are one dollar ($1.50 at the door) and 75 cents for students.

Peace Officers Ass'n. Sponsors Essay Contest

Sgt Richard Feider of the St. Paul police department and president of the Minnesota Police and Peace officers association has announced that the statewide association will again sponsor an essay contest for high school students in Minnesota on the subject, "The Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency".

This contest has been conducted annually as part of the association's juvenile program for the past 22 years. In 1968 over 6,000 essays were submitted.

"It is our belief," said President Feider, "that participation in this contest provides the student with an opportunity to examine the tragedy of delinquency and helps him to avoid situations which may tend to breaking the law."

"To keep the rate of juvenile delinquency in Minnesota at the lowest possible level", Feider continued, "it is also necessary that we have coordinated effort on the part of our entire adult population."

A total of $650 in cash will be awarded to students writing the best essays. The first place winner will receive $300. Janet Huston, Brainerd high school student, was declared the winner in 1968.

A complete outline of the rules of the contest has been mailed to all high schools in the state. Essays must be not more than 1,500 words and submitted for judging not later than March 1, 1969. Winners will be announced on May 15.

For further information on the contest, students are requested to contact the Executive Secretary, Minnesota Police & Peace Officers Association, 3000 France Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55416.

Resolutions Are Approved by Safety Council

Ten major safety resolutions have been approve by the board of directors of the Minnesota safety council for recommendation to the 1969 session of the Minnesota state legislature, J. D White, president of the state safety organization, announced today.

Alcohol and highway safety has been given high priority in safety council interest, and the safety council officers have been given the responsibility to personally consider and evaluate this legislation.

Other signigicant traffic safety resolutions recommend an increase in the maximum fine for misdemeanors from $100 to $300, annual inspection of motor vehicles, improvement in traffic courts to full-time courts which are part of the state judicial system and the requirement for all drivers to take a vision test and a written test on rules of the road at the time of license renewal.

The safety council also recommends that a law enforcement officer may issue a traffic citation if he has reasonalbe and probable ground to believe that a driver has committed a violation even if he did not see the accident. Personal investigation of the accident would be required to establish the grounds for the citation.

Driver education is also backed by the safety group as a basic part of Minnesota's education program.

Occupational safety legislation developed by the governor's advisory committee for industrial safety was also strongly backed by the board of the state safety organization.

Development of water safety equipment and an adequate water safety boat operation program is recommended to meet the growing problem of safe use of our waters for different kinds of recreational activity. Legislation on outdoor safety is being developed by the department of conservation with the assistance of the state safety council.

The Minnesota safety council is also recommending an amendment to the statutes governing county and municipal safety council appropriation limits by local authorities which have not been revised since 1919.

Cancer Society To Hold Annual Poster Contest

Minnesota's third annual poster contest on smoking and health is being launched statewide this month.

Sponsored by the Minnesota division of the American Cancer society, the contest was staged first in 1967 with 1,000 entries and was continued the next year with 2,000 posters submitted by students.

Wayne J. Kortesmaki, executive secretary of the Minnesota Future Farmers of America and 1969 contest chairman, expressed appreciation for the cooperation of schools in the effort to persuade young people not to smoke.

"We are pleased with the manner in which school administrators and teachers have adopted the poster contest idea as a means of educating students that smoking is harmful to health and that it does not contribute to a sense of maturity or well being as some would like to have us believe," Kortesmaki said.

The contest plan, Kortesmaki said, has the approval of the Minnesota association of secondary school principals for the 1968-69 school year.

Posters entered must be composed of an appropriate illustration together with a caption on the health hazards of smoking, placed on 8½x11-inch heavy paper or cardboard. The judges also will consider anti-cigarette slogans. Entries will be accepted from boys or girls who have not reached their 19th birthdays by May 1, 1969. Deadline is midnight April 1. Copies of the contest rules are available from and cancer society county unit education chairmen.

Fifteen semi-finalists will be selected in each of four regions. From this group of 60, eight state finalists will be chosen. The finalists will go to the Twin Cities from the ceremony announcing winners, conferring of awards and other honors.

Entries should be addressed to: 1969 Anti-Smoking Poster Contest, American Scancer Society, Minnesota Division, Inc., 3702 East Lake St., Minneapolis 55406.

Langen Bill To Stop Pay Hike Is Introduced

Congressman Odin Langen has introduced two house resolutions aimed at stopping former President Johnson's proposed pay increases for members of congress and other high-ranking government officials.

"These pay increases should be postponed until such time as we have brought the budget into balance and have stopped inflation," Langen said. "It simply isn't in the best interest of the nation that congress should encourage pay hikes at this particular time. To sanction such proposals would further aggravate both the budget and our over-all fiscal position."

Langen explained that the pay increases will be automatic if Congress does not act, since the present federal salary act gives the President the authority to institute such pay hikes without the prior approval of congress. The pay increases were proposed in former President Johnson's budget message before he left office. "My first resolution is aimed at rescinding the proposal and the second resolution is aimed at getting the bill on the house floor within the 30 days congress has in which to act."

Local Soldier Takes Part In Army Exercise

United States Army Specialist fourth class Gary C. Vennes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis V. Miller, Thief River Falls is in Germany as a clerk with the 24th Infantry division taking part in the military excercise Reforger I.

The exercise to be conducted in Europe in January and February, involves U. S. Army units based in the U.S. and Europe. It will include 12,000 Army troops assigned to the 24th Infantry Division, based at Ft. Riley, Kan., and the combat services support units from across the country. These units were flown to Europe to January.

Reforger I will evaluate and further develop techniques for deployment if U.S. NATO forces to Europe, and is the first in a projected series of annual exercises for these units and for other units based in Germany.

The exercise is designed to maintain proficiency in operating procedures and to deal with special requirements pertaining to the European theatre. Emphasis will be on orderly disposition of forces rather than speed of deployment.

Army units sent overseas for the exercise will receive their prepositioned equipment, move to Grafenwohr, test the equipment, conduct airmobile demonstrations, participate in a two-sided field training exercise in the vicinity of Grafenwohr-Hohenfels, process their equipment for return to prepositioned storage, and return to the United States.

State Jobs Up 2.9 Per Cent in December Total

Minnesota nonfarm wage and salary employment in December reached 1,259,700, an increase of 2.9 per cent (35,700) over December, 1967, although jobs dropped 2,400 from November according to George J. Vavoulis, employment security commissioner.

At the same time unemployment declined slightly from 47,700 in November to 47,500 in December, a noticeable drop from the 53,900 level of a year ago. Although the unemployment rate remained unchanged at 3.0 per cent during December it was lower than the 3.4 per cent of December, 1967.

The seasonably adjusted unemployment rate was 2.8 per cent for Minnesota, compared to 3.3 per cent for the nation.

Compared to December, 1967 manufacturing employment increased by 7,000 workers, with electrical and nonelectrical machinery primarily responsible for the 3,400 gain in the durable goods classification. In the nondurable goods category which advanced by 3,500 rubber and leather products and paper and allied products showed the greatest increases.

Vavoulis also reported that average weekly earnings for manufacturing production workers for December was $132.44 for 41.3 hours at $3.21 per hour. In November, average earnings were $130.59 for 41.1 hours at $3.18.

Overall, manufacturing employment declined 700 from November with losses particularly noticeable in stone, clay and glass (600), poultry dressing (500) and canning (500).

Farmers Union Officers Hold Meeting Here

Closing of the income gap between farmers and non-farm people and several major state legislative problems were on the agenda as Farmers Union local officers from a multi-county area met at Thief River Falls recently for a mid-winter officers conference.

Officers from several counties heard a staff headed by Edwin Christianson, Farmers Union state president, discuss major issues in the 1969 legislative session and the 91st Congress which opened earlier this month.

Attending the conference from the Highlanding area were Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Appelman, Mr. and Mrs. Verner Arveson, Bennie Svanjord, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Arveson, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Ohervestad and Mrs. Gary Kruger.

State Auditor Gives State's Position on Taconite Extensions

State Auditor Stafford King has defended the provisions of a recent taconite lease extension negotiated with the Erie Mining company by the state of Minnesota.

King, a member of the state executive council, said the extremely favorable to the state and that critics of the royalty agreements apparently are confused regarding the difference between royalties on crude taconite and those on concentrated taconite.

"I have served as state auditor for 38 years," King said, "and these years have not been given for the purpose of providing special privilege to any individual or to any corporation. In those years, every vote I have cast as a member of the executive council has been based on what I considered the public interest and I certainly don't intend to go out of office with the thought in the minds of the public that this last action of the executive council has been in any way harmful to the public interest."

In brief, said King, the extended leases:

•Provide for a new royalty five times the current figure.

•Provide 50 per cent greater royalty than will be received by most private landowners during the extended period (1991-2016).

•Provide for increasing royalties in the event of a general inflation or inflation of the products produced by Erie Mining company.

•Provide for a guaranteed production from state taconite lands and a minimum income to the state of one-half million dollars per year, even if Erie does not operate.

King said the new royalty provides for payments of between 65 and 70 cents per ton of taconite pellets. The present royalty, under the terms of the original lease, is 14 cents per ton.

In 1957, the DFL-controlled House introduced the bill authorizing the extension of taconite leases for an additional 25 years and authorizing the conservation department to negotiate royalties and other lease terms for the additional period. The bill was passed and signed into law by Gov. Orville Freeman.

"In fact," said King, "the original bill introduced in the House and Senate provided for extension of the leases without negotiation of the lease terms and would have resulted in royalties to the state during the 25 years beyond 1991 of less than half of those which will be received under the terms negotiated by the conservation department."

King said the bill was amended at the urging of the conservation department to allow negotiation and was subsequently passed unanimously by the House and with only one dissenting vote in the Senate.

"The original terms of most of the state leases provided for payment to the state of 14 cents per ton of taconite pellets," he said. "These leases were entered into at a time when private mineral leases provided only 10 cents per ton of taconite pellets.

"The royalties under the new leases, arrived at after 11 years of negotiation, provide between 22 cents and 27 cents per ton on crude ore which is the equivalent of 65 cents to 70 cents per ton of taconite pellets.

"Royalties currently being paid to most private owners of taconite deposits are only 44.5 cents per ton of taconite pellets.

"I think it is clear that the terms of the new lease are very favorable to the state."

King explained that the legislature, in passing the 1957 law, recognized that the investments required by present taconite facilities, (over $350,000,000 for Erie), and possible future expansions, required long-term commitments of taconite reserves. The private leases held by Erie Mining company and most other taconite companies are for 75 years as compared to 50 years for state leases. Operations of this size require planning for 30 or more years in advance and if the state-owned taconite, which represents approximately one-half of their overall taconite reserve could not be assured the Erie Mining company would be forced to look elsewhere for these reserves.

"The state of Minnesota was able to deal from a position of strength now," King said. "But if we had forced the Erie Mining company to look to private land holders for their taconite reserve they could very well have fulfilled their needs resulting in no need for the state-owned lands.

"Then, we would have been forced to negotiate a lease agreement with a company that had little or no need for our lands. Common sense dictated that it be done now, while we have bargaining power," he said.

Erie Mining company employs 2,800 people from the Aurora-Hoyt Lakes area.

King said the new agreement guarantees continued income to the state at a much higher rate than the original lease provided and that it assures stability of employment in the Aurora-Hoyt Lakes region.

"I can personally remember the spectre of a dying economy in northeastern Minnesota" King added. "How vividly I recall the boarded-up stores, men without jobs and grass growing in the streets.

"I don't believe any Minnesotan wants a return of those hopeless conditions in our great mining areas.

"It is my firm conviction that these new lease extensions are not only favorable to the state but are also an assurance that the people and the economy of northeastern Minnesota will never again suffer the depression of the past."

Social Security Office Calls for Annual Reports

Every social security beneficiary under 72 who's earned income in 1968 was over $1,680 will have to make an annual report to the Social security administration. This report is in addition to any income tax returns that a person may make, according to Clifford Kittelson, district manager for social security.

Each beneficiary who stopped his benefit last year because of his earnings will be mailed an annual report blank. He should complete and return it by April 15.

A beneficiary who earned over $1,680 but who did not stop his social security benefits will not be mailed a blank. He should ask his social security office for one.

Beneficiaries who were 72 or older in January of 1968 need not report regardless of earnings. Anyone else over 65 with earnings over $1,680 must report his earned income. Earned income includes the total of gross wages and the net profit from a trade, business or profession.

Any beneficiary needing help to complete his report is invited to visit his social security office or nearest social security representative.

Alternate Crops Named for 1969 Diverted Acres

Crops which farmers may plant on "additional" acreage diverted under the 1969 wheat and feed grain programs were announced recently by the U. S. department of agriculture.

The crops authorized are sesame, guar, plantago ovata, mustard seed, crambe, sunflower and safflower. These alternate, non-surplus crops may be planted instead of devoting the acreage to an approved conserving use.

Marcel Dahl, chairman of the Stabilization and Conservation committee, said the alternate crops may be planted only on acreage that is voluntarily diverted in excess of the required minimum diversion. For feed grains the minimum diversion is 20 per cent of the base and on wheat it is an acreage equal to 15 per cent of the allotment.

Dahl also reported that, as in previous years, program payments per acre will be reduced when these crops are planted on the additional diverted acres.

When sunflower or safflower crops are planted on the diverted acreage, there will be no diversion payment. When the other alternate crops are planted, payments will be reduced 50 per cent, the minimum deduction under the law.

Flaxseed and castor beans were excluded from the eligible crops for 1969.

Interim Commission Presents Proposals For '69 Legislature

A comprehensive state highway safety program, covering drivers, vehicles and road design, highlights the 1967-68 biennial report of the legislative highway interim commission. Rep. Andrew Skaar of Thief River Falls is a member of the interim group.

The report was officially delivered to the Minnesota Legislature last week.

The interim commission, made up of five members of each house of the legislature, reported on highway operations and needs and urban transit as well as on safety.

State senators serving on the commission were Norman J. Larson, Ada, chairman; Roger A. Laufenburger, Lewiston; Glenn D. McCarty, Minneapolis; John A. Metcalf, Shakopee; and A. O. Sundet, Faribault. The five state representatives were August B. Mueller, Arlington, vice chairman; Richard H. White, Minneapolis, secretary; W. Casper Fischer, Marshall; Richard W. Richie, St. Paul; and Skaar.

Major recommendations in the safety field included:

Re-examination of all drivers before renewal of license. The proposed re-examination would cover eyesight, knowledge of traffic laws and ability to read and understand highway signs.

Mandatory annual inspection of all vehicles. Under the recommendation inspections would be performed by private stations licensed by the state.

New requirements for motorcycle safety. The commission's proposals would require motorcycle operators to have adequate eye protection and a vehicle equipped with a rearview mirror.

Legislation aimed at cracking down on drunk driving. The commission report advocates raising maximum fines for driving while intoxicated to $200 (from the present $100 limit) and increasing the license revocation period following a conviction from 30 to 60 days.

Increased effectiveness for the state highway patrol. The commission supports an increase of 50 patrolmen a year for the 1970-71 biennium as well as new radio facilities and additional aircraft. Also endorsed is an extension of the patrol's jurisdiction to all public roads.

Safety on Minnesota bridges and at rail-highway grade crossings is also dealt with in the report. Commission recommendations include creation of a special committee to study and coordinate grade crossing protection programs, and a system of annual inspection and reporting for all bridges in the state.

The commission report makes several recommendations covering highway operations, including new funds for rest areas and tourist information centers on the interstate system and truck weighing stations along trunk highway routes, and expansion of the county and municipal state-aid systems.

The commission findings also deal with urban highways and mass transit, saying that the Twin City area's freeway system is not growing fast enough to cope with the increase to vehicles.

The problem is aggravated by the increase in construction and acquisition costs, the report says.

The report concludes that only a "flourishing system of public mass transit" can "relieve the growing crisis in urban traffic."

A new system of municipal approval procedures, emphasizing conciliation and public participation in the earliest stages of metropolitan highway planning, is also endorsed by the commission.

The report makes no recommendation concerning financing or revenue measures, but does conclude that the highways of the state "are deteriorating faster than improvements are being made," and that revenue measures passed during the 1967 legislative session "are not sufficient to attain the needed rate of improvement."

Employment Fund Improves Again For Fourth Year

Payments into the Minnesota unemployment compensation fund exceeded benefits paid jobless workers by $16,933,410 in 1968, according to employment security commissioner George J. Vavoulis in his year end report.

According to Vavoulis, this is the fourth consecutive year payments into the fund exceeded withdrawals. During each of the preceeding eleven years, however, benefits were more than fund payments.

Vavoulis said the increase in the fund was due to the very low unemployment level in 1968. Although the number of workers who received benefits rose 10 per cent to 54,000 the total number of weeks compensated (841,426) was almost the same as in 1967.

Benefits paid by the employment security department rose from $24,759,000 in 1967 to $26,825,000 in 1968 because of the higher maximum weekly payment which became effective in June of 1967. An unemployed worker can receive a maximum of $50 weekly depending on his previous wages. Weekly payments in 1968 averaged $41.83 compared to $39.04 in 1967.

In addition to the state unemployment compensation program, the department of employment security administers two programs as an agent for the federal government—unemployment compensation for federal employees and unemployment compensation for ex-servicemen. Benefits under these programs increased, Vavoulis said, to approximately $1,744,574 compared to $1,225,000 in 1967.

Minnesota unemployment compensation fund increased from $72,315,000 to $92,150,000 over the year including $3,000,000 in interest earnings, according to Vavoulis' report. Under current legislation the minimum contribution rate paid by employers is scheduled to drop from 0.7 per cent to 0.5 per cent in 1969, Vavoulis pointed out, however, that the fund should be over $110,000,000 before any change in the minimum rate schedule becomes effective. He will recommend that the state legislature retain the minimum contribution rate of 0.7 for 1969. The contribution rates are paid by employers on the first $4,800 earned by each employee.

Agriculture Is Key To Economic Growth

Minnesota agriculture has played a greater than average role in the state's economic growth, according to Sherwood O. Berg, dean of the University of Minnesota's institute of agriculture.

Over the past couple decades agricultural production in the state has increased rapidly, while the gross Minnesota product—the final value of all goods and services produced within the state in a year—has slowed.

It is difficult to fully assess agriculture's contribution to the gross Minnesota product (GMP), Berg said, because farming adds considerably to the economy beyond the commodities it produces.

For example, agriculture is an important customer of industries supplying goods and services for production, it provides raw materials that are the basis for jobs and incomes in processing and distributing farm products, and much of the income earned by farmers goes back into the economy.

Minnesota agriculture has contributed to the state's economy because of its ability to adapt to new technology and new demands for food and fiber, Berg said. Consequently although the number of farms in the state is decreasing, the average farm is increasing in acreage and assets along with increases in the value of its production.

In short, Minnesota farming is becoming more specialized and concentrated, Berg said. In this transitional process agriculture is playing an even greater role in generating income within the state and the nation.

In 1967 total farm, horticultural and forestry activity in $4.1 billion of income in the state and surrounding areas. Agriculture could have contributed even more to the state's economy but low prices and the uncertainties of nature have kept farm income in check, Berg said.

Although the state's GMP has increased since 1947, it has not kept pace with national economic growth as measured by the gross national product (GNP).

Achieving a greater economic growth rate, which is necessary if Minnesota is to keep pace with the nation, will mean important adjustments in the rural areas and metropolitan areas as well.

These adjustments will include: expanding the use of natural, capital and human resources in rural Minnesota; diversification of industry into rural areas; increasing research and technology; and improving the quality of human resources through education.

In the future Minnesota farms will continue to produce high-quality, low-cost products to stimulate the nonfarm economy, and the impact of agricture will be felt with greater emphasis, Berg said. Minnesota agriculture will be an even greater customer for products of farm supply industries.

If present trends in agriculture continue, Minnesota farmers probably will realize an additional $520 million of income by 1980 and will provide an additional $2.7 billion of income generated for businesses related to agriculture.

But this agriculture by 1980 will become increasingly technical and specialized. As a result of technological trends it is possible that 100,000 workers will be released from farming by 1980.

These workers, coupled with areas such as lack of industry, poverty and underemployment, may pose problems for economic growth in Minnesota unless measures are taken to adjust for these trends. These measures must include more complete utilization and expansion of resources in both the farm and non-farm sectors of the economy.

New Measure of State Economy Is Developed

A new measure of Minnesota's economic growth—called the gross Minnesota product—shows that growth of the state's economy has been similar to that of the nation's, but that Minnesota will have to do more to keep pace with future growth nationally.

The gross Minnesota product (GMP) was developed by Dale C. Dahl, associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota.

It provides a measure of economic growth for the state that is similar to the gross national product (GNP) which is an indicator of national economic growth.

According to Sherwood O. Berg, dean of the university's institute of agriculture, both the GMP and GNP account for the final value of all goods, products and services produced in the state or nation each year.

The "real" GMP or GNP is an adjusted measure that holds prices constant or deflates the GMP or GNP so that all changes in the value of the economic indicator is recorded as economic growth.

"The gross Minnesota Product and gross national product are rough measures of our standard of living when given on a per person basis," Berg said. "However, they are only one measure of economic growth. Other measures include per capita personal income and date of unemployment."

In 1966 the gross Minnesota product was about $13 billion, while the "real" GMP was slightly more than $11.5 billion. This adjusted measure was about double the real value of the state's production of goods and services in 1947.

Also between 1947 and 1966 the real GMP per person in the state rose from about $2,035 to $3,225.

However, Berg points out that although the state's GMP has increased since 1947, it has not kept pace with economic growth nationally.

Similarly, per person personal income in Minnesota was less than the national average for each year during the 1947 to 1966 period, Berg said. The income gap will widen unless measures are taken to increase the state's economic growth.

The gross Minnesota product per person should increase $500 by 1980. But unless this growth rate increases at a faster pace than currently, it will still be $200 per person less than the 1980 projected gross national product per person.

Between now and 1980 Minnesota's economic growth rate must increase by at least one-half per cent more than the national economic growth rate for the two to be similar in 1980 Berg said. This means that Minnesota must do more than other states to achieve greater economic growth.

Achieving a greater economic growth rate in the state will mean important adjustments in both rural and metropolitan areas.

Farmer Learning Must Continue, UM Prof Says

The knowledge explosion has put man in a position where he can no longer depend on what he knows, but on what he is continually learning, a University of Minnesota professor said in Grand Forks recently.

In a talk at the 2th annual farm and home forum, LaVern Freeh, special assistant to the dean of the university's institute of agriculture, said that the impact of the knowledge explosion is felt no less in agriculture than in any other area of human activity.

"Most people know, for example, that farms have changed, and that many of the things that used to be done on the farm by the farmer and his family are now being done by what we call agri-business firms," he said.

"But on the other hand much too little is known or at least has been said about the implications of declining numbers of farms and farmers on the needs for agricultural education.

"As the various segments of agriculture become larger, more technical and more complex," Freeh continued, "The educational needs for those in agriculture likewise become greater, more complex and more technical."

The commercial farmer needs continual understanding of new technology and of how he can profitably make use of it. He needs to acquire and develop the skills and abilities required to apply new technology.

He needs to be able to appraise economic trends, changing economic and social forces, and the long-run outlook. He needs to know how to reorganize the farm business to adjust to the impact of new technology, new business methods, changing economic conditions, taxes and other circumstances.

At the same time, Freeh said, those farmers who are being displaced by technology and other circumstances need to have the opportunity for retraining and relocation, which includes the appraisal of off-the-farm opportunities.

"Our goal, then, as people interested in and involved with agriculture, is to find ways to more efficiently produce food and fiber products and assure a fair income for farmers.

"At the same time, however, we must find ways of assuring displaced farmers a new place in society, and we must find ways to improve life in rural areas and small towns.

"Beyond these immediate and close-at-home needs," he added "we must assist the less fortunate countries of the world in solving their food needs. As a long-term issue there can be no problem that is greater or more important than feeding the people of the world. There is no stability, and there can be no security in a hungry world."

Careers In Food and Fiber

Forestry is one of our youngest professions. Sixty five years ago there were practically no trained foresters in the United States. Today there are approximately 25,000 professional foresters.

Forestry can be defined as the art, science and business of managing forest lands. Foresters are responsible for the management of timber, watershed, wildlife, recreation and rangeland covering about one-third of the area of the United States. Graduates of forestry schools are also involved in the harvesting, processing, distribution and merchandising of forest products.

Our forest lands produce wood and other forest products valued at approximately $30 billion annually after processing by our forest products industries. Water, vital to urban and rural life, has its source on these forest lands. Much of our wildlife is dependent on the forest for habitat which must be properly managed in balance with the multiple uses of the land. In parts of the West livestock forage is of critical importance to the nation's economy. The vast forest lands of America are becoming increasingly important for outdoor recreation and the associated esthetic values necessary in our present-day society.

The graduate forester is a professional—he is both a scientist and an administrator. His training for the first two years consists of a broad background of the liberal arts—humanities and social sciences—as well as the biological and natural sciences. He must be skilled in the art of communication and he must be well grounded in mathematics. The last two years are set aside for professional forestry and forest products courses.

The students in the forest resources development and forest science curriculums will attend a summer field session at the Itasca forestry and biological station and the students in the forest resources development curriculum will also spend an entire quarter at the Cloquet forest research center.

Intensive forest management is now being applied to only a part of our nation's forest land. National interest and security eventually will demand the institution of scientific forestry management on all of our forestry land. Thus the need for men and women with professional forestry training will increase. How rapidly this need will increase will depend ultimately upon public demand for intensification of sound forestry practices on public lands and the progress made by private owners in placing more of their land under adequate management.

For further information on careers in forestry, write or visit the School of Forestry, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Search for new knowledge in forestry goes on continuously. Young men and women with minds capable of meeting the rigorous demands of research are needed to increase the basic knowledge on which management decisions affecting the nation's forest and related water, recreation and wildlife resources are made.

Students interested in a career in forest research should have a solid background in the natural and social sciences and mathematics, says Frank H. Kaufert, professor and head of the school of forestry at the University of Minnesota.

Most students completing the forest science curriculum at the university will enter graduate training, he says. At the end of his freshman year, the student may choose between two options, one in natural science, the other in social science.

According to Kaufert, the demand for foresters in education and research is growing rapidly, with excellent opportunities for the forester with the ability and qualifications to pursue advanced academic study.

Forest science majors are particularly well qualified for graduate study leading to research with industrial, governmental or educational organizations or to technical and professional teaching at the college level.

The research forester is usually a specialist concentrating his efforts in a particular area or field of forestry. Broadly, the research areas in forestry may be divided into three categories: the biological sciences; including such disciplines as ecology, physiology, genetics, hydrology, pathology and entomology; the physical sciences, such as physics, chemistry and wood technology and the social sciences, including the fields of economics, administration and recreation.

The U. S. forest service carries out the largest and most comprehensive forestry research program with eight regional forest experiment stations across the country, Kaufert says.

Research areas include the development of improved management techniques for timber, water production, livestock ranges, recreation and wildlife and fish habitats. Other areas include forest genetics, forest physiology, forest ecology, forest hydrology, forest insects and diseases, forest fire control, forest and forest products utilization and marketing.

Winter Quarter Enrollment at MSC Is Record

Winter quarter enrollment at Moorhead state college of all classifications of students totals 4,825, an increase of more than 15 per cent over total enrollment during winter quarter 1968, according to registrar Dorian Olsan.

A preliminary enrollment total for the current quarter, Olson said the 4,825 figure is a record winter quarter enrollment that follows last fall quarter's record enrollment of 5,033, which boosted MSC over the 5,000 mark for the first time. Winter quarter enrollments are normally below fall quarter totals.

This quarter's enrollment includes 3,789 Minnesotans, 438 more than winter quarter 1968, and 1,036 students from homes outside Minnesota, 209 more than winter quarter 1968.

Advertising... makes wheels go 'round!

Every day, in great cities and small villages, housewives make out their daily shopping lists from ads in their home-town newspapers.

No hoopla, no ballyhoo. The kids have gone to school, the father to work. The mother of the family — the one responsible for spending most of the family's money — sits down at her kitchen table and carefully decides where she can get the best buys. The information is all there, in the newspaper. The bargain prices, the descriptions, stay there while she makes up her mind, at leisure. Perhaps she will even fold the ad and put it in her purse, if there is any question in her mind about the price or the product.

Advertising is a service which people want. After the New York newspaper strike of 1957, women interviewed in one study said they missed ads most of all features in the newspaper.

Advertising makes the wheels go 'round in our economy. Following the Minneapolis newspaper strike in 1962, economists of the Federal Reserve Bank's Ninth District estimated that the area had lost $58,000,000 in sales.

Advertising makes newspaper wheels go 'round, too. Before the advent of mass advertising, newspapers — always very expensive to produce — had to depend on political parties for support. It has been advertising, honest advertising furnishing a needed service to millions of consumers, that has strengthened the economic base of the American press.

LHS Cagers Face Pirates, Ponies

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls Prowler basketball players have their work cut out for them this weekend as they will be in two Big Five conference games. Both games will be away from home with the first coming on Friday night as they travel to Crookston to meet the Pirates. The second game of the weekend is scheduled against Warren. This game will be played at the University of North Dakota field house and will be Chanel 4's TV game of the week. This contest is expected to get under way at 2:30 p.m., while the Crookston contest is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Both games are conference games, with the value of the two games being three points in the conference standings. The game with Crookston is worth only one point, while the Warren contest is worth two points to the winner.

As of Tuesday, Thief River Falls and Warren were tied for first place in the loop standings with perfect 3-0 records and having four points each. Tuesday night the Ponies played East Grand Forks, so they could be on top of the loop standings or a half-game behind the Prowlers.

The Crookston squad has fallen to the Prowlers earlier in the season by a 58-52 score on the Prowlers' home court, and the game with the Pirates is always a close battle. The Prowlers have been having their troubles winning, as they have only won three while losing five since they met the Pirates last. The Pirates have won three and lost three in that same period.

Both teams will bring a two-game winning string into the game. Expected to start for the Prowlers in both contests will be the same five that has started the last two ball games for coach Whitey Olson. That includes sophomore Mike Hammerlinck and junior Don Balmer at forwards; senior Sheldon Joppru at center; senior Dan Brodin and junior Kip Poppenhagen at guards.

Saturday night against Climax, Brodin tallied 23 points, pulled down seven rebounds and did a good job overall. His play earned him the "Player of the Week award" from the Prowler coaching staff.

Expected to start for Crookston will be Dave Juve at center, Duane Lindquist and Craig Peterson at the forwards, and Chuck Reynolds and Wayne Wagner at the guards.

Lindquist has been a late starter for coach Curt Josephson and has tallied 23 points in his last two ball games in which the Pirates have posted victories. Those victories have come over Fertile and Oslo, both nonconference foes for the Pirates. Their lone conference win has come at the expense of the Climax club.

Warren will be taller than the Prowlers by a good two inches per man. Expected to start for the Ponies on Saturday will be Joel Engen and Duane Swanson at the guards, Dick Knutson at center, and Larry Graham and Gary Christofferson at the forwards. Graham and Swanson occasionally switch positions.

Joppru is the leading scorer for the Prowlers in conference play as he is averaging 25 points per game and has an overall average of 21.3. Brodin is next with a 14.3 conference average and 11.1 overall. Balmer is averaging 10.1 points per contest and 8.1 in conference action. Joppru leads in rebounds with 166 and 51 in conference play. Steve Edlund and Balmer are next with 74 and 72 overall.

Hammerlinck, who has seen action in only two games for the Prowlers, is giving them extra strength under the boards and the sophomore has grabbed 16 rebounds in those two games.

Itasca Romps Over Northland Monday 84-69

Leading by four points at the end of the first half 38-34, Itasca state junior college pulled away in the second half to hand Northland state junior college Northmen their 10th loss of the season Monday night 84-69 on the Itasca home court.

For the second game in a row the Northmen were forced to play without center Tam Super, who is bothered by a pulled tendon in his ankle.

A total of seven players scored in double figures for the contest with the Northmen's Nick Neibauer tallying 29 points to lead all scorers for the game. Dale Johnson and Bob Perry tallied 22 and 21 points respectively for the winners. Adding 14 and 13 points for the Itasca school were Rich Ollila and Don Harrington. Two other Northmen were in double figures as Frank Dewey and Dwight Jaros scored 11 points each.

Next action for the Northmen is tonight (Wednesday) as they will travel to Crookston to meet Minnesota Tech on their home court. On Friday night the Northmen will be at home in the Lincoln high school gym as they will host Mesabi state junior college of Virginia.

AN AWKWARD POSITION, but it was worth two points for Nick Neibauer (12) of the Northland state junior college Northmen in Saturday afternoon's homecoming win over the Brainerd Raiders by a score of 78-69. Neibauer scored 19 points for the Northland cagers. Others in the photo are Tom Cummings (33), Fran Reutch, (15), trying to block Neibauer's shot; and Don Ruff (41), all of the Raiders.

GAME OF THE WEEK

by Bob Wielinski

Clearbrook pulled one of the big upsets in District 30 basketball on Tuesday night as the Hornets edged McIntosh 66-64 on the Scots home court.

The game marked an ending of a winning string of the Scots at eight, while it also marked the sixth straight win for the Hornets. The Scots, ranked as one of the strong teams in District 30, suffered their second set-back of the campaign against 11 wins. It was also their second loss in conference play. For Clearbrook it marked the eighth win of the season against four losses on the year.

The Hornets were led by Gordon Engebretson, who held the Scots' scoring ace Mark Schimanski to 22 points, his second lowest point production for the season. Schimanski has been averaging over 30 points per game. Engebretson had to be the top player in the game as he forced Schimanski to take bad shots during the contest. The Clearbrook center must also be given credit for blocking numerous shots by the McIntosh center, while Engebretson also out rebounded Schimanski for the game.

Besides doing a good defensive job, Engebretson came out as the game's top scorer with 23 points. A total of 11 of those points came in the last period as the Scots tied the contest four times, only to find the Hornets come back with a basket to keep ahead of them. Engebretson tallied seven field goals and added nine free throws for his total of 23 points. Schimanski's 22 points came on nine field goals and four free throws.

Clearbrook added three more players in double figures as the game was a team effort. Larry Groshong, added 14, Jim Goudge tallied 12 and Gary Prosser tossed in 10 points for the winners.

Jim Benson tallied 20 points for the losing Scots while Steve Haaven added 12 points.

McIntosh jumped to a 19-17 lead at the end o the first period, only to find Clearbrook coming back in the second period to take a 36-31 lead at half time.

The third period the Hornets enjoyed a 51-45 lead, but McIntosh came back in the period with 19 points, tieing the contest four different times only to see the Hornets going out ahead, the last time at 66-64, as Engebretson tallied the final bucket of the game with seven seconds left on the clock.

Clearbrook, who was hurt at the beginning of the season because of ineligibility of five players, had to go with sophomores and one senior. Since Christmas they have come on strong, and with the addition of five players from last year's team along with the lone senior, will be one of the top teams in District 30 play from now on.

The Hornets face another major test on Friday night as they meet Fosston in a battle that could just about decide the sub-district pairing. A win for the Hornets would just about assure them of a third place finish, while a loss could mean fourth place and a meeting with a tough Bagley squad.

Prowler 6 Posts Fourth Straight; At Roseau Sat.

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls hockey Prowlers scored a couple of important wins on Monday and Tuesday evenings, as they stopped Crookston 5-0 on Monday and then stopped East Grand Forks on Tuesday by a 4-2 score. Both games were on the road for the local sixtet.

The Prowlers will be back in action on Saturday night as they meet the Roseau Rams, who on Tuesday night pulled off one of the biggest upsets in the state as they toppled Warroad 7-4. In another game on Tuesday, Bemidji scored a 7-4 win over Crookston.

The two victories for the Prowlers just about clinched first place in the Region Eight south half and assured them of being seeded into the Region Eight tournament. The Prowlers only have two games left, good for two points, one at Roseau on Saturday night and the other against Warroad on the local ice Tuesday night. The Roseau contest will decide it, for if the Prowlers win they will have first place in the standings, while a loss could drop them to second place behind Moorhead.

The victories on Monday and Tuesday nights upped the Prowlers' season record to 10-5-1. The Prowlers are ranked number 12 in the state.

Monday night the Prowlers were led by the skating and play-making of Dana Stromberg. The senior co-captain scored one goal and assisted on three others, as the Prowlers gained a 5-0 lead over the Crookston Pirates.

In that game Rich Holmes, the Prowlers' leading scorer, tallied the first goal at 6:18 in the first period. The goal was an unassisted one and gave the Prowlers a 1-0 lead at the end of the period.

In the second period the Prowlers added three more goals as Stromberg scored the second goal of the night at 2:14. The second goal of the period was scored by Wicklander with assists from Stromberg and Bill Norman at 4:04. At 6:26 in the period, John Fitzgerald scored with an assist from Stromberg. This gave the Prowlers a 4-0 lead going into the final period.

The final goal of the night came at 11:21 of the third period when Wicklander scored his second goal of the night, once again assisted by Stromberg.

On Tuesday night the Prowlers struck first in the first period against East Grand Forks as Wicklander, on an assist from Stromberg, scored at 4:13. The goal came on a face-off as Stromberg slapped the puck to Wicklander.

Holmes tallied the next goal unassisted in the second period at 8:02 as the Prowlers took a 2-0 lead. Dennis Johnson added the third goal of the night as he scored at 1:36 in the second period. Holmes was given an assist on that goal.

In the final period Holmes scored his second goal of the night at 25 seconds in the period, as he was assisted from Donn Haugen.

The Little Green Wave tallied their two goals of the contest in the final period as Dnio Pesch tallied at 5:16 and Bill Blanchette tallied the final goal of the game at 12:53 as the Prowlers were skating a man short.

Both games found the Prowlers being called for eight penalties. Only East Side was able to take advantage of the man short as they scored in the final period Tuesday. In the Monday contest the Prowlers at one time during the final period skated for over a minute with two men short, but Crookston was unable to score.

In Monday's contest Prowler goalie Dan Sullivan had a total of 14 stops in his shutout, while the Crookston goalie tallied 15. Tuesday night found Jerry Owen in the nets for the Prowlers as he stopped 24 shots while the Little Green Wave goalie had a total of 27 stops.

CLEARBROOK CHEERLEADERS show mixed emotions during the Clearbrook-McIntosh basketball game on Tuesday night at McIntosh. The girls were there to help cheer for three student bus loads of Clearbrook fans as the Hornets handed the Scots their second loss of the season 66-64.

TRF Wrestlers Face Ada Squad Thursday Night

Thief River Falls wrestling squad will be out to stop a five-time dual match losing string on Thursday night as they host the Ada Vikings. In between those five dual losses however, is a first place finish at the Sioux Invitational, and a fourth place finish at the Grand Rapids Invitational.

In their last outing the Prowlers took a trouncing at the hands of a fine Bemidji squad 41-7. In that match, one of the two Prowlers who were undefeated in dual competition was defeated for the first time. The lone undefeated wrestler on the Prowler squad in dual competition is Ed Furuseth at 112 pounds. Suffering his first defeat last week at Bemidji was 145-pounder Tom Duke.

Furuseth missed last week's match because of illness, but should be back in action on Thursday night as the 'B' squads will tangle at 6:30 p.m. and the varsity squads do battle at 7:30 p.m.

His record so far is 1-2. According to reports from the college, he is rapidly improving and a great addition to the team.

Haugen On Prep Squad; Prowlers Twelfth in State

A member of the 12th ranked Thief River Falls Prowler hockey squad was named to WCCO radio's prep team of the week last week. Named from the Prowlers was Donn Haugen, at Forward position.

In games last week, Haugen tallied a hat trick and was in on a number of assists in two contests. He is a senior member of the Prowler squad this season.

One other area player was also named to the team—John Harris, Roseau, at a defense spot.

The Prowlers were ranked 12th this week in the state-wide rankings, while two other Region eight teams are ranked above the Prowlers in the state rankings. They are Warroad, who moved into the number one position this week, and Bemidji, who is fourth in the state.

Warroad, for the first time in weeks, took over the number one position from Greenway of Coleraine, who lost to International Falls over the weekend.

Warroad's coach Dick Roberts stated that the Prowlers squad may have an 8-6-1 record, but is regarded as the finest skating team that Warroad has faced this year.

The top 15 teams in the state are as follows: 1. Warroad, 14-1; 2. Greenway, 16-3; 3. International Falls, 13-4-1; 4. Bemidji, 17-2; 5. Hibbing, 14-5; 6. (tie) Mpls. Washburn, 13-0-3 and Mpls. Duluth Cath., 8-8-1.

Along with being the 12th ranked team in the state, the Prowlers are currently the number one team in the south half of Region Eight.

Provisions Listed In Gun Control Act

To clarify several points of the gun control act of 968, Federal Cartridge corporation has issued a list of the major provisions of the act. The provisions are printed here so that persons interested may become familiar with them:

1. Persons or organizations in the business of selling firearms or ammunition must be licensed by the Internal Revenue Service, and pay a $10 annual fee. A license is granted only after a showing of a business history, business premises, and public use of those premises, together with a disclosure of the personal responsibility and full identity of the licensee.

2. All firearms and ammunition, including the components of ammunition, are regulated by banning their sale or shipment across state lines (except between licensed dealers) and, in addition, limiting the over-the-counter sales of such items to persons who are either over 18 years or over 21 years of age, depending upon the firearms or ammunition purchased.

In every case, as the enclosed forms demonstrate, the seller must be certain of the identity of the purchaser and keep detailed records of the items sold.

3. A purchaser of a firearm must complete Form 4473, which requires detailed information, including height, weight, age and race. The seller must also maintain a permanent record of every gun in stock and record to whom it is sold as shown on the Form 4473. These records must be kept forever.

The seller of ammunition must not only record all items sold, but must also receive from the purchaser evidence of his identity, birth date, and place must be kept on the premises for at least two years.

For transactions between licensed dealers, such as sales by wholesalers to retailers, these detailed records must be maintained unless special approval for an alternate record is granted by the Assistant Regional Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

4. Non-residents may purchase ammunition over the counter in another state, but a non-resident may not purchase a firearm over the counter except under the following circumstances:

a. If he resides in a contiguous state and his home state has passed a law permitting him to do so. Thus, a person living in Superior, Wisconsin can no longer freely purchase a shotgun or rifle in Duluth, Minnesota, although he is free to purchase anything else he might need anyplace in the United states without difficulty.

b. If a non-resident is engaged in an organized rifle or shotgun competition or hunting and his firearm becomes lost, stolen or inoperative, he may purchase a firearm as a non-resident upon completion of Form 4473 and a sworn statement setting forth in detail the circumstances surrounding the loss of or damage to his gun, as well as his activity in the state at the time of the event.

In addition to the above, any sale of a firearm or ammunition must not be in violation of any state law or any published ordinance applicable at the place of sale or delivery. In the case of a sale of a firearm to a non-resident, such sale must not violate any state law or published ordinance applicable in the state of residence. The seller must verify this by reference to a U. S. Treasury publication of state laws and local ordinances.

5. In addition to regulating the items sold, the conditions of sale, and the dealers who sell firearms and ammunition, certain classes of persons are prohibited from purchasing firearms and ammunition. Large Wildlife Areas Approved In Kittson Co.

Two new large areas in the northeast portion of Kittson county are expected to be transformed into wildlife management areas. The two areas are located mostly in Caribou and McKinley townships which both border on Canada. Caribou also borders Roseau county.

One project has been named Beaches Lake and comprises about 39,000 acres. It takes in part of McKinley, Cannon, Pentland and Klondike townships. Within the project's boundaries is a proposed shallow pool from which the project gets its name.

Caribou is the name of the other project. Much of the land in both of these areas is already owned by the state, some of it is tax forfeited land, some trust fund land and some is privately owned.

Proposed projects would create wildlife management areas to be used primarily for the preservation of upland game, big game and some waterfowl. There would be no attempt to create any clear water lakes or to provide fishing waters. The project would be similar to Twin Lakes near Karlstad.

Future Depends On Attitudes In Conservation

Good conservation programs in elementary schools are important because the use of essential natural resources in the future depends on attitudes that individuals develop when they are young according to Clifton Halsey, University of Minnesota extension conservationist.

A good conservation education program is based on sound educational, psychological and sociological principles. It should fit the maturity levels of the pupils and provide enjoyable educational experiences outdoors, Halsey said.

Two publications are available which will help teachers evaluate and develop conservation programs for their classrooms, Halsey added.

One publication, "Evaluating a Program of Conservation Education in the Elementary School," contains more than 300 questions that can assist in the evaluation and development of conservation programs. The publication, which costs 50 cents, is available from Interstate Printers and Publishers, Inc., Danville, Illinois, 61832.

The second publication, "Conservation Education in Minnesota," contains a list of organizations and institutions which offer resources and assistance in developing conservation programs. This leaflet, which is free, can be obtained by writing Clifton Halsey, 102 Green Hall, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota, 55101.

Severe Weather Is Danger To Pheasants

Minnesota's record December snowfall is causing serious problems for pheasants, the conservation department reported today.

"The blizzards of December 12-13, and 21-22 were especially severe in western Minnesota and killed pheasants by suffocation and exposure," said Jarle Leirfallom, conservation commissioner. "The percentage of the pheasant population that was actually lost is not known because storm killed birds are usually covered over by snow drifts. However, ten dead birds were found by area game managers at Morris and Fergus Falls during a few hours of searching."

Severe drifting throughout much of the pheasant range resulted from strong winds which blew the snow off the bare fields and filled in marshes and groves. Many of the smaller marshes in the pheasant range are now completely filled with snow.

"This means that any future storms will leave pheasants exposed and subject to death from suffocation and exposure unless a substantial thaw occurs in the near future," said Leirfallom.

"The weather we have had in December makes the need for dense plantings of evergreens such as red cedar and spruce very evident. Landowners are urged to make plans now for establishing permanent woody cover plantings through the programs available at the county ASCS offices and the game and fish division field offices."

Although blizzard conditions have been most prevalent in western Minnesota, the southern parts of the state have had just as much snow with up to 30 inches still on the ground in the southwest.

Hiram Southwick, regional game manager at Slayton, reports that some pheasants were completely buried in that area by the heavy snowfall of December 21-22.

"Although some were able to dig themselves out," said Southwick, "others were undoubtedly trapped under hard packed drifts—a situation which has been observed during storms in other years."

One bright spot is the food situation for pheasants in the southern part of the state. Because of the wet fall every square mile or two has some standing corn and many picked cornfields remain unplowed and are blown relatively clear of snow.

However, in west central Minnesota the food situation could become critical and it is being watched closely by game managers.

Wildlife food plots on state and federal wetland areas and those established under the U.S.D.A.'s agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) are proving invaluable to pheasants and other wildlife Leirfallom said.

"There are 182 food plots in Meeker county and 240 in Kandiyohi, an average of 10 per township. This standing corn, when located adjacent to a large cattail marsh or heavy thicket, holds birds where they are relatively safe from storms and predation. Unfortunately, there are too few of these areas and a good percentage of our pheasant population is now vulnerable to the lethal effects of a severe winter."

Hopefully, said the commissioner, the current winter won't be as severe as that three years ago when Minnesota lost about 50 per cent of its pheasant population in a single two-day snowstorm.

"However," he said, "it is disturbing to see that winter has barely begun and the total accumulated snowfall to date sets a new record. Lets hope for the proverbial January thaw!"

Extra Car Care Makes Sense in Cold Weather

Cold weather is much more demanding upon your car. If it is not in good condition it is quite likely to fail you and the failure is likely to occur at the most uncomfortable time, in stormy or bitterly cold weather.

A pre-season check-up, and the necessary repairs and adjustments to put all systems in good operating condition, will reward you by preventing failures later on.

Points, plugs and condenser should be at top efficiency. Battery should be tested and replaced if it shows any weakness. Generator should be inspected. Carburetor should be examined. Make sure your exhaust system is tight. Carbon monoxide is a special winter hazard. Have your cooling system readied for cold weather early in the fall. Don't wait for a freeze. It might come early and hard, and when it does the service stations will be jammed with other cars whose owners had been waiting.

How do you wear an automobile safety belt properly? The Minnesota AAA says safety belts should be fastened firmly around the hips—not the waist—with no slack. Shoulder belts should be secured just loosely enough for a fist to be placed between belt and chest. They should be worn whenever you ride or drive.

GUARDED TREASURE ?

What infinite pains we take to guard our valuable possessions! Yet not all our possessions can be given protection in a safe. What about that priceless treasure which each of us possesses—our eternal happiness?

To safeguard this great treasure, where can we go?

The answer lies in the Church. It gives us the combination that opens the door to our spiritual riches—the combination of faith and good works. The Church guards and guides us along the way that leads to the treasure—the way led by Jesus, our Savior. It invites everyone to join in service to God and to our fellowmen. In this way, we inherit new riches of the spirit that no man or circumstance can steal or destroy.

—Henry David Thoreau

Forcefully Vague

The question as to whether teacher-school board negotiations should be public is one that should be resolved by appropriate agencies—not by private organizations. This is a summary statement in a news release from A. L. Gallop, executive secretary of the Minnesota Education association.

"Although not part of our legislative program," Gallop explains in an MEA news release, "few education-related problems have generated more interest in this session than has the question of teacher-school board negotiations and whether they should be open to the public.

"For any number of reasons—most of which are not logical—this question has been placed for solution before the MEA."

(Here we beg to differ with Mr. Gallop. The question has not been placed before the MEA for solution. MEA has been criticized for its attempts to have negotiating meetings closed, using the premise that such sessions are committee meetings not specifically covered in the state's open meeting law.)

"So that there is no question as to MEA's position," Gallop maintains, "I reiterate what we have said for many years. We at no time have questioned the right—and, in fact, necessity—of having public school board meetings open at all times." Gallop emphasized that the MEA, being a private agency, is in no position to interpret law nor to enforce it.

"Whenever asked by teachers of school districts," Gallop adds, "our advice consistently has been to do whatever works best for both teachers and school boards, who—after all—represent the public."

The teachers sincerely feel, according to Gallop's news release, that their cause in trying to provide the best possible education for youngsters is just and that the public supports them.

"Keeping this in mind," Gallop concludes, "the responsibility of the news media to inform the public is indeed a great one; a responsibility that cannot be discharged by way of hit-and-miss coverage. It requires persistent and continuous effort by persons who are, or become, knowledgeable in educational matters."

If we understand Gallop's release, we believe he is being forcefully vague. While he champions open public meetings, and refers to negotiating sessions, he never mentions both in the same statement.

As we read the release, we had hoped he would say that negotiating sessions are subject to the same law as regular school board meetings, and as such are open to the public. But he didn't say it, and we wonder if he intended to say it. Instead, he said that the MEA is in no position to interpret law nor to enforce it. We believe this to be his key statement. It backs away from the previous interpretation of the law, probably because adhering to that position would continue to give the association a bad public image.

Mr. Gallop is a learned man, experienced in public relations and quite capable of saying what he means. We believe there is more in what he did not say in the release than in what was stated.

Please Be Brutal!

(Excerpts from a letter to the Police department of a large city in Texas by the wife of a minister.)

One of the most common phrases heard in our society and our city today is "police brutality." Perhaps I don't understand the meaning, but I would like to give you one mother's viewpoint on this subject.

To begin, I should first tell you that I have two teen-age sons, and being a mother I cannot help but want the very best of everything for them. I am a "typical mother", for I see things many mothers never hear of, much less become involved in, because my husband is a minister and we see the very best and the sordid worst.

I would like you to be brutal with my sons. Is that a surprise? If you find them speeding in a car PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have sat at the hospital holding a grieving mother's hand because of someone's mistake. That was brutal. I have gone with my husband to tell a wife her husband was killed. That was brutal. I have helped nurse a beautiful teen-age girl crippled in a wreck. That was brutal. I have played the organ music at funeral services for babies, teen-agers, and adults because someone drove too fast. That was brutal.

If you should catch my under-age sons with liquor in their possession, PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have sat all night by my husband's side trying to help piece together two under-age young men's lives, both by drinking. That was brutal.

If you should find my sons with drugs in their possession, PLEASE BE BRUTAL! I have tried to help rehabilitate a woman just out of prison for shooting her husband while she was drugged. That was brutal. I have seen a handsome young man turn into an ugly one because of drugs. That was brutal. I have seen a young mother who was addicted to a drug, scream and rave for lack of a "fix." That was brutal.

If you ever see my sons taking something that isn't theirs or willfully destroying property, PLEASE BE BRUTAL! I have walked into a hushed, sacred church that was stripped of everything that could be sold. That was brutal. I have seen a lovely expensive home and yard completely torn up by vandals. That was brutal. I have wiped a little boy's tears and helped him hunt for his stolen bicycle. That was brutal.

If you should ever catch my sons doing anything illegal, PLEASE BE BRUTAL! I have come to realize that your kind of "brutality" cannot in any way compare with the brutality that comes from breaking our laws. My husband and I have tried to teach our sons that their rights end where someone else's begin. We believe they have learned this lesson, but in any case they forget, we look to you and others who influence their lives—teachers, coaches, etc.—to see that they remember. And if you must be brutal to remind them—THEN PLEASE, BE BRUTAL! I do not want my two sons to grow into two grown-up boys. I want them to become men, able to assume their places in this world and make a good contribution to it. I sincerely hope they won't need your help, but if they do, and if you must THEN BE BRUTAL!

Let Government Report

W. L. Thornton, president of the Southern States Industrial council, writes as follows in the council's semi-monthly bulletin:

Graft, corruption and extravagance are no strangers to government, nor is the apathy with which we react to dishonesty on a grand scale.

If one Mr. John M. McGee, a Navy petroleum inspector, is only ten percent correct regarding his disclosures of U. S. military fuel thefts in Thailand, every citizen has a right to be outraged. Every taxpayer should do more than express his ire—he should demand an inquiry and punishment of the guilty—if there be guilt. First, though, some sort of vigilante committee should be deputized to protect Mr. McGee. He has already felt the fury of offended officialdom, is now shunned by his co-workers and may be booted out of job.

Such a fate befell another courageous man who toiled in the vineyards of a gigantic bureaucracy. He plucked only the grapes of wrath for telling what needed to be told. That, of course, was Otto Otepka who exposed lax security practices in the State Department, known to the irreverent as 'Foggy Bottom'. Mr. Otepka was the victim of swift and merciless vengeance.

Mr. McGee, undeterred by such prospects, has fortunately found a staunch ally in Senator William Proxmire, a Democrat from Wisconsin, who has focused national attention upon the theft, leakage, siphonage, or otherwise mysterious disappearance of over five-million gallons of costly gasoline stores. That fuel, by the way, was needed for our military operations in the vicinity of Thailand, notably Vietnam.

It has also been revealed that other frauds involving military petroleum products in the same area may well exceed the millions of dollars worth that have already gone down the drain.

Any man who ever served overseas in wartime operations can tell shocking stories of military stores, materiel, rations and post exchange items flooding the black markets. There have been numerous reports of the luxurious style of living to which some residents of Saigon have become accustomed because of the illegal diversion of our military resources into civilian channels. We have yet to hear of any genuine effort to stop the corruption or to punish the guilty.

In expressing our admiration for the motives that prompted Mr. McGee to blow the whistle on what he found in Thailand, we are being remiss if we don't ask our Congressmen to keep us informed of the end result. The Feds don't waste any time letting us know when we've been derelict, intentionally or otherwise, in complying with some regulation or commission edict. Well, we're entitled to demand that the same probity and integrity which the government demands of the private citizen be present among the government boys who handle the money they take from us.

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The deer herd in Minnesota is facing a critical situation because of the excess of snow fall in the areas where deer normally winter. An emergency appropriation of $100,000 is being requested by the conservation department to cut browse and break trails for the deer. This legislation will be processed as rapidly as possible and work is scheduled to be under way no later than the end of January.

The turbulent events on the University of Minnesota campus recently have shaken up many people who rightly take pride in their great university.

Members of the legislature heard a direct report from President Malcolm Moos of the University of Minnesota concerning the recent take-over of Morrill hall on the Minneapolis campus.

Dr. Moos recalled in detail all of the events preceding, during and following the incident on the main campus of our largest state educational institution. He pointed out that the university administration did not capitulate to the demands of a few militant students, but rather, generally, agreed to study their so-called three-point program of demands.

A special investigative commission was named this week by Dr. Moos to study all of the events surrounding the incident. I have received a number of letters concerning the university problem, and I certainly hope that this investigative group will fix responsibility for the take-over of Morrill hall just as soon as possible.

Several legislative measures are being contemplated following this incident at the University of Minnesota. One proposed law would make it a gross misdemeanor for anyone to seize or damage a public building in any way. Another measure of which I am a co-author is being considered to deny state scholarships to students participating in acts of violence, or rather recklessness, of the type displayed on the main campus of the university.

In an opinion this week, Attorney General Douglas M. Head indicated that the last day of the 120-day legislative session this year will be Monday, May 26. The last day that bills may be introduced in either the senate or the house without the written permission of the governor is Monday, April 21. Also, Head ruled that Saturday, May 24, is the last day that bills may be enacted into law by either the state senate or house.

The first measure dealing with the problem of tax exempt property was introduced on Tuesday, January 21. Authored by Representative Ernie Lindstrom of Richfield, this measure provides that property owned by school districts, private schools, colleges and the like that is not used directly for public education, is subject to taxation. I am sure that this measure will come under very close scrutiny by the members of the Legislature.

CAPITOL COMMENT

by Marty McGowen

By Marty McGowen

Finances are always the major problem of any legislative session in Minnesota. Last session the billion dollar barrier was broken in the total budget approved, so holding the total under that amount is no longer a concern. Nor is anybody predicting the budget can be held under that figure anymore.

At the federal level it is defense and related matters that consume three-fourths of the budget. In Minnesota it is education that gobbles up three-fourths of the total appropriations. This means paying for all levels of education from kindergarten through graduate school.

Biggest jump in education expenses came a few years ago when the state assumed responsibility for junior colleges. Previously they had been like 13th and 14th years of high school, with the costs paid by local school districts. With the change in attitude that higher education should be uniform throughout the state, this expense became a state responsibility.

Enrollment at junior colleges has been zooming. Enrollment at state colleges has been growing even faster. Another major boost in the education cost came with the authorization for a new state college at Marshall. This year the new chancellor of the state college system, Dr. G. Theodore Mitau, has been making hard-hitting pitches for doubling the state college appropriation from $44 million to $88 million. He made an appeal to a senate committee last week and said that if the legislature cut $30 million off this request—which was done last session—it would be tragic.

That kind of request is indicative of what is happening to the budget this session. Greatest single bite of all comes in the equalization aid for elementary and secondary education. Last session the legislature appropriated $499,802,617 which provided about 47 per cent support for current operating expenses of all school districts. If the same formula is used this session the added enrollment statewide would require an appropriation of $558,063,597, which is a $58 million boost right there.

There have been some suggestions that the state move even higher by providing 50 per cent support of current expenses. Some have topped that by saying the 50 per cent support should also include debt service and capitol outlay, which have not been included in the past. That would push the equalization aid cost well over $600 million—which was the appropriation for all education costs just two sessions ago.

The University of Minnesota came in for a severe grilling by the governor in pre-session presentations of budget requests. Some of the salary and building requests did not meet with much favor and are likely to be scrutinized equally as closely by the legislature. The answer of university officials is that undergraduate education is being assumed by other institutions and the university is getting more graduate students, who cost more to educate.

On a related matter, student protests, taking over university buildings and damaging university records and property do not make rural, conservative legislators feel very kindly toward university appropriations.

If all requests by all departments of state government were lumped together and appropriated the budget would skyrocket 50 per cent from 12 billion to $1½ billion. The scaling down which was proposed by the governor and which will be followed by the legislature should result in an increase of slightly more than 10 per cent, or an additional $100 million to $150 million.

How this will be paid is the next question. The governor has ruled out any increases in the sales tax, but the legislature paid no heed to him when they adopted the sales tax last session. The chief executive has suggested an increase in the income tax and legislators are not happy about that. Whatever is done will not make either the governor or the legislature popular with the voters, who will ballot on both about 18 months after the current session adjourns.

February 17 Is Deadline To File Taxes on Farms

If no estimated tax return was filed, and some part of the tax prepaid, the final date for farm operators to file for 1968 is Monday, February 17 (the 15th is on Saturday).

Farmers who filed estimates and paid part of the 1968 tax in advance have their filing date extended to on or before Tuesday, April 15, according to George O. Lethert, district director of Internal revenue.

These filing rules apply to those who receive two-thirds of their gross income from farming operations.

Former Resident Named To St. Paul Arts Council

Appointment of Mrs. Wayne B. Levorson, formerly of Thief River Falls and now of Cottage Grove, as assistant director of the St. Paul council of arts and sciences was announced today by Orley R. Taylor, president of the cultural organization.

Taylor said that Mrs. Levorson will be primarily concerned with administrative duties, allowing the director, Marlow G. Burt, to concentrate on the development of the council and its various programs.

"A major part of Mrs. Levorson's responsibility will involve the annual arts and science fund drive," Taylor aid. "This united campaign over the years has grown into a major project involving hundreds of thousands of dollars and scores of volunteer workers and now demands constant planning and administration."

Mrs. Levorson joined the council in 1962 as a part-time fund secretary and became full-time secretary in 1964. In 1965 she was promoted to administrative assistant of the council. She has been associated with three executive directors of the organization in these capacities.

The council of arts and sciences includes the science museum, St. Paul Opera association, Schubert club, St. Paul Philharmonic society and St. Paul art center.

Mrs. Levorson, daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Levorson of Thief River Falls, was featured recently in a story by Carol Fyrand in the St. Paul Pioneer Press. The feature story follows:

The St. Paul Council of Arts and Sciences was just a fledgling when Mrs. Wayne B. Levorson joined it about seven years ago.

Responding to an ad landed her a part-time position as secretary for the organization. She went to work in the courthouse, because the new building was still a dream then.

"I stayed here as a fixture and worked my way up," she remarked in a matter-of-fact manner. And work her way up she did—right next to the top. She has been appointed assistant director of the council.

Mrs. Levorson claims to be no great authority on the arts, but traces her interest back to her Belgian childhood, where "there were no babysitters so from the time you started to walk, you attended operas and concerts." She admitted that these ventures often turned into serenades to slumber by for the young folk, but still they were exposed to culture in strong doses.

The Jitterbugging craze swept the continent when she was a teen-ager and for a while she "forgot opera and went that route."

"But" she continued, "it sticks with you and after a while, you're back, because you have liking and appreciation for it."

MRS. WAYNE B. LEVORSON formerly of Thief River Falls, has been appointed assistant director of the St. Paul council of arts and sciences. Born in Antwerp, Belgium, she married a United States Army sergeant, Wayne B. Levorson, and the couple lived in Thief River Falls following his discharge in 1946.

School Board Presents Major Changes in Education Policy

Context of Board Policies Listed As Presented

Following is the full context of the policies adopted by the Thief River Falls board of education last Tuesday evening and presented to the teachers' negotiating council Wednesday (A chart showing the criteria for advancement, and the salary guide, are published at the right):

The Board of Education in making this proposal is convinced that the most pervasive educational problem facing school district 564 is the need for improving instructional techniques and processes within the economic restrictions that are imposed by the district's fiscal resources. Therefore, the following imperatives are evident:

1. The climate of the district's schools must be better organized for innovation.

2. There must be an increasing emphasis on both the basic and applied educational research.

3. The school system must employ continuously the results of cost analysis in order to allocate effectivey the district's resources distinguishing among the programs of high priority and low priority to ensure a continued high quality of education.

4. A change in the attendance and instructional pattern is necessary since yesterday's school is not meeting today's educational program.

It is evident that the future of our school district depends, in large part, on whether we can in educational practice and policy attain goals demanded by a space aged society and still make allowance for change and experimentation. Both change and experimentation must be so designed to protect our youth from experimental failure; any success that is to be achieved will be evident only if we can

8 Hour Day and 12 Month Year Are Included

Educational policies and salary proposal for the 1969-70 school year were presented from the Thief River Falls board of education Wednesday evening to the local teachers' negotiating council. The policies, adopted by the board in special session the previous evening after three years of study and experimentation, represent a significant departure from the previously general school year.

Adopted Tuesday and presented to the teachers' group Wednesday, the policies and salary schedule comprise the board's counter proposal to the salary schedule presented by the teachers January 8. That initial index schedule asked an increase in base salary from $6,000 to $7,600. The board's proposal is that the minimum salary remain at the $6,000 figure.

Educational policies adopted by the board are not considered negotiable, although state law requires negotiation on economic matters. In essence, the policies adopted and presented include the following:

(1) Students' school year will be increased to 38 weeks, with Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter recess periods to remain the same.

(a) Opening date of school for the 1969-70 school year will be Sept. 2, 1969, and closing date will be June 13, 1970.

(2) Teachers' contractual year will be a 12-month assignment,

(3) Teachers' working day will be established at eight hours, exclusive of the lunch period—8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

(4) Two weeks of vacation will be scheduled for all teachers. In addition, there will be nine additional non-working days including holidays and convention days.

(5) The single-salary schedule will be discontinued.

(6) The following system of professional compensation will be instituted:

(a) Probationary teacher — A teacher new to the system and not having tenure under Minnesota law.

(b) Career teacher — Three classes, each to be determined by education and degree of competence in the teaching field as recommended by fellow teachers (peers) and approved by the supervisory staff.

(7) Instructional program will be reconstructed, with ungraded elementary schools and full flexible scheduling in the junior and senior high school. It was estimated by the board that this change would allow a reduction of 15 per cent—approximately 20 teachers—in the teaching staff.

Sunsdahl and Lillevold Vows Spoken at Trinity

Evergreen trees trimmed with colored lights graced the chancel at Trinity Lutheran church in this city on Saturday, December 28, at 7:30 p.m., for the wedding of Miss Susan Virginia Sunsdahl and Bruce M. Lillevold.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sunsdahl of Goodridge and Mr. and Mrs. Tormner Lillevold of Grygla.

Rev. Gary Olson, pastor of the Grygla Lutheran parish, officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar flanked by spiral candelabra with red tapers. On either side were evergreen trees trimmed with blue lights and at either end of the chancel were similar trees trimmed in multicolored lights.

Miss Barbara Magnuson, a friend of the bride, was organist. She played the traditional nuptial selections and also accompanied Mrs. Jack Ulrich, a sister of the bride, as she sang, "One Hand, One Heart", "Prayer Perfect" and "The Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white satin floor-length gown styled with a yoke and long tapered sleeves of lace, reembroidered with pearls and sequins. Matching lace appliques enhanced with seed pearls and sequins were scattered across the skirt. Lace edged the skirt and full peacock train that flowed back in cathedral length from soft folds at the yoke. Her headpiece composed of three roses on a petaled base, etched with pearls, held her veil of silk illusion. She carried an arm bouquet of six long-stemmed red roses accented with greens and a green velvet ribbon. Her diamond and pearl pendant with matching earrings were gifts from the groom.

Serving the bride as her personal attendant was Mrs. Bob Bendickson of Thief River Falls.

Miss Susan Vigen of Grygla, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Miss Diane Hackett of Bemidji, a friend of the couple, Miss LuAnn Lillevold of Grygla, a sister of the groom, and Mrs. Jean Lane of Thief River Falls, a friend of the bride.

All were attired in floor-length gowns of red moire faille designed with slightly scooped neckline and above the elbow sleeves. Pleated trim edged the wrap-around skirts that were secured in back at the side. Three red fabric roses held their short veils. To complete their attire, all wore red satin shoes, single strand pearl necklaces and carried three long-stemmed white roses with greens and a green satin ribbon. Their white golves were gifts from the bride. The gowns worn by the bride and her attendants were made by the mother of the bride and Mrs. Selmer Ramsey.

Little Becky Ulrich of Caledonia, a niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her white floor-length gown, styled like the bride's gown only without the train, was fashioned by her mother, Mrs. Jack Ulrich. In her white basket trimmed with white lace, she carried red roses and white carnatins. Tim Odegard of Pine City, a cousin of the bride, carried the rings on a satin heart-shaped pillow edged with lace. His pillow as well as the basket carried by the flower girl, were made by the mother of the bride.

Duane Lillevold of Bemidji attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were SN. G. Jack Sunsdahl of San Diego, Calif., brother of the bride; Gary Lillevold of Minneapolis, brother of the groom and John Holthusen of Grygla, a friend. Serving as ushers were Jack Ulrich of Caledonia, brother-in-law of the bride; Dennis Odegaard of Pine City, cousin of the bride, and Allan Morken of Grygla and Dale Lindberg of Minneapolis, cousins of the groom. The groom and his attendants wore black tuxedos with a red and white rose boutonniere, respectively. The ushers were attired in dark business suits with white carnation boutonniers.

The mother of the bride was attired in a blue dress knit in a patterned effect. Complementing her attire, she wore a matching blue hat, white gloves and a corsage of red roses surrounded by white carnations.

The mother of the groom wore a beige knit dress styled with long sleeves. Matching braid trimmed the high neckline and sleeves. Royal blue accessories and a corsage of white roses and red carnations, completed her attire.

Attending the wedding as special guests were Mrs. Mabel Brattell of Holt, grandmother of the groom, and Knute Sunsdahl of Thief River Falls, grandfather of the bride.

A reception in the church parlors was given by the parents of the bride with Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sunsdahl of Hoyt Lakes, uncle and aunt of the bride, as host and hostess. Mrs. Paul Nelson, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book while Mrs. Gary Lillevold, sister-in-law of the groom, and Miss Elaine Anderson, cousin of the groom, served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a six tiered wedding cake trimmed with miniature wedding bells tipped in red and green. Topping the two upper tiers, which were separated by Grecian pillars, was a miniature bridal party descending a stairway. At the base of the cake was an open Bible cake trimmed with red and inscribed with the words, "God's Blessing". Surrounding the cake were poinsettias and holly. The cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Ernest Ulrich of Red Lake Falls was cut and served by Mrs. John Gehrls, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Curtis Lindberg, aunt of the groom, as Mrs. Morgan Moen and Mrs. Emil Boyum, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively, poured.

Distributing the groom's cake were Miss Jacqueline Ulrich, niece of the bride, and Miss Kim Adam, cousin of the bride. Julie Hagen and Gloria Skreland friends of he bride, served the bridal table with Sandra Sanders, JoyAnn Sanders, Vicki Korf and Mary Sunsdahl, all cousins of the bride, serving as waitresses. The gifts were opened and displayed by Mrs. Gary Bruggeman and Miss Kaye Smith, friends of the couple.

Relatives and friends attending were from San Diego, Calif.; Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Pine City, Warren, Holt, Minneapolis, Bemidji, Caledonia, Red Lake Falls and Biwabik.

Teacher Turnover Is Below Median Here

Although statistically not significant from year to year, the rate of teacher turnover in Minnesota's public schools show a persistent increase.

This fact is evident in the 13th "Teacher Turnover in Minnesota Public Schools, School Year 1967-68"—a study conducted by the research department of the Minnesota Education association (MEA). The study is done annually.

The study just released shows, according to research director Robert S. Reed, a median (half above and half below) turnover rate of 14.7 per cent, which compares with 14.4 per cent the previous year.

According to the report, teacher turnover in Thief River Falls for 1967-68 was 9.5 per cent, well under the 14.7 median. The report listed 78 men and 80 women on the faculty with five men and 10 women leaving for the 1967-68 school year.

Percentages of teachers leaving other school districts include: Baudette, 20 per cent; Bemidji, 6.3 per cent; Crookston, 15.4 per cent; Detroit Lakes, 13.3 per cent; East Grand Forks, 20.7 per cent; Erskine, 38.9 per cent; Gonvick, 5 per cent; Greenbush, 18.2 per cent; Karlstad, 31 per cent; Lancaster 43.8 per cent; Middle River, 19.0 per cent; Moorhead, 9.6 per cent; Oklee, 22.7 per cent; Plummer, 47.1 per cent; Red Lake Falls, 17.1 per cent; Roseau, 7.5 per cent; Strandquist, 30.8 per cent; Warren, 14.0 per cent; and Warroad 14.3 per cent.

The general trend for the decade preceding showed a continuing decrease.

(Teacher turnover is defined as creation of a vacancy in a school system as a result of a teacher leaving the district.)

"With regard to elementary and secondary teachers," Reed explains, "The same general patterns as for the previous year held true. That is, with secondary teachers the pattern shows a smaller rate of turnover and for elementary teachers there is a slightly larger rate of turnover in the larger districts.

"The percent of turnover for all secondary teachers was 17 per cent and for all elementary teachers it was 10.8 per cent."

The overall turnover rate for men teachers was 12.9 per cent (down slightly from 13.5 per cent) and for women it was 14.9 per cent (up slightly from 14.5 per cent.)

This year's study again looked at teaching experience, Reed reports. "It was found that there is a relationship between district size and the number of years experience in the district for men teachers leaving: men teachers leaving the smaller school districts have less experience in that district than they do in the larger school districts."

The distribution pattern of teachers retiring, Reed continues, is approximately the same as the previous year in that "there is a very small number of men retiring compared with the number of women. The total number of teachers retiring was approximately the same as in the preceding report, but—because fewer schools responded for the current report—it appears that the number of teachers retiring is higher."

Information in the just-released study is based on responses from 385 school districts—more than 80 per cent of those contacted.

7th Dist. DFL Sets Committee At Convention

A watchdog committee was formed when county chairmen and chairwomen of the DFL from 13 of the 23 counties of the Seventh Congressional district of Minnesota met in Detroit Lakes on January 26.

Purpose of the committee will be to scrutinize the current voting record of incumbent Rep. Odin Langen. This will be done throughout 1969 so that the congressman's voting record will have been before the public for the entire two year period, so there will be no misunderstanding as to how he stands on the issues, a convention report said.

Other topics under discussion included the possibility of lowering the voting age to 18 and organization of a YDFL.

Permanent location of the state DFL office was also announced. A building was purchased by the organization and located at 730 E. 38th street in Minneapolis. The former offices at 1637 Hennepin are being vacated.

Seat belts fastened snugly, holding their wearers securely in place, can prevent the majority of "second collision" injuries and fatalities, says the Minnesota AAA.

Board Policies Presented To Teacher Council

continue to try new and revolutionary ideas. The heart of any program of school improvement will require reconstruction of instructional staffs, instructional patterns and school organization. The introduction of a lengthened school year, term teaching, flexible scheduling, differentiated teaching functions, new technology and flexible salary schedules will not only offer the opportunity to elicit better education at a lower cost but will result in greater individualization of instruction.

Individualized instruction geared to the individual's interests, abilities and learning rate have long been the goals of our school system. However, progress in this direction has been slow with the principal effort made in the reduction of the pupil-teacher ratio. Even though this trend has been pursued to a point, any continued reduction in the pupil-teacher ratio with the maintenance of traditional instructional practices will put a serious drain on the physical and economic resources of the school district.

Emperical research suggests that the utilization of technological aids and equipment, revised instructional processes and the greater use of para-professionals should reduce professional teacher requirements approximately 15 per cent. Assessing the present teaching staff, K-12, it would follow that reduction of some 20 teachers may be anticipated. Thus, it appears that the key to achieving effectiveness in our educational process lies in increasing the productivity of the individual teacher.

A basic premise in the prologue of this overture is the promulgation of a lengthened school year as a means of furthering individualized instruction and increasing teaching productivity. Therefore it has been established by the Board of Education that all teachers employed by Independent School District 564, effective the school year 1969-70, be placed on a 12-month contract and on an eight-hour working day. Two weeks annual vacation shall be scheduled for teaching personnel. Summer assignments shall be made on the basis of classroom needs, tutorial needs, in-service requirements, research and evaluation activities.

CALENDAR FOR THE SCHOOL YEAR 1969-70

Teachers report for duty, August 25, 1969; Opening day of regular school term, September 2, 1969; Closing day of regular school term June 13, 1970; Opening day for summer school classes, June 15, 1970; Closing day for summer school classes, July 31, 1970.

Month of school term, number of days per month, number of non-working days and total working days are listed respectively:

August, 1969, 5 days, 0 non-working days and 5 total working days; September, 22, 1 and 21; October, 23, 2 and 21; November 20, 1 and 19; December 23, 1 and 22; January, 1970, 22, 1 and 21; February, 20, 0 and 20; March 22, 1 and 21; April 22, 0 and 22; May 21, 1 and 20; June 22, 0 and 22, July 23, 1 and 22; and August 16, 0 and 16.

The single salary schedule and the equalization of teacher loads in our opinion, are definite weaknesses of public education. It appears that professional teachers are not paid professional salaries because they remain lock stepped in a single salary schedule along with their less proficient associates. We also recognize the need for a change in salary policy since it is evident that our citizens are adverse to continue increasing salaries at an inordinate pace for both the less competent and the highly capable on an equal basis.

It is also of great concern to the Board of Education that if this present trend is continued the competent will leave the field of education and seek compensation elsewhere in accordance with their ability. Thus it is imperative that a salary schedule be developed based on a broader objective than a single stratum of income which is determined by two major factors; training and experience.

We therefore propose that salary planning for Independent School District 564 turn away from the single salary concept to one that meets the demands of reshaped educational practice where differential assignment and differential pay are obligatory. This plan will provide a clear distinction between career teachers, probationary teachers, part time professionals and those who are in the profession as a temporary measure. Specific teaching assignments will be identified with a teaching task analysis and role clarification coupled with teaching effectiveness and attitude to realize the total goal of professional remuneration.

The implementation of this principle for determining salary increments along with the changes in the instructional plan will require this first year's schedule to be somewhat traditional in order to make the transition from the single salary concept to one that will be job orientated. The schedule will encompass only those who are classified as certified professionals and will not include teacher aids. The schedule is divided into three major task categories: PROBATIONAL TEACHERS, CAREER TEACHERS and MASTER TEACHERS. Career teachers, for classification, will be divided into three subdivisions; Class I, Class II, and Class III. Salary levels developed will apply to the school year 1969-70 only and will be amended in future years through professional task evaluation by peer colleagues and team leaders (Master Teachers) and-or approved study.

PROBATIONARY TEACHERS — Recent graduates of an accredited institution of higher learning with a minimum of a Bachelor's Degree and fully certified by the State of Minnesota. Teachers in this classification are on probation for a period of two years according to State Statute.

CAREER TEACHERS—

Class I—Teachers in this class are fully certified and possess a minimum of a B.A. Degree with a maximum of fifteen quarter hours of approved study. They have completed successfully their probationary period as defined by statute. They are responsible for the learning program as directed by their master teacher.

Class II—Career teachers under this classification are fully certified with a B.A. Degree plus 30-45 additional quarter hours of approved study. They will assist the probationary teachers in their team to become fully orientated under the direction of the master teacher or team leader.

Class III—Teachers in this classification must have attained at least an M.A. Degree in their teaching field. It will be their responsibility to assist the team leaders in developing instructional programs and standards. They will also assist Class I and II teachers in their program of professional development.

MASTER TEACHER — Full responsibility for the learning program in assigned area. This teacher shall assume the role of team leader and shall direct or assist probationary teachers on their team. This teacher should possess full certification and a minimum of an M.A. Degree in a teaching field.

Sick Leave—An allowance of twelve days shall be permitted for illness of the teacher, to be available at any time during the school year. Four of the twelve days may be used for illness or death in the immediate family or for personal emergency. Immediate family shall include father, mother, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother, sister, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, children, wife or husband. Sick leave not used may accumulate to 130 days.

Professional Growth — Each teacher with less than a Master's Degree shall be required to earn a minimum of nine quarter hours of approved study every four years in order to qualify for contract renewal. All advanced study shall be part of a planned program in the individual's major teaching field.

Extra - Curricular Pay Schedule — The pay scale for extra curricular activities shall be abolished effective July 1, 1969.

Compensation for College Credits—The following provision shall be deleted effective July 1, 1969:

The Board of Education shall re-imburse the teacher for the nine quarter credits earned every four years at actual cost not to exceed the tuition fee at a Minnesota State College for nine quarter credits.

School Board Presents Major Policy Changes

(8) The salary schedule for extra curricular duties would be abolished.

"The board of education, in adopting the above policies, recognizes that teachers should be compensated at a professional level related to their ability in their chosen field of endeavor," stated Dr. George Martin, president of the board of education. "The taxpayer should be assured of the maximum return for every dollar he has invested in education since he has, up to the present, supported the program of public instruction at a higher level than was evident in many like communities."

Following adoption of the policies Tuesday, the board instructed its negotiating team to proceed on the basis of these policies and to present the guide for professional salaries to the teachers' council.

Presenting segments of the policies and salary schedule Wednesday evening were Supt. L. M. Johnson, Dr. Martin and G. L. Charlson, chief negotiator and school board attorney.

Next negotiating meeting was set for Wednesday, February 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the superintendent's office.

Prior to presenting the proposal on policies and salaries, the board's representatives refused to discuss written policies at the present time, except to grant the teachers' council request that sick leave be extended to teachers after age 65 on a regular basis but would be non-accumulative.

Former Resident Named To Arts Council Post

She was a secretary for a U. S. Army officer during World War II when she met her future husband, Sgt. Wayne B. Levarson. In 1946 Levarson brought his war bride back to the States and set up housekeeping in Thief River Falls. After 11 years of civilian life he rejoined the military and moved his family to the Twin Cities.

The Levorsons live at 303 Ash St., Cottage Grove. "In the suburbs, but close enough so the children can be exposed to facets of the arts if they so wish," Mrs. Levorson said. There are seven Levorson children, ranging in age from 8 to 21 years.

And, while mom's away, the children can't play—at least not all the time. "The teen-age daughters kind of rule the roost," Mrs. Levorson said. "They dish out jobs to the smaller ones. But each knows what he is supposed to do and knows he has to do it."

It wouldn't be a bit different if Mom were home all the time either. She's a firm believer in having children do their share of the household chores. "It teaches them a sense of responsibility," she said.

Most of her efforts for the council will be wrapped up in the annual fund drive, which begins in mid-April. "It's my No. 1 responsibility," she declared, then commented that this allows the council director (Marlow Burt) to concentrate on developing the council and council programs and bring them to public attention.

The volunteers are the key to fund raising success, she believes. "We may lay the groundwork for them to make their calls, but they actually do the fundraising. If you build up a good crew, your biggest problems are over," She estimates that about 600 volunteers are involved with the council efforts.

"Of course, you have to see that they get the right materials," she noted. "We always have to tell the public what our member agencies are going to do, like new programming, better programming.

"People like to know where their money is spent," she continued. Budget hearings are an essential prerequisite to launching a fund drive, garnering all the bits and pieces of information so Mrs. Levorson's staff can pull it all together in a presentable package.

As she gets more involved in her new position, she would like to spend more time on research to help the council expand its base in residential areas. She observed "We are always trying to get council programs better known, to get the cause through to those who are removed from the downtown area and don't know we're here."

Funeral Services Held Today For Alma Gilbertson

Miss Alma Gilbertson, 82, a longtime resident of this city, died Thursday a Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Miss Alma Gilbertson were held today (Monday) at Trinity Lutheran church where she was a charter member. Rev. Reuben Wangberg officiated at the services. Mrs. William Jensen was the soloist and Mrs. Carl Nordvall, organist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Fred Protz, Miles Jackson, Conrad Jenson, Einar Barstad, Robert Larson and Charles Emmanuel.

Miss Alma Gilbertson was born Sept. 3, 1886 in Rothsay and at the age of five years came to this city with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Gilbertson. Two years later, in 1893, her father, together with a number of other pioneers, founded the Skandinavian Evangelical church, which later merged, becoming a part of Trinity Lutheran church. She attended school here and following a business course at Crookston, she worked for some time as a secretary.

In 1968, during the 75th anniversary year of Trinity Lutheran church, Miss Gilbertson was honored as one of its charter members.

Her only survivors are a number of nieces and nephews. Included among them are Mrs. Walter Larson and Charles Shirley, both of Thief River Falls.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by two brothers and three sisters.

Grade Students To Draw Horses For Art Awards

Grade school students in 65 cities and towns in the Red River Valley winter shows area have been invited to participate in a drawing contest. Subject of this art work must include horses in some form. Gene Miller, route 1, Crookston, chairman of the contest, indicated that over 7,000 drawings will be submitted if the pattern of past years is repeated.

This contest has been conducted at winter shows time for a number of years, but not continuously due to the problem of getting a sponsoring organization. This year the grade school teachers will do some preliminary sorting and eliminating before the final pictures are sent to the judges. The top six drawings in the area, one from each grade, will receive a prize of five dollars each. A special award is also indicated for the best picture from opportunity room contestants in the area.

Water colors, paint and other media may be used. However, pictures must be only 8½ x 11 inches in size.

F. Falls Hosts Meet on Relief Service in Area

Families from the Times area who are caring for a mentally retarded individual in their homes are invited to attend a luncheon meeting at 12 noon at the Fergus Falls state hospital on Saturday. Purpose of the meeting is to discuss the possible need for a parental relief service for northwestern Minnesota families who are caring for a retarded child or adult in their home.

Such a parental relief service would involve taking the retarded individual out of the home for short periods of time, which might range from several days to a month. During these periods, the rest of the family would have the opportunity to take a much-needed vacation or to make the necessary adjustments during times of parental illness or other family emergencies.

Admissions for parental relief to the hospital would probably be handled on an informal basis with a minimum of delay and admission red tape. During such periods of hospitalization, the retarded child or adult could be enrolled in a short term educational program designed to develop better self-care habits in such areas as toilet training and personal grooming.

Meeting at the Fergus Falls state hospital is being sponsored by the Otter Tail county association for retarded children. Program chairman Guy E. Worden of Fergus Falls is a past member of the governor's planning council on mental retardation and the state board of directors of the Minnesota association for retarded children.

Parents who are planning to attend the meeting should write in advance to Guy Worden, Route 2, Fergus Falls, Minnesota 56537.

Research Raises Pork Value by $100 Million

Research and development resulting to meatier hogs increased earnings in the pork industry at least $100 million in the past decade, according to Eugene Allen, meats scientist at the University of Minnesota.

Allen compared the value of a 1958 hog, which averaged over 31 pounds of lard, and the average hog marketed in 1967, which decreased to about 25 pounds of lard. If this 1958 pig with the six pounds of excess lard had been marketed in 1967, a net loss of $1.18 per pig or a total of about $100 million would have resulted, according to Allen's calculations.

Per capita pork consumption would probably be much lower today without these meatier hogs, resulting in a loss of many times the $100 million figure, Allen adds.

Allen points out that research and selection over the past 20 years have resulted in the lard production per pig being cut in half. In 1948, lard production per pig was about 50 pounds, and in 1967 this figure was less than 25 pounds.

To demonstrate what breeding research can accomplish, Allen cites a USDA experiment which covered 12 generations of hogs. The control group started with 1.5 inches of backfat. One group of hogs in the experiment was selected for high backfat, and averaged 2.34 inches after 12 generations, while the group that was selected for low backfat averaged 1.11 inches.

Allen says the new pork carcass grading system is another step to reward producers who produce meaty hogs with more retail value. The revised grading standards place more emphasis on muscling to relation to carcass length or weight than had been the case with previous standards.

How To Cure Water Closet Tank Sweating

When your bathroom temperature is considerably higher than that of the water in your water closet tank, "sweating" of the tank often results. There are several ways to cure this condition, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. One involves the use of a special valve which permits warm water to mix with the cold before it enters the tank. Another is a special liner that forms insulation between the incoming cold water and the warmer china tank. You can also buy water closets with insulation already built into them. Your plumbing contractor will be glad to supply details.

Workers Needed To Staff Summer Camps, Resorts

Minnesota state employment service has opened its annual campaign to recruit approximately 1,500 people to staff the camps for the upcoming season.

George J. Vavoulis, commissioner of the Minnesota department of employment security, said approximately 500 requests already have been received for maintenance personnel.

Young people 19 years of age or older with two years of college and camping or other recreational experience are being sought as camp counselors, Vavoulis said. Also in demand are people with Red Cross life saving certificates or water safety instruction certificates.

There will be openings for nurses, dieticians and office keepers and maintenance men, waitresses and cabin girls, dock boys and lifeguards, boatmen and guides and laundry workers, Vavoulis said.

In addition to camp counselors instructors are needed for such things as swimming, riding, sailing, nature craft, arts and crafts, canoeing, music, athletics, gun handling and other camp-related skills and activities, Vavoulis said.

Persons interested in summer work should apply early, Vavoulis said, because most of the jobs will be filled during the next few months.

Applications are being taken at all state employment service offices throughout the state. People in this area may contact the employment office in Thief River Falls.

Snowplow Crews Warn of Danger To Children

Maintenance crews plowing snow from the Minnesota trunk highways are gravely concerned as they go about such duties lest they strike a child playing in the snowdrifts, or standing close to a highway, according to John H. Swanberg, deputy commissioner of Minnesota highways.

Scores of highway snowplow operators have had close experiences as the swirling snows kicked up by the plow blades create a blizzard condition which makes it extremely difficult to see a tot standing or playing nearby. It was almost impossible to see the children, one driver reported, until he had passed them.

The drivers, Swanberg said, request that parents watch their children carefully while snowplowing is being done, especially in rural areas. Swanberg strongly urged parents to instruct children to stand back at such times at least 30 feet in driveways as they wait for school buses, to avoid playing or sliding along snowbank ridges, burrowing into the snowbanks or playing in cardboard boxes that might be struck by a snowplow.

A Challenge Presented

Presented by the Thief River Falls board of education to the teachers' negotiating council Wednesday evening, the counter-proposal to the requests of the teachers offers a real challenge. It is a new concept which has been under study and partial implementation in the local system for several years. While it is a wide departure from the existing system, it is an exciting change—one of the few major advancements in educational procedure for many years.

In adopting a 12-month schedule with an eight-hour day in the place of employment, the board has created a situation whereby teachers are placed on a par with other professionals holding a bachelor's degree or higher degree. Although the classroom days for students will not be significantly changed at the present, the faculty will be required to be "on the job" during the full 12-month period (excepting a two-week vacation period and nine non-working holidays and convention days).

This time, when regular classes would not be in session, would be devoted to a number of things for professional improvement. Among these are curriculum training for teachers in their chosen educational fields, lesson and materials preparation and evaluation, summer school programs, tutoring and research. With a professional attitude toward the profession of education, teachers should welcome this innovation.

The abbreviated school term, with its summer period devoid of classes, was developed in an agricultural society where students were needed for farm work during the seeding, growing and harvesting season. Obviously, this has been vastly changed by mechanization and urbanization over the years. The school term has not kept pace with this change, however, and as a result, 25 per cent of school facilities have been utterly wasted because of the three-month period of summer dormancy.

We can think of a number of reasons why the new 12-month program should be received with enthusiasm. Let us mention some of them as they relate to:

The Students—Non-graded elementary school and full modular or flexible scheduling in the secondary school will improve quality of education. Students will be given the benefit of more individualized instruction, encouragement and opportunity to advance to the extent of their abilities, and the chance to expand their education in particular fields of interest. As a result, they will be better prepared for entrance to college or fields of work.

The Teachers—Educators will have greater opportunity to develop the material for the subjects they teach. Team teaching will permit teachers with exceptional abilities in particular subject areas to utilize these abilities fully. Classroom teachers will become more involved in planning the overall programs in their fields. A comprehensive in-service training program will make it possible to obtain further education for credit advancement on a convenient basis. And an exceptional teacher will be recognized by his or her peers, administration and board of education for exceptional teaching.

The Taxpayers—Tax dollars spent for teachers' salaries would be buying equitable full-time annual employment. Expensive school buildings would have greater utilization immediately, and likely full utilization within a few years. Need for additional construction because of increased enrollment would be lessened through flexible scheduling and possible staggered terms. Economies can be effected in school operation through implementation of the 12-month program.

These are but some of our thoughts on the board's counter proposal.

There is one major consideration we have not mentioned, but its importance is apparent. That is the salary schedule state law, that item is to be negotiated by representatives of the school board and the faculty. Third negotiating meeting will be held on Wednesday evening this week.

In our opinion, salary proposals presented to date by the teachers' council and the board of education are both unrealistic. Some area of common ground must be reached through the process of negotiation, and we suppose that both sides have an equal understanding of this. It is no more realistic to expect the teachers to accept last year's base under the board's proposal than it is to expect the board to approve the 41 per cent salary increase asked by the teachers. Offers and counter offers must progress toward that common ground.

As a sidelight, it is interesting to see how the winds of discussion change with the issue. Last year, teachers stressed a necessary increase to bring salaries into line with ANNUAL salaries of other professions with similar educational requirements. This was in spite of the nine-month contracts issued to most teachers in the local system.

Now, with the 12-month annual contract proposed, teacher representatives expressed concern about a "salary cut" due to the longer term. They reason that the salary negotiated last year was for a nine-month contract, and the summer months were used to earn supplementary income. Therefore, a 12-month teaching term eliminates the opportunity for a summer job.

There seems to be some inconsistency here, but it is entirely understandable. Nobody would want to work 12 months for the same figure he or she could receive in nine months. The question is: Was the argument for an ANNUAL salary last year valid, in veiw of nine months of work? And with an annual contract currently in force, is there validity in the contention that 12 months work under that annual contract is unfair?

We have been impressed with the decorum of negotiating sessions to date, and would like to compliment the teachers' council and school board representatives for the high plane of their discussion. Continuance of this type of negotiating is sure to bring a mutually satisfactory settlement.

Lower Voting Age?

There is considerable agitation throughout the country for reducing the legal voting age from 21 to 18 years. One of the main points of logic put forth in the controversy is: 'Old enough to fight, old enough to vote." The idea is that a person who can be compelled to serve in the armed services of his country should be entitled to participate in the government through his vote.

There are some holes in this logic. One, of course, is that females do not face a military obligation, but would be given the same voting rights as males if the voting age is reduced. Another is that a person's physical readiness for military service is in no way directly related to the mental maturity presumed necessary in a voter.

Perhaps a better case could be made for increasing the minimum voting age to, shall we say, 24 years instead of 21. By that time most young people would have completed their formal education and have at least some experience in that harried and hazardous situation called "making a living". And until a person has been exposed to the actuality of that situation, we believe, he or she lacks a certain maturity which a voter should possess.

We would agree to a large extent with the Murray County Herald at Slayton which commented editorially as follows:

Gov. Harold LeVander has indicated he favors reducing the legal voting age from 21 to 18 years in Minnesota. It is our hope that the legislature will not be so inclined.

At what point a youth is mature enough to cast an intelligent ballot is subject to discussion. Maturity is a nebulous thing. There is a wide gray area between the extremes of maturity and immaturity. To reduce the voting age, however, is to increase rather than to decrease the risk involved.

Certainly a larger percentage of 21-year-old youngsters are capable of casting an intelligent ballot than those in the 18-year-old bracket. By the same token, there are more people 25 or 30 years old capable of using mature judgment than there are 21-year-olds.

Today's teen-ager is the product of an affluent society. Necessity has not forced them to follow in the footsteps of their predecessors. They are confronted with the probability of military service, but in many cases not for several years. There is no World War staring them in the face. There are government aids available to insure at least a reasonable chance at a college education. Employment for the teenager of today is, in most cases, more by choice than necessity.

This writer's father used to tell him that when he was 18 he didn't think his father knew very much. By the time he was 21 he couldn't figure out how the old boy had learned so much in only three years.

Let's leave it the way it is.

Letters to the Editor

Well, the "Power of the Press" today, as always, has been proven. You will no doubt recall my writing to you very recently in an attempt to locate one Harold Ray Hanson and one Freda Hanson Ekdahl, both from your fair city. It seems your paper had no more than hit the stands than Freda started receiving calls on my note. Today I had a very nice letter from her. She also forwarded Ray's present address and was to send the clipping to him.

Freda also mentioned a friend here, the Harris Johnsons, with whom I just had a nice conversation. Seems as if Doris Johnson is from Thief River and he is from even farther north. At any rate we had a nice visit and hope to get together and become better acquainted soon.

However, something else unusual happened also this evening. I got a long distance phone call from San Angelo, Texas, from one Mrs. Gibbs, who is a cousin of the Hansons. She had got her copy of The Times so decided to call me and give me the addresses which I was seeking. That was especially nice.

I am very appreciative of your public service in this respect. I know that you often do not receive thanks for things well done as readily as you get knocks for things people object to. So, just wanted to let you know, thanks so much for helping out, as it was 32 years since last we wrote or heard from this family. Would like to send along a little of our sunshine and summer weather in appreciation but that is rather hard to do. Thank you very, very much.

Yours sincerely,
Milt Carlson

Governor LeVander Reports

by Gov. Harold LeVander

During the past days and weeks, I have received a number of letters and calls regarding the recent seizure of the administration building on the main campus of the University of Minnesota.

Most of those who have contacted this office have expressed concern that similar incidents do not occur in the future.

And, many have asked why the governor and the legislature do not exercise more direct control over the activities of the university.

In explanation, I should first point out that the University of Minnesota has established a prestigious record of achievement during the years of its existence. It ranks as one of the foremost institutions of higher education in the United State

To forget in a moment of passion the enormous pride this state can take in its university would be, I believe, a mistake.

But secondly, it should be pointed out that neither the governor nor the legislature actually has any direct control over the university.

The legislature provides funds for the university, but then is powerless to direct their use. The governor is empowered only to safeguard state facilities.

Under our system of government, the operation of the university is the direct obligation of the board of regents who direct the staff and faculty.

As a result of the unfortunate incident, it appear that the university staff has improved relations with minority students. This, I believe, is a goal we all subscribe to.

Along with this, I have made it clear that I believe the university should also determine who is responsible for damage to state properties and establish accountability.

And I have also stated very explicity that I do not believe it is the desire of the people of Minnesota, the staff and faculty of the university, nor the vast percentage of the students at the "U" that such an incident occur again.

As for the state administration, those who have grievances to air against our educational systems must certainly now know that established channels of communication will be the only ones tolerated in the future.

1st Floor Water Closet Should be Quiet

If you're planning the addition of a powder or mud room make sure the water closet you select is a siphon jet. Not only is it easiest to keep clean, it's also the quietest, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says, an especially desirable feature in a first-floor facility.

The monsoon season of last summer has carried over to winter the way it appears at present. We have had continual snow for most of the month of January. It is a problem to find a place to put the snow, therefore I believe someone will have to invent a snow melting machine to eliminate some of the large snow banks and drifts.

A few farmers may have been misinformed in regard to procedure for obtaining a new farm wheat allotment, barley or corn base recently. I would like to correct that information by stating that if you have asked about a feed grain base or wheat allotment previously and did not file for one, please stop at the office at your convenience and discuss the matter with us.

Any farmer who does not have a wheat allotment on any farm he either owns or operates may be eligible for a new farm allotment. I am just stating that you may file a request for a new base or allotment. This does not mean that you will get an allotment or base; however, the possibility is there.

We hope to see every farmer during the signup period. Why not stop in and have one of us figure your possible earnings and benefits for you in the 1969 program. At the same time we can discuss the conservation practices you may be interested in with you.

Booklet on Plumbing Care

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. This old saying is never applied to better advantage than in the case of your plumbing. A booklet that tells you how to practice good maintenance, how to make simple repairs and what jobs should be left to experienced plumbing contractors is available for 25 cents and a 6 cent stamp from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill.

Among other things, the booklet tells you how to repair leaky faucets, the causes and cures of noisy plumbing, how to unplug a drain or stopped-up water closet and how to shut off the water if your pipe develops a leak.

Automatic water conditioning can reduce the homemaker's job load by as much as 50 per cent. It also extends the life of pipe and plumbed-in equipment by eliminating a major cause of corrosion, the Water Conditioning Foundation points out. Another benefit that's often overlooked is the improved taste of tea, coffee and vegetables cooked in water.

Advertising... makes wheels go 'round!

Every day, in great cities and small villages, housewives make out their daily shopping lists from ads in their home-town newspapers.

No hoopla, no ballyhoo. The kids have gone to school, the father to work. The mother of the family — the one responsible for spending most of the family's money — sits down at her kitchen table and carefully decides where she can get the best buys. The information is all there, in the newspaper. The bargain prices, the descriptions, stay there while she makes up her mind, at leisure. Perhaps she will even fold the ad and put it in her purse, if there is any question in her mind about the price or the product.

Advertising is a service which people want. After the New York newspaper strike of 1957, women interviewed in one study said they missed ads most of all features in the newspaper.

Advertising makes the wheels go 'round in our economy. Following the Minneapolis newspaper strike in 1962, economists of the Federal Reserve Bank's Ninth District estimated that the area had lost $58,000,000 in sales.

Advertising makes newspaper wheels go 'round, too. Before the advent of mass advertising, newspapers — always very expensive to produce — had to depend on political parties for support. It has been advertising, honest advertising furnishing a needed service to millions of consumers, that has strengthened the economic base of the American press.

Roseau Rallies to Nip Prowlers 5-2

Thief River Falls Prowler hockey squad jumped to an early 2-0 lead against Roseau on Saturday night on the Rams home ice, only to find the home club coming back with five during the contest and posting a 5-2 win over the local club.

The Rams, who on Tuesday night pulled an upset over the Warroad Warriors and lost to Grand Forks Central on Friday night, found themselves trailing by a 2-0 score with only two and one-half minutes gone in the game on Saturday night.

The Prowlers jumped to a 1-0 lead on a goal by Dana Stromberg at 1:07 on an assist from Roger Lee and Paul Olson. The Prowlers gained their second goal just over a minute later as Rex Ruglaud scored on an assist from Dick Holmes and Ron Burger at 2:27.

The Rams wasted little time in cutting one of the goals back as Kent Langlie tallied at 2:52 on an assist from Earl Anderson, cutting the Prowlers lead to 2-1. With 53 seconds left in the first period, the Rams knotted the game at 2-2 as Rob Harris scored on an assist from Anderson and Langlie.

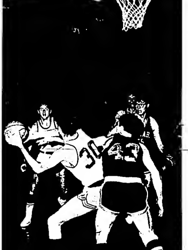
There was only one penalty in the period as the Rams' John Harris was called for interference. Prowler goalie Jerry Owen made seven saves during the period while Rams goalie Mike Kvarnlov had four.

The game remained tied until the Rams' Anderson tallied at 11:17 in the second period to put the Rams ahead to stay at 3-2 as the Prowlers were unable to score in the final two periods of play. Owen had four stops in the second period while Kvarnlov had three.

The final period found the Rams tallying two goals as they took the game in command. In addition to the two goals scored, the Prowler' Owen had to make 11 saves, while Kvarnlov recorded only three for the period.

Tallying goals in the period were Dale Smedan at 1:37 on an assist from John Harris, and Anderson at 10:03 on an assist from Rob Harris.

Next action for the Prowlers will be Tuesday night as they will host Warroad in their final game of the season before moving into Region Eight play. The Prowlers stand 10-7-1 on the season. Region Eight competition will begin the following week with the championship game to be played at Bemidji.



FOULED over the back as he tries to clear the ball from under the basket is Frank Dewey (30) of the Northmen. Fouling Dewey is Dennis Nelson (43) from the Mesabi junior college of Virginia Norsemen. The Norsemen defeated the Northmen on Friday night by a score of 88-82 in the Lincoln high school gymnasium.

Proclaims Feb. As Snowmobile Month at Minn.

Governor Harold LeVander Saturday proclaimed February as "Snowmobile Month" in Minnesota.

He read the proclamation at a meeting at the Central States chapter of the Society of American Travel writers held in St. Paul.

The governor's edict points out that the citizens of Minnesota, snowmobile capital of the world, own and operate more snowmobiles per capita than any other state in the union. Minnesota manufacturers account for more than 37 per cent of the nation's total snowmobile production.

The proclamation emphasizes the fact that snowmobiles and related equipment represent more than $70 million invested in the state's economy. Minnesota is a leader in providing facilities such as more than 3,000 miles of snowmobile trails, and is also a leader in snowmobile racing and organized snowmobile tours.

"In recognition of this new family fun industry," the Governor read, "I do hereby proclaim the month of February, 1969, to be "Snowmobile Month" in Minnesota.

RLF Sportsmen Elect Officers

J. A. Barren was elected president of the Red Lake Falls Sportsmen's club at a recent meeting. Others elected were Walton Guckseter, vice president; Maynard Kolluiokinen, in charge of rifle shoots; Ed Cote, publicity; Adelore Cote, lunch; Al Buse, park; and Dave Nelson and Brent Larson, membership.

To Ask for Bids On Resurfacing Of Highway 59

Senator Norman Larson of Ada was advised by the Minnesota highway department in St. Paul about major resurfacing projects on highway 59. The letter to Senator Larson, read as follows:

"The highway department will take bids on March 28 for the resurfacing of T.H. 59 from Waubun to T.H. 2 near Erskine. This 34-mile resurfacing project will eliminate the hazardous lip curb and drain basins and overlay this section of old concrete surface.

"In June of this year the department will call for bids for resurfacing another 32 miles of T.H. 59 from T.H. 2 to Thief River Falls.

"These projects are part of a statewide program of resurfacing our older trunk highways to provide a safer and smoother riding surface".

It was first planned that the road improvement would extend from Waubun to Erskine, but at the insistance of Senator Larson it was decided to extend it another 32 miles to Thief River Falls.

BURN GOLF CLUB MORTGAGE

Burning of the mortgage followed a smorgasbord and snowmobile party at the Thief River Falls golf club Sunday afternoon and evening. The mortgage burning signified the end of indebtedness on the present clubhouse. A new clubhouse is being planned for construction in the near future.

Northmen Cagers Drop Two Games

By Daryl Augustine
Times Reporter

Northland state junior college cagers were dumped twice in last week's action. They were defeated by the University of Minnesota Technical school at Crookston on Wednesday by a score of 95-70, and by Mesabi state junior college of Virginia on Friday by a score of 88-82.

Five of Crookston's 12 players scored in double figures against the Northmen in Wednesday night's action on the Crookston court. Brian Sjodin led the pack with 19 points, followed by Steve Koster with 18, Lloyd Mayes with 17, and Dan Norschenbacker and Chuck Trohn, each with 12 points.

Leading the Northmen was Van Swanson for the first time this season. Swanson dumped in five from the field and five at the charity line for 15 points. Nick Neibauer and Tom Super, each with 14 points, and Frank Dewey with 11 points.

Crookston cagers were hot on rebounds to gain control of the ball for a 15-point lead, 40-25, when the half-time whistle blew. The Northmen were unable to overcome the 15 points, and the game ended with a final tally of 95-70 in favor of Crookston.

Friday night's action was more even. The score between the Northmen and the Mesabi Norsemen stayed within two or three points until the final seconds of the game when the Norsemen pulled ahead by six.

Leading scorer for the game was Northman Tom Super. Super made nine field goals and made five for seven free shots for a grand total of 23 points. Close behind Super was Frank Dewey, who tied with Mesabi's top man, Don Lien. Both men had 20 points, each making nine field goals and two tosses from the charity line.

Action was fast and rough. A total of 42 fouls was called by officials John Thompson and Roger Gebhart. Each team was credited with 21.

Four players fouled out of the game: Frank Dewey and Nick Neibauer of the Northmen, and Dan Poupard and Dave Lundquist of the Northmen.

Two technical fouls were also called, one on Gus Josephson of the Mesabi cagers, and one on Bill Wirtanen, coach of the Mesabi Norsemen.

Northmen now have three wins and 11 losses on the season's record. Next action will be a return game with Crookston Tech on February 12. Wrestling action is scheduled for 6:15 p.m., and basketball at 7:45 p.m. in the Lincoln high school gymnasium.

by Bob Wislinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls Prowler cage squad moved into first place in the Big Five conference and in District 31 standings on Saturday as they defeated Warren in a battle for first place. On Friday night the Prowlers suffered their first loss of the season in conference play to Crookston. The score on Saturday found the Prowlers winning 71-58, while Friday's score was 63-61 in favor of Crookston.

Prowlers-Ponies

After suffering their first loss of the season in conference play less than 24 hours before, the Prowlers rallied in the final period of play to take sole possession of first place with a 71-58 win over Warren on Saturday.

The Prowlers and the Ponies both have 4-1 records in the conference, but the Prowlers are on top in number of points won as they have six and the Ponies have five.

The Prowlers came from behind in the second half Saturday as they trailed by a 33-28 score at half time. In the second half the Prowlers outscored the Ponies by a 43-25 score.

Leading the charge for the Prowlers were Sheldon Joppru and Tony Johnson as they tallied 32 and 14 points for the winners. Joel Engen led Warren with 21 points.

The game, which was played at University of North Dakota fieldhouse on Saturday afternoon, saw the Ponies enjoy a seven point lead at one time during the game, only to find the Prowlers coming back and taking the lead at 54-53 on Johnson's free throw. This was with just over two minutes left in the contest.

Dave Kildahl, making his first start of the season on Saturday, then tallied two free throws, increasing the Prowlers lead to 56-53. Steve Edlund tallied a basket and the Prowlers increased the lead to 58-53. Two more free throws by Joppru upped the Prowlers lead to 60-53 and it was then that they put the game out of the reach of the Ponies by a 68-53 score. Joppru and Kildahl tallied two points each and Dave Rodahl, seeing his first extended action this year, tallied a basket and two free throws, giving the Prowlers the 68-53 lead, the biggest of the game for either team. Joppru added the final three points for the Prowlers to make it 71-58 at the end of the contest.

Warren led at the end of the first period 16-12 and increased their lead to 33 to 28 at half time. The Prowlers then rallied [illegible] 46-42 lead and tallied 25 points in the final period.

Pirate-Prowlers

In the game against the Crookston Pirates on Friday, the Prowlers fell behind at 19-9 by the end of the first period. The 63-61 loss marked the first of the year for the Prowlers in conference action, while it was the Pirates second win in loop action and third straight on the year.

The game, marked by fouls, found the officials calling 56 of them, 30 against the Prowlers and 26 against the Pirates. Each team lost three players by way of fouls in the final period.

After falling behind 19-9 at the [illegible] gap at half time to one point, 26-25 in favor of the Pirates. The opening of the third period found the lead see-sawing back and forth with the Prowlers gaining the lead at the end of the period, 44-43. Joppru scored two free throws early in the fourth quarter, giving the Prowlers a 46-43 lead, but the Pirates' Dunne Lindquist tallied two quick baskets to give the lead to the Crookston club at 47-46, before Balmer tied the score at 47 with 6:03 left in the game.

The Pirates then took a one-point lead through the rest of the game.

Balmer took scoring honors for the contest with 18 points, as he led a trio of Prowlers in double figures. Joppru added 17 and Johnson tallied 10 points. Dave Juve led the winners with 17 points, while Craig Peterson and Lindquist tallied 15 and 12 points respectively.

The win and loss for the Prowlers left them with a 7-6 record. Their next action will be this weekend as they travel to Bemidji on Friday night and then host Fosston on Saturday night. The game against Ada, [illegible] will be played on Monday, February 17, in the Lincoln high school gym.

City Accident Total Rises 29% in 1968

Thief River Falls police department announced this week that the accident rate for 1968 in Thief River Falls increased 29 per cent over the number of accidents in 1967, according to the annual accident report prepared by Patrolmen Irving Swanson.

As in 1966, one life was claimed within the city limits of Thief River Falls. Number of accidents investigated by the police department was 377, of which 42 resulted in injury to a total of 55 persons. Two bicyclists were involved in accidents, with one escaping injury, while four pedestrians were injured.

The report shows that the street is not a safe place to leave a car parked, as in one third of the accidents (134) a parked car was hit. Several more parked cars were hit as the result of another accident. Two more cars were involved while entering a parking position and an additional 31 were involved while pulling out of their parking spots. Thirty-nine accidents were classified as "hit and run, including 37 where a parked car was hit.

In 50 accidents one car was stopped when struck, and in 24 other accidents both cars were moving in the same direction. This is a total of 208 acidents where one car was parked, stopped or moving slowly.

In 96 accidents (66 in 1967) both cars entered the intersection at an angle, with 14 of these resulting in injury and one in a death. Intersection accidents, especially those in the residental area, are more of the serious nature, both in number of injuries and extent of property damage. There were 151 accidents on residental streets with 22 resulting in injury, compared with 203 in the downtown area and 16 resulting in injury.

The early morning hours, between 3 and 6 a.m., were accident free. There were 22 accidents from midnight until 3 a.m., concentrated on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. After an early morning lull, accidnts started happening again at 6 a.m. and built to a peak of 39 at 3 p.m., tapering off from there to 14 at 11 p.m. Most of the accidents occurred on Monday as 63 were reported on that day during the year. Sunday followed with 41.

There were more female drivers involved in accidents in 1968, however, this is a reflection of the increase in accidents as about 29 per cent of the drivers were females in 1968, compared

BPW Supports Equal Pay For Equal Work Bill

Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's club, together with the State Federation, has gone on record as supporting the "Equal pay for equal work bill" which has already been introduced both in the House and Senate.

The State BPW legislative task force committee is spearheading the drive for the passage of the bill which would mean the payment of the same wage or salary rate to men and women employed on the same or comparable jobs by the same employer. Men as well as women would benefit from the passage of this bill. Women would benefit by receiving the rate for the job instead of a lower rate because of sex and men through job security as employers would be discouraged in replacing the them with lower-paid women. At present only 14 states, including the state of Minnesota, do not have Equal Pay for Equal work.

Mrs. Norma Hanson legislative chairman of the local BPW club, has been in charge of sending letters to all members of the club urging them to write to both the State Representative and Senator urging them to support the bill. Books for Teenagers

"I'm Nearly Dragged, but Nothing Gets Me Down" by Nat Hentoff, is this author's first book for teenagers. It's a bit of dialog between the generations, really getting inside the skull of today's generation and getting what's found there into the skull of today's youth. Frank, open, often disturbing, it's a kind of verbal bridge between today and a not-so-long-ago-as-you-might-think-yesterday.

At times the characters are uptight, and for this some sensible solutions are worked out. The idea is to get both generations to use the bridge and together each contribute something to the other. Hentoff's is an unusually discerning mind; he's with it, bringing out things which can no longer be ignored if we are still to remain as a nation.

"Focus the Bright Land" by Elizabeth Friermood tells it like it was in a time when girls were to be seen only by the fireside and seldom heard at all. Fortunately, not all girls saw it that way; some of them wanted the freedom to choose the directions of their lives.

One of these was the heroine of this book, a girl who dared to be herself, to follow the career she loved (photography) even when few if any girls of that era (the late 1880's) dared show such boldness. Her skill and determination pay off, for she leaves behind her a trail of happy people who would now have treasured family portraits where before these things were entirely unavailable. Girls are sure to identify with the struggles of the heroine before she reaches her goal.

Books for Adults

Ladies, if you're wondering what and how to serve for a certain bash that's coming up on your social calendar, be it an anniversary celebration, party, or what have you, puzzle no more. Robert S. Fite's "Menu Planning for Every Occasion" not only tells you what to serve, but how to serve it (table settings, garnishes, etc.) and gives you the recipes for the dishes included in the menus. Covered are stork showers, christenings, birthdays, housewarmings, graduations..or should we start at the other end of the cycle..engagement parties, pre-nuptial showers, weddings, luncheons, after-theater buffets, wee-hours breakfasts, spring, summer, fall, holiday parties; orange blossom trees, relish trees, shrimp trees, strawberry trees, all of them almost too lovely to eat. Be the hostess with the mostes' (new ideas, that is) and party it up in style.

Have you seen the brand new catalog of the world's most popular coins? The ranks of coin-collecters are swelling apace, and with an active club locally, interest will not wane for many moons, we'll wager.

"Jewelry to Make Yourself" is the title of a new book by Milli V. Scoker, and goes many steps beyond the beginning stages in this fascinating hobby. Learn how to make jewelry from fur, fabric and leather flowers, ceramic, enamel, metal and wire jewelry; beads on wire (and some of these creations are really fabulous!). For versatility and the individual look, this book is a top-notch source of ideas.

The revised edition of "Minnesota's Government" is another newly-acquired book on the Minnesota shelf. You'll find it in the 300 section, and once you do, you'll realize here's just the book you've been looking for. It covers county government, the officers and their duties. The same coverage is given city and village government. State institutions come in for their share of space, as well as state boards, bureaus, courts, their kinds and functions; the county seat, population and other facts about each county; the state constitution, a list of the governors of the state, state colleges, their type and location, and the date of founding; and much, much more.

If you hurry, you might be the first to check out "Vatican Museums, Rome," which is still another of the proud additions to the museum series. The Michelangelo frescos in the Pauline chapel and the world-famous ceiling of the Sistine chapel are among the treasures depicted in glowing color; along with masterpieces by Raphael, Da Vinci, Bellini, Fra Angelico and many others. The book, like the others in the series, is superb, and the nicest thing about them is that they may be checked out. Rich with the opulence and movement of Renaissance art, they are destined to become take-home favorites of all art lovers in the regional library system.

Junior readers of the 5th and 6th grade levels, don't be caught Animals " Would you believe a canteen fish in the middle of a desert? And carrying water in a hump on its back! When one water hole dries up, they move across the desert to find a new water hole, lined up in formation like a line of soldiers. During a flash flood, they have to head for high ground or be drowned. Really! It's all there in black and white."

And you'll find it's only one of the whopping big tales that go clipping along across each page. Many of them are as big as, or bigger, than Paul Bunyan tales, and they are pretty hard to top; comparing them says a bookful! Anyway, take it home with you for a hundred laughs.

Also, juniors, would you like to watch an animal's cells as it grows? Ever wonder what the cells of muscles look like and how each kind is arranged to best do the work the muscle was made for? You'll see hundreds of marvels, the cells of the skin, the network of tunnels known as bloodvessels that carry your blood from your heart and all through your body, when you check out "Through the Microscope", a big, colorful new book by M. D. Anderson. You'll see what the microscope sees while a drop of water from a stream or pond, for example, will be so alive you'd swear it was about to wriggle right off the little glass slide.

Little people, look for a big book, "The Little Mailman of Bayberry Lane." Such colorful pictures! "Whatever Happens to Bear Cubs?" is just as charming, and maybe even more so. "Grandpa" is smaller in size, not quite so new, but it's something to warm your heart, and his. The line drawings are especially fetching. And don't overlook Tomi Ungerer's "Ask Me a Question." Just because it's small, This I e for children who can read and sound out words, and will help them become better readers. Whatever you choose, at least read. Whatever you want to be some day, you'll need to know the skills of reading first of all.

Norman Peterson Is Elected To Blue Cross Board

Norman P. Peterson, Northwestern Hospital administrator, was recently elected to serve on the state governing body of Minnesota Blue Cross, according to R. T. Crist, Blue Cross president.

Peterson will represent his district as a corporate member of the Minnesota non-profit health care plan. He will join representatives from the other 183 member hospitals to form the fundamental governing body of Minnesota Blue Cross.

Minnesota Blue Cross presently has nearly a million subscribers in the state.

Each year, two members-at-large are elected from each of the nine medical councilor districts in Minnesota to serve as corporate members. All member hospitals in the district who have furnished less than 10,000 days of Blue Cross hospital care are entitled to vote for the at-large members.

One additional member is elected from each of these districts for each 10,000 days of Blue Cross hospital care in excess of 20,000 days furnished by such hospital during the preceding calendar year.

In addition, each member hospital that has furnished 10,000 days of Blue Cross care are entitled to elect one member for each 10,000 days of care with a limit of four corporate members for each hospital.

The corporate members, in turn, elect the 23 man Blue Cross board of trustees who are entrusted with responsibility for the immediate Blue Cross operation.

Farm Program Notices Mailed To Producers

Farm program notices listing individual farm allotments, base acreages, yields and payment rates under the 1969 wheat and feed grain programs have been mailed to producers in Marshall county, according to Marcel Dahl, chairman of the county agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

This information will enable farmers to decide whether they want to take part in the programs and to plan the extent of their participation. Program benefits include price-support loans and payments and diversion payments.

If a producer believes that a commodity yield, a feed grain base, rate or the conserving base shown on the notice for his farm is incorrect, he may ask the county committee to reconsider the matter. Requests for reconsideration should be made in writing and mailed to delivered to the county committee within 15 days from the mailing date shown on the notice.

To take part in the programs, the farm operator first files his intentions on an application form at the ASCS county office during the signup period. Signup begins from February 3 and extends through March 21.

Greenbush Store Cited for Food Stamp Violation

Hartz Food store, Greenbush, and owner, Helen Truscinski, have been disqualified from participation in the food stamp program for a period of 90 days, the U.S. department of agriculture has announced.

According to USDAs consumer and marketing service, the store violated program regulations by accepting food stamp coupons in exchange for ineligible items and by giving credit in excess of the allowable 49 cents in food coupon transactions.

After the disqualification period, the store may apply for reauthorization to participate in the program. However, the possibility of civil or criminal action in the courts or the filing of fiscal claims against this retailer is not precluded.

Scout Exploring Meet Reviews Special Program

Meeting of the Exploring committee of the Lake Agassiz council of Boy Scouts was conducted in Grand Forks recently, according to Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, Crookston, chairman of the Explorer committee.

Also on the committee are Charles Searl, Grand Forks, chairman of sales and training; and Col. James Mullins, Grand Forks Air Force Base, chairman of services and program.

Contemporary exploring is the program of the Boy Scouts of America that offers high school students an opportunity to investigate the professions, trades and vocations through special interest posts.

Voyageur district Explorer chairman is Lowell Larson of Crookston, with Dewey Walsh of Crookston and Ken Welbolt of Thief River Falls on his committee.

According to Larson, it is the goal of the committee to have at least five of these special interest posts functioning in the district by March 1. L.R. Marti, council president, and members of the Lake Agassiz council professional staff, including Loren Soule of Thief River Falls, also attended the meeting.

First Ambulance Delivered Under State Program

Prior Lake is the recipient of the first of 25 ambulances to be made available to rural Minnesota communities, including Thief River Falls, which is to have two new units. Presentation and unveiling of this first ambulance was made at the Prior Lake fire station on Friday.

The unveiling represents the beginning of a long-term project to develop and maintain high quality emergency medical services in Minnesota, especially for persons injured in automobile accidents. The two new units in Thief River Falls will be operated by Northwestern hospital beginning about May 1.

The ambulance program is part of the statewide emergency medical services program supervised by the state health department, in cooperation with the state highway department and various medical-related organizations.

It includes training of ambulance crews, improvement of emergency care facilities in hospitals and coordination of medical records and accident reports for statistical analysis. A bill presently before the state legislature would have the state health department develop standards for licensing ambulance services and personnel as part of the program.

Approximately 50 per cent of the $8,200 cost of the ambulances is funded by the U.S. department of transportation, matched by state and local funds.

In conjunction with the local program, Northwestern hospital is seeking an individual with a Red Cross standard or advanced course in first aid or extensive duty as a military corpsman or medic. This person is needed to certify as an instructor in the local ambulance program. Anyone interested and having the above qualifications is asked to contact Norman Petterson, hospital administration.

Skaar Co-Authors Bill to Pay for Taking Wolves

Two bills setting up a system of incentive payments for the taking of wolves outside protected areas of Minnesota have been co-authored in the state House of Representatives by Rep. Andrew Skaar of Thief River Falls.

Under the new legislation, payments of $35 for timber wolves and $30 for brush wolves would be made to hunters and trappers taking out a special license from the department of conservation. Individuals would still be permitted to take predators without the license, but would be ineligible for the incentive payments.

Proceeds from the license fee, tentatively set at $10, would go into a special conservation department predator-control fund.

The new legislation would prohibit taking or trapping wolves within the boundary-water canoe area of northeastern Minnesota.

"There has been increasing opposition in recent years to the payment of bounties," Rep. Skaar said in announcing his sponsorship of the two measures.

"We feel that with this new approach it will be possible to gain the necessary support to enact an effective predator-control program."

Leaders Council Sponsors Edition Of Plat Book

Pennington county 4-H leaders council will sponsor a new and up to date addition of the Pennington county plat book. The new book will be compiled and published in the next four month and will be available to the people of the county about July 1.

Curtis Swanson, plat book committee chairman, says the new books will contain maps of every township in the county, showing all pertinent natural and cultural features including all farms, their size and location, farm buildings, owners, etc. The publishers will make a complete and exhaustive search of the official county records in the court house to determine the present farm status in the county. A complete alphabetical index of all the land owners, whereby any land owner may be located in a matter of seconds, will be a feature of the new book.

Leaders council representatives will contact all the businesses in the county in regard to placing an advertisement in the new edition. The new books will be completed and distributed about June 1 and will be sold by the 4-H club members in the respective areas in a county-wide campaign.

Many changes have taken place since the last plat book was published. Farms have been subdivided or consolidated; ownerships, sizes and shapes of the farms have changed to the extent that a new and up to date plat book is greatly needed states Terry Coumeya, Pennington county agricultural agent.

The new books will be sold throughout the county by the 4-H clubs in their respective areas. It is one of the several services rendered by the 4-H group and is a part of the program which teaches its youngsters to "Learn by Doing".

"This is a commendable project and deserves the wholehearted support of the community," Coumeya said.

Prowlers At Bemidji; Host Fosston Saturday

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

After coming up with the big win on Saturday against the Warren Ponies in Big Five basketball conference action, the Thief River Falls Prowlers will move out of the conference this weekend as they travel to Bemidji on Friday night and then host Fosston on Saturday night.

The contest against the Lumberjacks will be a return meeting for the two clubs as they met on January 10 at the Lincoln high school gym, with the Lumberjacks posting a 72-56 win over the Prowlers. Saturday's contest will be the only meeting scheduled for the Prowlers against Fosston this year.

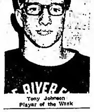
After the two games this weekend the Prowlers will have three games remaining on their schedule as they will host East Grand Forks on February 14; Ada on February 17; and then travel to Bagley on February 18.

Bemidji is considered to be one of the top powers in District 29 and is riding on a five-game winning string, all coming after the holiday break, to give the Jacks a 7-4 record.

Coach Whitey Olson indicated on Tuesday that his starting five against the Lumberjacks will be unknown until later in the week, with only two positions set—one forward and the center position. Starting at the forward spot will be junior Don Balmer, while the center will be Sheldon Joppru. The other forward spot is open to three possibilities in the presence of sophomore Mike Hamerlinck, who has started three games for the Prowlers; Dave Kildahl, who made his first start on Saturday against the Ponies; and Steve Edlund, who started the season at the position.

Like the forward spot, the starting two guard positions are up for grabs as three are battling here. They include seniors Dan Brodin and Tony Johnson and junior Kip Poppenhagen, a starter for the last four games.

Joppru leads the conference in scoring with a 24.8 average, and is the team's overall scoring leader with a 21.8 average. The senior center against the Lumberjacks last time was fighting a bout with the flu and scored 22 points and pulled down 17 rebounds. Against Warren on Saturday he tallied 23 points and pulled down 20 rebounds.



Tony Johnson
Player of the Week

Johnson was named as player of the week by the Prowler coaching staff this past weekend and like Joppru was nursing a bout with the flu the last time the two squads met. In the game against Crookston on Friday night, the 5-6 guard came off the bench to score 10 points, and then Saturday hit a season's high of 14 against the Ponies.

Balmer, after starting the season at a fast rate, came alive on Friday night as he led the Prowlers in scoring against the Pirates with 18 points. He is the second highest overall Prowler score with a 10.5 average.

Edlund is the squad's second leading rebounder behind Joppru with 90 rebounds in 13 games, while averaging 8.43 points per game.

Brodin is the team's third leading scorer and hit a high of 23 points against Climax two weeks ago, but failed to see much action against the Pirates and Ponies over the weekend. He is averaging 9.7 points per contest while pulling down 55 rebounds.

Kildahl, making his first start of the season against Warren on Saturday, came through with eight points and two clutch free throws when the Prowlers needed them most.

Poppenhagen started against East Grand Forks on January 17 and has been starting at guard for the last four contests. Kip finds himself in foul trouble early in the game, but given a good night he could come up with some scoring for the Prowlers.

Hamerlinck, a sophomore, started in three games for the Prowlers and came through in good style against East Grand Forks and Climax, but saw little action against the Pirates and Ponies this past weekend. His 6-2 frame gives the Prowlers a little muscle in the front line and takes some of the pressure off Joppru, leaving him free at times.

The Prowlers are still looking for their first win over the Lumberjacks under the direction of Olson, but will have to play better ball than they have in the past few games if they expect to upset the mighty Lumberjacks.

Saturday, the Fosston Greyhounds will come into the Lincoln high school gym. The Greyhounds are one of the top clubs in District 30 this year, but of late have had their troubles as they lost to McIntosh by one point and then lost to an oncoming Clearbrook squad last Friday by a 70-58 score.

Both games will begin at 8 p.m., with the two 'B' squads going at it at 6:30 p.m.

PROWLER GOALIE Jerry Owen recorded 22 stops against the Warroad Warriors Tuesday night, as the Prowlers lost to the faster skating Warrior club by a 4-0 score.

LHS Falls to Warroad In Season's Final Game

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls Prowler hockey squad finished their regular seasons schedule on Tuesday night as they fell to the Warroad Warriors by a 4-0 score. It was the first time in 19 games that the Prowlers were unable to score, as Warrior goalie Jeff Hallett recorded 18 stops, eight of them coming in the second period when the Prowlers had shot after shot blocked by the sophomore netman for the Warriors.

The Warriors, ranked number one in the state a week ago, slipped a bit after losing to Roseau and Duluth Cathedral, as they fell to the number six position in the state hockey rankings. Regaining the number one position was Greenway of Coleraine.

The Prowlers were ranked number 14 in the state rankings, while other Region Eight schools listed in the top 15 were Bemidji, 4 and Roseau, 11.

Tuesday night Warroad jumped off to a 1-0 lead with just over two minutes gone in the contest as Ed Huerd, a junior wing for the Warriors, scored at 2:05.

The second period found the Warriors adding their last three goals of the night. Lyle Kvarnlov scored the first one of the period at 5:05 on an assist from John Taylor.

Henry Bouchn, senior defenseman for the Warriors and one of two seniors listed on the Warroad club, then displayed his skating prowess on a solo rush. He took the puck from behind his own goal, faked out the Prowlers Ron Runger, just as if Runger wasn't there, skated around the Prowler goal and back-handed the shot into the net for an unassisted goal at 9:36 in the period.

The Warriors scored their last goal in the second period at 10:47 as Richard Ellerbush tallied on an assist from Alan Hangsleben.

The Prowlers took eight shots on goal during the second period, only to find Hallet coming up with some nice plays to stop the Prowlers from gaining a score.

Neither team scored in the third period as Owen made eight stops and Hallett recorded five.

The Prowlers, despite their loss to the Warriors, will be seeded into the Region Eight tournament with final pairing to be announced later today. The Prowlers finished in first place in the south half of Region Eight, with Moorhead finishing second. The two north half schools seeded into the Region Eight tournament were Warroad and Bemidji.

The Prowlers finished the season with a 10-8-1 record, falling to Warroad twice, Roseau once, Richfield, Eveleth, Bemidji, Grand Forks Central and the Alumni. They posted two wins over East Grand Forks, Crookston and Baudette, single wins over Roseau, Virginia, Hallock and Red Lake Falls, and tied Minneapolis Washburn.

Prowler Notes: The top 15 teams in the state are as follows: 1. Greenway, 17-3; 2. Mpls. Washburn, 15-0-3; 3. International Falls, 15-4-1; 4. Bemidji, 18-2; 5. Hibbing, 15-5; 6. Warroad, 16-3; 7. Edina, 19-1; 8. Mpls. Southwest, 14-3-2; 9. Blake, 14-3-3; 10. Duluth Cathedral, 10-8-1; 11. Roseau, 10-7-1; 12. Mounds View, 10-8-2; 13. Richfield, 15-3-1; 14. Thief River Falls, 10-7-1; 15. LHS Wrestlers Journey To Crookston Fri.

Thief River Falls wrestling squad will travel to Crookston to meet the Pirates in a dual match on Friday night. The Prowlers will be out to snap a six-match losing string.

The Prowlers defeated the Crookston squad earlier this season by a 29-17 score. In that match the Prowlers scored four pins as Rich Nordhagen, Tom Duke, Tim Duke and Tony Modunich all scored pins. Gaining decisions for the Prowlers that night were Scott Vettleson and Eddie Furuseth.

Match time will be at 6:30 for the two 'B' squads with the varsity teams doing battle at 7:30 p.m. After this match the Prowlers have only one match left before the District 31 wrestling tournament is held on Saturday, February 15. Tuesday the Prowlers will host the Greenbush Tigers.

Northmen Cagers And Wrestlers Make Road Trip

Northland State Junior College cagers and wrestlers take to the road this weekend with dual meets on Friday and Saturday. The Northmen meet Metropolitan junior college of Minneapolis on Friday night, and Brainerd junior college on Saturday night.

The game between the Northmen and Metropolitan will be the first time this season that the two teams will meet. Metropolitan cagers have a 1-11 record for the season, and the wrestlers have a 5-2 record.

Northmen wrestlers fell to Brainerd in Northlands homecoming on January 25, but the cagers downed the Brainerd Raiders by a score of 78-69. Brainerd now has a 3-9 record in basketball and a 4-1 record in wrestling.

Northland wrestlers currently have a 2-5 record and the cagers a 3-12 record. Next home game for the Northmen will be next Wednesday in another match with the University of Minnesota Technical institute of Crookston. Both Northland teams fell to Crookston in their first meeting on January 29.

MFT Favors Changes In Bargaining Law

Lyall Schwartzkopf, state legislator from Minneapolis, introduced a bill that would transfer teachers from the present "meet and confer" law to come under the labor code for broader powers to bargain collectively.

Schwartzkopf introduced a bill which is essentially the position of the Minnesota Federation of Teachers (MFT) and asks for exclusive bargaining representation for the majority teacher organization in any school system, according to an MFT news release.

Schwartzkopf, a three-session veteran and a senior member of the House labor committee, wants teachers covered by the same general bargaining law which he helped sponsor for all public employees in 1965.

This law would give teachers organizations bargaining rights through elections instead of the forced joint councils which now bring MFT and MEA representatives to board meetings.

Other main sections of the public employee law would make the labor conciliator available for the resolution of teacher-board disputes. A fact-finding process would also be available if the conciliator fails.

The MFT asks for repeal of the "meet and confer" joint council law.

The federation criticizes this law for "creating more conflict than 1967 legislators hoped to eliminate", and cites the following examples.

Contentions arose because administrators were included with teachers in the unit of representation;

Confusion spread from district to district on the scope of negotiations;

Proportional representation on the compulsory joint negotiating council caused numerous problems for boards and teachers;

CPA's were called upon to certify membership reports from the organizations;

Courts were involved in the counting of members in teachers' organizations;

Courts were involved in forcing board representatives to meet with teachers' committees;

Teachers panicked to call fact-finding panels before the legal deadline of March 1, even before impasses existed; and Negotiated agreements were vitiated by administrative fiats.

Among the more general defects of the law, the MFT states that:

1. It ignores the concept of majority rule which is a firmly established rule in resolving representational disputes in both the public and private sectors of the economy.

2. The law assumes that membership in any organization is the complete index in selecting an organization as the representative of the members in all relations with the public employer.

3. The law bridges constitutional freedom and denies negotiating power to teachers who chose not to join any organization.

4. This act confuses the function of conciliation and arbitration and by establishing a dateline for recourse to impasse procedure, it weakens and even destroys the whole meaning and remedy that is intended by such a provision.

5. The joint council provision of this law sets a condition whereby a strong responsible teachers' organization is rendered ineffective; it brings two competing organizations with their differences directly to the bargaining table.

6. The law gives full and complete power to the school board to impose rules upon teachers for the implementation of all of its provisions.

The MFT bill will go before the House labor committee and will ask for repeal of the 1965 provision excluding teachers from the 1965 public employee labor relations law.

Other authors in the House with Schwartzkopf are Duane Rappan and Earl Gustafson of Duluth and Martin Sabo, the House minority leader from Minneapolis.

In the Senate Harmon Ogdahl of Minneapolis and Karl Grittner and Rollin Glewwe of St. Paul are expected to introduce the MFT bill.

Bergeron Heads Club at Oklee

AFTER SIGNING a proclamation marking February 9-15 as beauty salon week in Thief River Falls, Mayor A. E. Jacobson presents the document to Duane Mattson, president of the Red River Valley affiliate of the Minnesota Hairdressers and Cosmetologists association. This year the RRV group will donate a scholarship for tuition and books at the Fergus Falls beauty college to the winner of an essay contest on the subject, "Why I Would Like to Become a Cosmetologist". Anyone who can start at the school by October of 1969 may enter the contest without age limit.

Governor Lists 5 Measures for Highway Safety

Gov. Harold LeVander Thursday announced plans for introduction in the state legislature five measures which he terms key components in the administration's highway safety program.

The governor also announced the main authors on the bills during a capitol news conference.

"While tremendous progress was made in the field of highway safety during the 1967 session, more Minnesotans than ever before were killed on our streets and highways last year," LeVander said.

"It is true that we have reduced the number of fatalities in comparison to the miles driven each year in our state, but his is a hollow victory when human lives are still being lost.

"I believe that the measures which we are proposing to the legislature for its early consideration will provide another important advancement in the fight to make highway safety a reality."

The five key measures and their main authors in each house are:

Requirement for chemical testing for blood alcohol content for any driver involved in a fatal accident or in an accident where death is a firm possibility. (Senator Harold Krieger, Rochester; Rep. Donald Fisher, Rochester)

Increasing the penalty for drunk driving convictions from a license revocation of 30 days to 60 days. (Sen. Kelly Gage, Mankato; Rep. Richard White, Minneapolis)

Required inspection of vehicles on a regular basis. (Sen. Glenn McCarty, Minneapolis; Rep. William Frenzel, Golden Valley)

Requiring visual and mental re-examination of drivers upon application for license renewals. (Sen. Kelly Gage, Mankato; Rep. Richard White, Minneapolis)

Requiring additional safety (Sen. Dean Nyquist, Brooklyn Center; Rep. Donald Fisher, Rochester)

LeVander said that all five pieces of legislation will be introduced shortly in both houses.

School Board at Warren Offers 67-68 Schedule

A salary schedule identical to the present 1967-68 term, together with numerous changes in policies affecting the faculty for the 1968-69 term, were proposed to the Warren education association negotiating team by the board of education team at a special meeting recently.

Although the salary schedule proposed is identical to the present schedule, it would cost the school district $10,200 more for next year, as the schedule automatically provides for a $200 raise for each teacher. New teachers joining the system would start with a base salary of $6,000 as at present, according to Melvin R. Hanson, superintendent of schools in Warren.

Among the new innovations proposed by the board are an eight-hour day in the school exclusive of lunch period; the school year extended to nine and one-half months; extra compensation for chaperoning school events to be discontinued; discontinue extra pay for supervising and directing activity programs which take place during or immediately after regular academic school day; and personal leave to be administered by the superintendent or principal on an individual basis.

Also, Easter and Christmas vacations would be discontinued with holiday vacations to conform with standards of private industry; discontinue paying teachers to attend meetings of teacher organizations; and favor a modified merit plan combining the best features of the salary schedule.

THE BOSS

"The boss!" Jim said and laughed to see Jimmy dwarfed by his chair.

And I began to wonder. When our son is ready to occupy that chair, what kind of a man will he be? Will he have integrity and a sense of responsibility for his employees? Or will he cut corners, use the people he works for—who work for him?

So much depends on us. Right now, he learns of love and kindness from our voices, our hands. As he matures, our values, respect for others and concern will help to shape his attitudes.

How glad I am that our Church offers a program of Christian education for Jim and me, as well as for Jimmy. As our son grows, so will we.

The strength you need to meet the responsibilities of your life can be found in your church.

Careers in Food and Fiber

Our forest lands produce wood and other forest products valued at approximately $30 billion annually after processing by our forest products industries.

These industries are constantly seeking graduates in forest products marketing and engineering, says Robert D. Thompson, assistant professor of forestry at the University of Minnesota.

Forest products engineering or wood technology is the design, development and manufacturing of wood products while forest products marketing involves the merchandising and distribution of forest products.

The forest products marketing curriculum at the University is changing, Thompson says. For example, the curriculum now includes statistics courses in which students learn how to program a computer and courses in marketing research in which they learn to identify the characteristics and sales potential of their customers.

One of the features of the curriculum is its summer job program. For those in forest products there are training jobs in industry to start out with which later advance to office jobs; for those in engineering there are jobs which lead to research assistants. "We almost insist that our students have two summers of on-the-job experience with the forest product industries," Thompson says.

"Competition for graduates in this curriculum is very great," he says. Last year's starting salaries for forest products engineers averaged $8,400 per year while marketing graduates averaged $7,200. In fact the demand for graduates in forest products marketing and engineering is so great, Thompson says, that only a limited number of firms are allowed to interview students on campus each year.

Industrial forest research is increasing, particularly in wood utilization. The growing use of wood in plywoods, wallboards, plastics and rayon, and the increasing value of such equipment as dry kilns and preserving plants in producing better lumber products are creating unlimited opportunities for forest products engineers.

According to Thompson, graduates in forest products engineering enter such fields as solid wood products, wood fiber products and paper research. In production, graduates are employed as plant managers and quality control specialists.

Graduates in forest products marketing have a wide variety of jobs to choose from. There are many employment opportunities in the wholesale forest products industry and retail lumber industry. These industries include many manufacturers with distribution and sales personnel all over the United States.

Urban renewal is an expanding area of employment. Forest products marketing graduates, employed by various housing authorities, are involved in code enforcement and in making slum area homes more livable. In addition, the U. S. Forest Service's forest marketing research program employs graduates.

For further information on careers in forest products marketing and engineering, write or visit the School of Forestry, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

"Everything we do has a result. But that which is right and prudent does not always lead to good, nor the contrary to what is bad; frequently the reverse takes place." —Goethe

Words in Defense

Judging by school board proposals in there is more behind them than individual board opinion. This became apparent a short time ago, as more and more negotiations began in the various districts. The lyrics were slightly different but the music was the same.

That an organized effort is being attempted is attested to by a letter from Philip L. Erickson, member of Biwabik School District 693 board of directors, to the editors of the Minneapolis Tribune. The entire letter follows:

"I do not agree that the Minnesota School Boards association should attempt to monopolize the thought and action of all school boards in the state. This effort is obvious in the recent proposals of the board of directors to school boards (concerning salary negotiations'.

"There is no reason why this belligerent proposal is necessary, and I would caution all school board members not to relinquist individualism too readily. It doesn't make sense to forego our responsibility as individuals in our community.

"I scanned the pages of planned battle against the teachers to whom we entrust our children day in and day out, and I began to wonder what the teachers of Minnesota have done to bring such an insult upon themselves and their profession.

"We know that they have negotiated a $6,000 beginning salary in some districts, but what is so unreasonable about that? Even a dropout can match that in our industrial world.

"We know that most teachers are members of organized unions, but who isn't? Of course they are seeking better salaries in these inflationary times, but aren't we all?

"Our teachers are the key to whatever the money spent on education can bring about in our search for an enlightened, improved world. Who among us has the ignorance and foolhardiness to question and doubt their importance to our society of wishful humanity?

"As a concerned citizen, I hold the teachers and their role in high esteem. As a school board member, I shall never encourage mobbish plotting against them."

Mr. Erickson brings forth his points well. If there is a flaw in his reasoning, it is simply this: The Minnesota School Boards association apparently is trying to provide a unified front to counteract the group pressure generated by the Minnesota Education association and the Minnesota Federation of Teachers. It is the effort to meet strength with strength, and this is necessary when maneuvering for a strong bargaining position.

We agree whole-heartedly with Mr. Erickson that teachers — and teaching — are the key to what education can do. The importance of the teacher to the school system is difficult to over-emphasize. Assessment of the local situation in any district should be more important than setting one group against the other on a state-wide basis—but this assessment must be made by both sides to merit equal consideration.

Since teachers—and teaching—are so important to education of youth, we see many advantages in the local board's proposal as it relates to the local school system. Team teaching and peer recommendation for advancement offer incentive to excel in teaching, with improved education being the result of increasing excellence.

Irregardless of the MSBA position, we believe the local board is being neigher punitive nor vindictive in its proposal. It is sincerely seeking to provide improved education with greater utilization of facilities.

The Lighter Side

That there is humor in the misfortunes of others is verified in a report from a major life and casualty company. That firm has had some bizarre insurance claim cases. Some "catchy" writing by the company's public relations department is incorporated into the report.

Consider the young desperado who approached a cashier in a San Diego grocery, inadvertently drew a ripe banana instead of his revolver, and boldly proclaimed a stickup. "Thrown into a near panic when he discovered his mistake," the company report proclaims, "the callow Clyde with the bonnie banana still managed to fumble out his real gun and split with $745 before the laughter died.

Then there was the Missouri policyholder who claimed that even 120 days after a minor auto accident, he was still too nervous to return to his job—racking up pool balls.

One man filed a claim for damage when an accident resulted as his dog, left alone in a car with the motor running, hit the automatic shift and the car rolled down the street. It crashed into—what else—a fireplug.

Have sympathy for a New Mexico man who has mixed feelings about insurance protection. Driving home after visiting his agent, he crashed into another car while leaning forward to pick up something which had fallen from his dash board—his newly-acquired auto insurance policy.

And finally, a Coral Gables, Fla., driver plowed into a gate when he was distracted by a woman in topless attire who was chasing a small boy down the street. A policeman, parked nearby, admitted that he didn't see the crash.

Hoodlum Brutality

Source of the following article is unknown, but it was published in a Minnesota newspaper and carries a message of importance to America:

The other day we came upon a simple statistic out of Newark, N.J., which made us wonder why there wasn't a riot there last year, with the Newark Police Department doing the rioting. The men in blue certainly had cause.

During 1966, a total of 187 policemen in Newark were victims of hoodlum brutality. That's approximately 14 per cent of the uniform force. They were victims of "police brutality" in reverse, with hoods and punks providing the brutality. But since it's the police who get beaten and maimed, no one becomes indignant. No groups are organized to march on city hall or stage sitdowns at the state capitol. No one screams for federal funds to improve the lot of the poor persecuted man on the beat, build him a new house or train him for a less hazardous job. No politician even goes through the motions of appointing a commission to study the matter for a year or so, till after the next election.

So the policeman's lot continues to be an unhappy one, with all signs indicating that things are likely to get a lot worse. Not only is the policeman at the mercy of the hoodlums in a community; he is made a patsy by politicians who have no qualms whatever about jeopardizing the lives and property of decent people.

Some of the reports coming out of cities ripped apart by criminal mobs are almost incredible. We learn that police and law enforcement officers were ordered to stand by while hoodlums burned and lotted. The reason? Action against them! In many cases the use of weapons was restricted to a point where they were little more than ornaments. Troops which might have quelled riots in their crucial early stages were kept inactive; guardsmen were told that if they happened to shoot anyone they would be held personally responsible and would have to face civil trial and a court martial. Police were subjected to harrassment-by-law, as so-called "civil rights lawyers" filed suit against them for fantastic amounts.

Who wants to be a policeman in such an atmosphere? Would you?

One of these days the politicians responsible for this are going to wake up and find their communities—and themselves—without any protection whatsoever. Maybe by that time they will realize what they have done.

But it will take some recruiting drive to mobilize a police force on that day.

Private Enterprise Works

From the California Feature Service of Oct. 7, 1968, comes the following article:

A heartwarming story of how our American private enterprise system offers opportunities and rewards to those who are willing to put it to work comes out of Southern California.

A year ago five Dutch farm families migrated from the Netherlands to Corpinteria to raise flowers. With limited funds, no friend or relative, and with only one of the group able to speak a little English, they did their own weather and resource surveys, made a down payment on 26 acres, brought a dismantled old greenhouse over from the old country, cut their first flowers last November and have since grossed more than $250,000.

Said one of the group's leaders, Hank Van Wingerden in an interview with the Los Angeles Times, "We do good because going together we are strong. And we work hard, sunup, sundown, all us, men, women, kids, too." Asked why they left a spot where their families had raised flowers for generations, Van Wingerden explained: "Too much socialism. Too many bureaucrats spoiling Holland. Government insurance on everything to make socialism work. Have to pay, pay, pay."

We don't like to disillusion these admirable people but there are those in America who are working hard to turn America into another Holland. Pay, pay, pay.

Letters to the Editor

Sports Editor
The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota
Dear Sir:

Recently, I was informed of the passing of Huck Olson. As captain of the 1945-46 undefeated Lincoln High School football team and co-captain of an equally successful, but not so lucky, hockey team of that year I became well-acquainted with Huck. Indeed, I know I speak for all the "ex-Prowlers" when I state that he was highly respected and amired by all of us.

They tell me Huck lived in Thief River Falls longer than most of us can remember and I believe them. His computer like memory concerning athletic events, records and personalities was something to behold. But what I like to remember best about Huck was his interest in some insignificant shell of a human being who, only to Huck, showed any kind of athletic promise. But he had the "eye" and was quick to relay that information to the coaches and give some type of recognition, via Huck's Column, to that young "athlete". Coaches as sensitive as Glenn Hanna and of course, Quentin Jones (who has done more for T.R.F. than anyone), were always quick to cultivate Huck's "discovery".

No doubt there is many a man today that contributes his success, in varying degrees, to the fact that Huck Olson gave him the recognition, and thus the confidence, when he needed it most. A small town sports writer has a lot of power to impress young minds and Huck knew well how to use that power. We all shall miss him.

Sincerely,
Wes Hovie—Class of 46

To the editor:

The liquor industry would go bankrupt if it were called upon to pay the costs it justly owes society.

It would pay 60 per cent of the budget for running jails and prisons, and at least 50 per cent of the budget for mental health and social welfare. Millions of dollars would be required for payment of cars damaged during the year because of drink-connected accidents. But what price can one set on the life of the child, the mother, the father who is killed in one of these accidents? There are many other hidden costs that can not be counted in dollars and cents.

The liquor industry may brag about the revenue it pays in both federal and state taxes. This is a pittance in comparison to the cost incurred which is now borne by the taxpayers who pay billions of dollars in both open and hidden costs.

These expenses are caused not only by the alcoholic but by the fringe drinker as well.

It seems as if the liquor industry must surely be on the wrong side of the fence and also everyone who buys its products. Why?

Does Thief River Falls have the moral stamina to do something about this perverse situation?

Signed
Elsie Koglin

How to Make Your Kitchen Sink More Efficient

Looking for ways to increase the efficiency of your kitchen sink? These four suggestions come from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau:

1. Replace your old sink with a two or three-bowl type to multiply its simultaneous uses.
2. Make sure your faucet has an aerator. It will create millions of bubbles in the water will cause soap to suds up faster and easier. You'll save on water too.
3. Get a spray attachment. One with a flexible stainless steel hose is available.
4. Replace your old drain plug with a "remote control" stopper installed next to the faucet. It will end groping in the sink when it's full of water.

Teacher Council To Accept Longer Term

Acceptance of a 12-month contract and a request for $10,133 as a base salary for a first year teacher with no prior experience took place at the third session between negotiators for teachers and school board of the Thief River Falls district Wednesday. The presentation on behalf of the teachers was made by Bill Blankenfeld, co-chairman of the negotiating team, as a counter-proposal to that presented earlier by the board.

Negotiating team for the school board will report to the full board tonight (Monday), when the board will consider the request and its next offer to the faculty. Next negotiating session is set for Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the superintendent's office in Lincoln high school.

In presenting the teacher request Wednesday, Blankenfeld stated that the proposal was made on the basis of four-thirds of the original request of $7,600 for a nine-month contract. In offering the new proposal, the teachers rejected the board offer of a $6,000 base and a three-lane salary schedule. Teachers continued their request for an eight-lane index schedule, which would place the top level at $20,266 for a teacher with MA degree plus 30 credit hours and 14 years of experience.

Questions for clarification of the request were directed to the teachers council by representatives of the board, primarily by C. L. Charlson, school district attorney and chief negotiator.

The teachers group continued its request for fringe benefits including health insurance, life insurance and income protection insurance, to be paid by the school district. Also requested under a 12-month contract was three weeks of vacation for teachers with five years of experience in any school district and four weeks of vacation for teachers with 10 or more years of experience in any district.

Following discussion on the proposal, and an expression on the part of the teachers' council that the next offer was up to the school board, the teachers' group caucused briefly and returned with a second proposal. This proposal requested a salary of $7,400 for a nine-month contract. On the basis of four-thirds, this would be $9,866 for a 12-month period.

Board negotiators acknowledged receipt of the request and agreed to present it to the full board of education on Monday (tonight).

Pennington NFO

Pennington county N.F.O. chapter will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Goodridge high school gymnasium. Main business of the evening will be the election of delegates to the state convention. Commodity reports will also be given.

Other national figures on 1968 crops placed under price-support loans through December 31, 1968, included: 180.3 million bushels of corn, about 13 per cent less than the 193.9 million bushels under loan a year ago; and 357 million bushels of wheat, compared with 208.2 million bushels through December of 1967.

Annual Library Program Report

Combined annual reports of the Thief River Falls public library and the Northwest regional library for the year ending Dec. 13, 1968, have been released. The regional library had its inception in September of 1968 and serves Pennington and Red Lake counties, with a population of 18,298 and an area of 666,225.18 square miles. It has a regional library board and is headquartered in the Thief River Falls public library. It operates one bookmobile, borrowed from the state library division, which has a capacity of 2,400 books. This bookmobile makes 20 stops in the area in each two-week period.

The annual report shows that the library's book collection was 30,762 at the beginning of the year and that this number was increased to 34,495 at the end of the year. Of these, 20,380 are adult and 14,115 are juvenile books.

The library belongs to the Film Circuit which makes available about 140 films a year. The record for this year shows that there were 665 films shown during the year to a total audience of 30,834.

The library also has a collection of 184 sound recordings, which are available for use in the library.

The report shows that 7,990 of whom are adult and 28 of borrowers are registered, 3,465 whom are non-resident borrowers.

Last year 94,721 books were circulated, 89,818 of which were loaned at the headquarters library, and 41,797 of these were juvenile. The fact that these figures are lower than the total for last year (108,337) may be attributed in part to the discontinuance of the practice of including attendance figures in the circulation count.

The financial report shows receipts of $103,371.75, including city appropriation of $32,937; $3,000 from the county; a state grant of $66,652; fines and fees amounting to $682.75; revenue from contact with schools $50; and sale of books, $50.

City Hearing On Improvements Postponed Thur.

Originally scheduled for Thursday, February 13, the city hearing on street improvement projects has been postponed until 7 p.m., Monday, February 17, according to William Fahey, city clerk. The change in date is to avoid conflict with high school hockey tournaments on that date.

The hearing involves street improvements, extension of water mains and sanitary sewer in the areas of Red Lake boulevard, Dewey avenue, Atlantic avenue, First Southeast addition and Pine avenue north. An advertisement listing the change in hearing date is published elsewhere in this edition of the Times.

THRILLS for the spectators and trophies for the winners highlighted the second annual States-Dominion snowmobile rally sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycees Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls. In the photo above are several of the class winners in cross-country races Saturday who received their trophies at an awards banquet Saturday evening. At left is nine-year-old Joey Cyr of Oklee who was dressed for the occasion Saturday as he watched the cross-country racers finish. The buffalo hide mittens originally were owned by his great-grandfather. At right is Bob Pahlen of Plummer as he takes to the air in his winning jump of 86½ feet. Miss Susan Kay Daley Is Bride of Gregory Herling

Miss Susan Kay Daley and Gregory B Herling exchanged marriage vows in Thief River Falls on December 28, at 2 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Daley of this city and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Herling of Roseau.

Rev Erling Huglen of Roseau, pastor of the groom's home church, officiated at the ceremony attended by approximately 125 relatives and friends. Mrs. Erling Huglen of Roseau was the organist. She played Handel's "Thanks Be To Thee" for the processional and also, accompanied the groom as he sang "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Forming the chancel background for the wedding party were yellow mums on the altar and evergreen trees trimmed with blue lights.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white velvet with a matching chapel-length train. Lace appliques re-embroidered with satin, outlined the high neckline, flowed down the bodice to the empire waist line and encircled the sleeves at the wrists. Miniature pearl buttons secured the openings at the neckline and wrists. A matching headpiece of re-embroidered lace held her veil of silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white mums.

Mrs. Allan Lambrecht of Lisbon, N.D., a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaid was a sister, Miss Linda Daley of this city. Both wore identical floor-length Aline gow gowns of olive green crepe, styled with long sleeves [illegible] with matching green tulle to complement their attire, they wore matching headpieces and each carried a single large yellow mum.

The groom was attended by his brothers, Robert Herling as best man and Arlen Herling as groomsman. Both reside at Roseau. Ushers were Steven Daley of Thief River Falls, brother of the bride, and Jim Hedlund of Roseau, a friend of the groom. As their attire, the men chose black tuxedos. The grooms boutonniere was a yellow rose from the bride's bouquet and his attendants wore white carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a cream lace knit dress complemented by a pink hat and gloves and a corsage of pink roses and white mums. The mother of the groom wore a beige knit dress with coordinating hat and gloves. Her corsage was composed of yellow roses and white mums.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride hosted a reception at the Thief River Falls golf club with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stroh, uncle and aunt of the bride, as host and hostess.

The serving table was centered with a round four-tiered wedding cake trimmed with yellow and green sugar bells. Topping the cake was a silver Christogram encircled by white sugar bells. The cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Lawrence Lubitz, was cut and served by Mrs. Ed Hurt and Mrs Claude Christenson, aunts of the bride. Mrs. Alan Herling and Mrs. Robert Herling, sisters-in-law of the groom, poured.

Connie Christenson, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book while Karen Daley, sister of the bride, and Mary Beth Hurt, a cousin of the bride, served the punch. Waitresses were Arlys Anton, a friend of the bride who also served as the bride's personal attendant, and Mrs Charlie Shriner, a cousin of the bride. Friends of the bride, Myrna Weckworth, Pam Torkelson and Linda Mortenson opened and arranged the gifts. The reception was catered by Mrs. Gail Rux, assisted by Mrs Marge Dunham and Mr. Robert Bakke.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding and reception were from Norfolk, Va.; Fargo, Jamestown, Oakes, Lisbon and Foreman, N.D.; Moorhead, Roseau, Foley, Minneapolis, Pelican Rapids and the Thief River Falls area.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a yellow knit dress accented with brown accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school, attended a year at Northland State college and is now employed by Merchant's National bank and trust company at Fargo, N.D. The groom, a graduate of Roseau high school and Northland State junior college, is a junior at Moorhead State college.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

MRS. JOHNNIE NELSON
of rural Halt

Recipes are constantly changing as new methods are being tried, some to be adapted and others to be discarded as worthless. Some of the greatest changes made have been in breadbaking. During pioneer days, bread dough was carefully guarded to keep it from getting chilled as that ruined the raising power of the yeast. Now unbaked loaves of bread, that are frozen solid, may be purchased and after following instructions on the wrapper, the housewife is able to turn out a loaf of bread that is almost like the homemade kind. Baking bread used to be a project that took hours, in fact, there was a time when the starter was set in the evening, flour was added in the morning and the loaves baked late in the afternoon.

Today's recipe, that was contributed by Mrs. Johnnie Nelson of Holt, is for a process totaling less than two yours. We are grateful to her for sharing her recipe with us.

TWO HOUR BUNS

1 cup sugar
1 cup shortening
2 cups boiling water
4 cakes yeast
2 cups warm water
1 tablespoon salt
12 cups flour, or less

Method: Cream sugar and shortening, add two cups boiling water, beat well with an egg beater, and cool. Dissolve yeast in two cups warm water, add to the other mixture. Add salt and flour. Cover and let rest for one hour. Shape into rolls and bake at once in a 375 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes. These rolls raise while baking and do not require the traditional process of raising before placing in the oven. This recipe yields about three or four dozen buns.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Nelson live on a farm adjoining the Lake Agassiz refuge. They are engaged in grain farming and raising of beef cattle. For a time, Mr. Nelson was also engaged in trucking.

They attend the Nazareth Luthran church at Holt and Mrs. Nelson is a member of the ladies aid and the Esther circle. She is also a member of a homemakers club and for many years has worked with the 4-H club program.

The Nelsons have a cabin on Springsteel Island and are avid fishing enthusiasts. Mrs. Nelson also enjoys raising house plants, gardening and collecting dishes.

Drugs Control Disease, Say Experts in TB

Will TB be gone by 2000 AD, less than 32 years from now? "I doubt it very much," says Dr Gordon Meade, a tuberculosis specialist, in spite of confident predictions that within a few years this disease would no longer be a problem in the United States.

Dr. Meade predicts that chemoprophylaxis—preventive drug treatment of tuberculosis infection—will have become the major tool in controlling TB. Acceptance of chemoprophylaxis is for all persons at high-risk will be universal, and for certain groups at highest risk, such preventive treatment may be mandatory, just as immunizations for other infectious diseases are now.

Chemoprophylaxis is one of the important services provided by the Northwest tuberculosis control clinic in Crookston, according to its medical director, Dr R. O. Sather. A total of 52 persons are presently receiving drugs in the area served by the clinic. For many, the drugs are prescribed for the prevention of disease, while for others they are given to treat active, or recently active, disease.

The clinic's year-end report was given to members of the advisory board at their regular meeting in January. According to Mrs Mary Vattendahl, clinic director and field nurse, the number of chest X-rays has declined in 10 years from more than 2,000 in 1958 to less than 1,000 in 1968. The new infection rate for this area, based on recent mantoux survey figures, is 0.2 per cent.

Many factors have contributed to the continuing decline in the number of new cases of tuberculosis, but the single greatest factor has undoubtedly been the wide-spread use of drugs for treatment and prevention of the disease.

Quoting Dr. Mead again, Mrs. Vattendahl stated, "If the present rote of decline is maintained, the number of new cases will reach the vanishing point in about 65 years—predicated on a continuation of TB control programs as they have been operating in recent years, and not including factors which might retaed or speed up the decline, such as massive increases in population, economic and social change, a slowing down of the TB control effort, on influx of TB from abroad, or an epidemic in a susceptible population."

Pennington county is one of seven northwest Minnesota counties which supports the N.W. TB clinic, Merle Lindberg of Thief River Falls is this county's representative on the clinic's advisory board.

District PTA Executive Board Meets in City

Four appointments were made at the executive board meeting of district 17 PTA held Thursday evening in Thief River Falls. They were Mrs. Everett Kompelien, secretary; Mrs. Margaret Race, mental health chairman, who is also first vice president; and Mrs. Bill Hogan, publicity chairman, all of this city.

Other discussion was on dues and memberships within the district. Mrs. Lynn Hanson, district president, announced that any unit which may qualify for the Gold Leaf award must have its state and national dues in the state PTA office before February 15. In order for a unit to receive this award, it must have a 10 per cent increase in membership over the previous year. District dues are four cents per member and should be mailed as soon as possible to the district treasurer.

Tentative plans were made to have the FOCUS program presented to other schools in the district who were not able to hear it last December.

It was planned that several new PTA's will be organized in the district this spring. Counties, which make up the district are Pennington, Clearwater, Red Lake and Polk, with each one having a vice president.

Officers present at the meeting were Mrs. Lynn Hanson, Goodridge; Bill Hogan; John Sampson, president of the Thief River PTA council; Mrs. Norman Peterson, Pennington county vice president; and Mrs. Richard Munkie, treasurer, East Grand Forks.

The next executive board meeting will be held March 4 at 8:30 p.m. in the meeting room at the First Federal Savings and Loan association of East Grand Forks.

Langen To Give Address at '69 Farm Forum

Congressman Odin Langen, 7th District Republican, will address more than 1,500 at the 1969 farm forum luncheon, March 6, at Leamington hotel, it was announced today by James B. Massie, general chairman.

Theme of the 9th federal reserve district farm forum is "American Agriculture...Toned Down or Turned On", Massie said.

Congressman Langen, an active farmer in Kittson county, was elected to the Minnesota House of Representatives in 1950; chosen as minority leader in 1957; and was elected to Congress in 1958. He was re-elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1960, 1962, 1964, 1966 and 1968; served two terms on interior and insular affairs and government operations' committees; and was chosen by his colleagues to fill a vacancy on the powerful appropriations committee, of which he is currently a member.

His assignments include service on the subcommittees on agriculture and legislative appropriations, being the ranking Republican member on the latter subcommittee. He is chairman of the House Republican task force on agriculture.

Langen will emphasize the importance of the six per cent of the population who operate our farms to the health and well-being of the 94 per cent of urban and non-farm Americans. He insists that American farmers get a better return on their investments and their labor, and believes it essential that people in our cities understand and help solve the problems of our farmers to their mutual benefit.

CROSS-COUNTRY racers leave in a cloud of flying snow as one class departs from the starting line on the 30-mile event. There were 130 entries in cross-country competition Saturday and 220 entries in closed course events on Sunday for a grand total of 350 entries in the two-day event. Sunday's crowd was estimated at 4,000 people at the county fairgrounds, based on an actual count of adult ticket sales, estimate of children attending free of charge and an undetermined number who watched a portion of the race after ticket sales were discontinued at the gate. Weather was exceptionally good for both days of racing.

Peggy Fleming Stars in Ice Folies Show

Peggy Fleming, U.S. Olympic gold medalist and three-time world figure-skating champion, headlines the Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies March 26 to April 6 at the Metropolitan sports center.

There will be 17 performances during the 10-day visit by the follies, whose first appearance at the Metropolitan sports center last year attracted overflow crowds. They return this time with 11 new featured skaters, six spectacular new productions, and 17 fresh solo, pair and specialty numbers.

In addition to Miss Fleming, who was voted female athlete of the year by the Associated Press, the new skaters are:

Ann Russel, double Gold Medalist from Toronto, Canada; Ricki Inglesi, 19-year-old freestyle specialist from Fremont, Calif.; Rika and Lucien Boyer, adagio pair from Europe; Marianne Helmers, former junior ladies Mid - Atlantic champion from Devon, Pa.; Karen Kresge, who will perform as "the actress" in the show's opening production; the Jackpots, a slapstick comedy team of Rick McKinnon, Gene Floyd, Joe Niederkorn and Dick Cooper; and "Chocolate Moose," children's animal, powered by McKinnon and Cooper.

Billed as "the most beautiful show in the world," the follies will stage production numbers which take audiences on a world-wide whirl to such places and time as East India, Hawaii, the wild, wild west, and the "roarng" 20's—then out of this world to make-believe spot in outer space called "Looney Land Funtazzmagoria."

The productions will be highlighted by the Ice Follies' seasoned performers — Richard Dwyer, Susan Berens, Donald Jackson, Ken and Paulette Ormsby, Gary Johnson, the Scarecrows, the Beattys and "Inky Dinky" the bear.

Specially featured will be "Mr. Frick," (Werner Groebli), who has been skating with the follies for 30 years—longer than any performer with any ice show.

Providing added glamour will be the "Dwyer Girls," considered the four most beautiful Ice Follilettes, and the world-famous Ice Follilette precision line.

The brightest star is 20-year-old Peggy Fleming, whose stunning performance at the winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, last February earned her the women's figure skating championship, a gold medal and millions of fans all over the world.

Her Olympic triumph capped an amateur career which began in 1959 when Miss Fleming won the first skating competition she ever entered, the Central Pacific championships for junior girls in San Francisco, Calif. She went on to capture 14 more titles in the next nine years, including the U.S. figure skating crown five times and the world championship three times. She was undefeated in skating competition after 1966.

Answer Questions on Federal Income Tax

These questions most frequently asked by taxpayers on federal income tax matters with authoritative answers are provided by the office of the district director of Internal revenue, St. Paul.

Q—What is this amnesty period for registering firearms? I didn't know firearms had to be registered with IRS.

A—Certain gangster-type weapons such as machine guns, sawed-off shotguns, short-barreled rifles and silencers have been required to be registered with IRS since 1934 when the National Firearms act was passed.

The amnesty period from November 2 to December 1 permits anyone who owns a gangster-type weapon and has violated the law by not registering it, to register it without penalty during the 30-day amnesty period. Grenades, bombs, land mines and other destructive devices should also be registered during this period.

The alcohol and tobacco tax division of IRS has the responsibility for administerng the gun control laws and can give you the details on registering these weapons. Your local IRS office can furnish forms and the address of the alcohol and tobacco tax office nearest you.

Q—Our baby is due the end of the month. When can my husband start taking another withholding exemption?

A—As soon a the child is born. The full $600 exemption for a dependent may be taken on your tax return for a child born any time before the end of the year.

Q—Is the cost of an out-of-state hunting license deductible?

A—No, hunting licenses are not deductible.

Q—We purchased tickets to a football game sponsored by a charity group. Can we deduct the cost of the tickets as a charitable contribution?

A—A portion of the ticket price may be deductible. Find out what the cost of your seats would be at a comparable football game. The difference between the regular cost and the price you paid may be taken as a charitable contribution.

To make it easier for taxpayers to deduct the proper amount in these situations, the sponsors usually will list the deductible amount on the ticket.

Q—I'm a free lance writer and one of the magazines to which I have sold a story wants my Social Security number. Have they a right to ask for it?

A—Yes, payments to self-employed persons need to be identified by the Social Security number of the recipient when the amount is $600 or more. These are reported to IRS on Form 1099 just as a bank reports interest payments to us.

Q—I started working this fall. Will enough be taken out of my paycheck to cover the new surtax as well as the regular income tax?

A—For most people, withholding will be sufficient to satisfy their federal tax liabilities this year as it has in the past.

Withholding rates were adjusted in July to take care of the 10 per cent tax surcharge. As you started work after that date, tax will have been withheld at rates to satisfy your federal income tax liability.

The new tax surcharge will have an effective rate of 7½ per cent in 1968 because it is in effect for only nine months of the year for individuals. The surcharge on corporation income is in effect for the entire 12 months of 1968.

Q—I made a substantial pledge to my church's building fund. Can I take this deduction on my 1969 return if it is to my advantage?

A—Deductions for charitable contributions can only be taken for the tax year they are actually paid. If you pay all or part of your pledge this year then you must take the deduction on your 1968 return for the amount actually paid. To take the deduction on your 1969 return you should postpone your payments until 1969.

Q—Our country place was damaged by lightning. Can we deduct the loss?

A—If the loss exceeds $100 and is not covered by insurance you may be entitled to a tax deduction. Generally, the loss is the difference in the value of the property before and after the lightning struck.

Senior Citizens With Low Income Get Tax Relief

Minnesotas low income senior citizens are reminded that it will soon be time for them to file a state income tax report in order to receive the refunds provided for them in the tax relief law passed by the 1967 state legislature.

Mrs. Doris Hillard, who is project director of the senior citizens program reports that her organization will be working hard to see that every senior citizen in the Northwest Community Action Inc. area who is entitled to a tax refund based upon the real estate taxes or rent paid in 1968 will receive it. Mrs. Hillard says that a letter received from the governors citizens council on aging indicates that less than 20,000 elderly Minnesotans received benefits from the law last year.

The local senior citizen centers plan to provide assistance to eligible older persons in preparing the forms because many older persons are not familiar with tax forms and may be confused by the paper work needed to file their claim for a refund. The refunds are based upon the amount of "homestead taxes or rent paid and upon the income of the older person. The lower the income, the higher the percentage of refund. Claims must be filed before April 15, 1969, the regular tax deadline.

Persons eligible for the refund must meet these qualifications: (1) over 65 years of age during all of 1968 (born before January 1, 1903) and a resident of the state for the entire year; (2) home-owners must have a total income of less than $2,000 during the year and must have paid all taxes due in previous years; (3) renters must have a total income of less than $3,500, must have rented for the entire year and lived in one residence for at least six months. Persons who are receiving public funds (Old Age Assistance direct relief, etc.) to pay taxes or rent are not eligible.

The difference in income eligibility between renters and home owners has developd because of the general state-wide property tax relief provisions of the 1967 tax law, which already provided a 35 per cent reduction in homestead taxes. This is a greater percentage than is allowed to senior citizens with a total income over $2,000, so there is no advantage in filing under the senior citizens tax relief law.

Mrs. Hillard says that senior citizens who think that they may qualify for a refund should watch this paper for announcements concerning the time and place when assistance will be available to help them file their tax report.

Charge Against Argyle Men Is Reduced

Two Argyle men were charged with and pleaded guilty to having sexual intercourse with a child when they appeared before District Judge Harley Swenson at Crookston on January 31. Judge Swenson reset bail for each at $5,000 pending a pre-sentence investigation.

Peter Pokrzywinski, 38, and David Kurz, 19, have been held in custody since the incident with a Grygla girl November 15. The charge to which the two men pled guilty was reduced from a charge of aggravated rape, and the kidnapping charge against them was dropped. The crime carries a penalty of 0 to 5 years imprisonment.

Face value of 208,000 loans backed by Veterans administration during 1968 was $3,716,521,900.

jumps during the races. A number of spills took place, primarily in the second corner of the first turn where machines were bunched up after leaving the starting line.

Bob Pahlen won the jumping event with a leap of 96½ feet. It was his only jump of the day and outdistanced three other jumps by a considerable margin. The powderpuff race was won by Jean Graim of Roseau, driving a Polaris machine, as she edged Sharry Hanson of Thief River Falls on an Arctic Cat. In winning, Jean defended the title she won last year on a Snow-Jet.

Due to the lack of time today, a complete listing of placings in the cross-country and closed course races will be published in the Wednesday edition.

Urges Advance Farm Planning Due To Floods

Farmers and handlers of farm products should start planning now to cope with the problems of spring floods, according to Russel G. Schwandt, commissioner of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

"We have all been forwarned that the possibility of floods this spring increases with each snowfall," he said. "The dangers of floods is further aggravated because of the excessive moisture in the ground from last fall, which will prevent the ground serving as a reservoir as has been the case in other years."

Schwandt emphasized that farmers should start their planning now to avert serious losses to grain and other commodities in storage. He pointed out that it would be desirable for them to be prepared to move farm products off the flood plains should it become necessary to do so. Country elevators should start planning for transportation of grain now being held should it develop that the grain has to be moved.

The department of agriculture is cooperating with the Minnesota department of civil defense in this planning effort. Phil Iverson, director of the Minnesota department of civil defense, should be contacted if assistance is needed in securing box cars to move commodities which are in danger of being lost due to floods.

County Board Given Petition On Ditch Use

Pennington county commissioners received a petition from the city of Thief River Falls Tuesday for use of a county ditch as an outlet for the proposed sewage lagoon west and south of the city. Mayor A. E. Jacobson and William Fahey, city clerk, presented the petition.

The board called for bids on a new front end loader with the bids to be opened on March 4 at 11 a.m., in the meeting room of the county commissioners in the courthouse in Thief River Falls.

In other action the board also accepted the resignation of the Pennington county weed inspector, Ed Moren, who has held that position for 21 years. He was also the Red Lake county weed inspector. His resignation will be effective March 1. The board will meet this week along with the Red Lake county board to find a successor for Moren.

The board also adjusted the county engineers salary to $11,400. In another move the board set a new charge for snowplowing for county residents. The new charges will be $8 an hour, $4 for a half hour and a minimum of $3 per job.

Skaar Introduces Bill To Control Corporate Farms

Legislation aimed at preserving the family farm and curbing the trend toward corporation farming in Minnesota has been introduced in the state House of Representatives by Representative Andrew Skaar of Thief River Falls.

Rep. Skaar is co-author of House File No 26, which would limit the amount of land held by corporation farms to a maximum of 640 acres. The bill would apply the acreage limitation to corporations where the major stockholder is not a bona fide farmer.

In announcing his sponsorship of the bill, Rep. Skaar pointed out that the number of corporation farms in Minnesota has increased from 90 to 340 in the last decade.

"In about two-thirds of the present farm corporations the major stockholder is not a farmer by occupation," the Thief River Falls lawmaker said.

"Usually, he incorporated not to obtain additional capital but to limit his liability. He wants to separate the assets of his enterprise rather than to share his investment."

Rep. Skaar pointed to a number of problems caused for rural areas by extensive corporation farming, among them a lack of attention to "amenities of life in rural areas" and an inadequate rural social structure.

"Schools have been poorer, the local tax base is impaired, income from the corporation farm is spent outside the community in which it is earned, and community centers are poorly equipped," he said.

He also outlined a number of tax problems caused by corporation farms.

"Corporation farmers are allowed to take capitol gains with a maximum tax rate of 25 per cent, where the normal taxpayer might pay a tax of from 40 to 60 per cent on the same income.

"Because their policies are frequently motivated by such considerations, they may not always be in the best interests of agriculture generally," he said.

Council To Aid Handicapped In 4-County Area

School administrators from Kittson, East Marshall, Pennington and Roseau counties have formulized a Regional Interdistrict Council (RIC) to design and implement education programs for handicapped children. More than 15 school systems have joined the council to date.

Norman Cole, special education regional consultant, representing the state office of education indicates that this action should have a major impact in providing better services to children with speech, hearing, vision, retarded and emotional handicapping conditions.

In Cole's judgment, there exist hundreds of children within these counties who can benefit from specialized education, but who are currently receiving little special support in school.

Alcoholics Can Cost State $100 Million

Richard M. Lynch, executive director of the Minnesota Commission on Alcohol problems, a state agency, issued a warning today that at the rate that we are producing alcoholics in Minnesota, it could very well cost the state of Minnesota over $100 million in 1969.

In Minnesota there are 120,000 problem drinkers of whom approximately 75,000 are alcoholics. The estimated cost to the state of Minnesota during 1967 was about $1,600 per alcoholic or a total in excess of $91 million.

"We must get aid to problem drinkers before they become alcoholics," Lynch said. "There are both public and private treatment centers available in Minnesota, and Alcoholics Anonymous has chapters in many communities throughout the state."

According to Lynch, alcoholism is treatable and the earlier it is detected the better the chances for recovery. Lynch listed the warning signals for alcoholism as: 1. difficult to get along with when drinking; 2. drinks "because he is depressed;" 3. drinks "to calm his nerves; 4. drinks until he is "dead drunk" at times; 5. can't remember parts of some drinking episodes; 6. hides liquor; 7. lies about his drinking; 8 neglects to eat when he is drinking; 9 neglects his family when he is drinking.

"Alcoholism is costing Minnesota employers a pretty piece of change as well," Lynch said. "Conservative estimates indicate there are 83,920 problem drinkers in Minnesota industry. These are not all alcoholics. Amazingly, it is estimated that five and one-half per cent of the Minnesota work force is made up of alcoholics—57,695 in number.

"Minnesota businesses are paying a good portion of that cost in tax dollars. But the cost of alcoholism to business goes beyond that when taking into account the loss in potential of executives or actual mistakes in policy or decision-making which can be very costly.

"Nationwide tre cost of alcoholism to business is estimated at $4 billion annually, with between 5.3 and 10 per cent of the work force involved.

"With a concerted effort on the part of both the public and private agencies which have been established to combat alcoholism, we hope to focus the public's attention on this growing national social, health, and business problem," Lynch said.

State Announces Apportionment Of Road Funds

Counties in Minnesota were notified by the Minnesota highway department recently that they would be sharing over $47 million dollars of state aid for their county roads. Based on revenues from the first half of the fiscal year, the total estimated apportionment for county state aid for the entire year amounts to $47,316,647.

Area counties and their allotments include, Marshall, $824,638; Pennington, $333,097; Red Lake, $27,647; and Roseau, $599,408.

Also apportioned were $15,121,277 for municipal state aid streets. Only area city that was listed was Thief River Falls, which will receive $10,020 for maintenance and $35,938 for construction.

Surplus Corn Given For Pheasant Feed

Surplus corn has been released to the Minnesota conservation department by the U. S. department of agriculture to feed pheasants in 16 counties where food problems are critical, it was announced today.

Richard Wettersten, director of the department's game and fish division, said the surplus grain will be used to feed birds in the counties of Lincoln, Lyon, Lac qui Parle, Yellow Medicine, Swift, Stevens, Traverse, Big Stone, Grant, Wilkin, Ottertail, Anoka, Ramsey, Hennepin, Dakota, Scott and Carver.

"These are the counties where food for pheasants is very scarce; most other counties still have some corn in fields that were too wet to harvest this past fall," he said. Game managers will continue to evaluate the pheasant food situation and additional counties may be added to the list as the need increases.

The winter of 1969 will probably go down as one of the worst on record for Minnesota's pheasants, Wettersten said. Heavy snows, high winds and sleet this winter have cut sharply into the pheasant population. Wettersten said the winters of 1962, 1965 and 1967 were also quite severe.

"Pheasants today are subject to greater winter mortality than they were 25 years ago because of the continual destruction of age and cultivation of marshes, and the elimination of farm wind breaks and odd corners," he explained.

This factor, together with the elimination of safe nesting cover, resulting from the conversion of farm fields from small grains to corn and other row crops, have literally brought the pheasant population "to its knees", Wettersten declared.

He said state game managers have been picking up dead pheasants at scattered locations across the state since early December but that nearly all had died of exposure, not starvation.

Many more pheasants are believed to be lying buried beneath the heavy snow. At least one half of the state's normal pheasant population is believed to be gone at this time, Wettersten said.

Deep snows have filled in most existing marshes and thickets so that they are no longer of value as winter cover and pheasants are struggling to survive in farm windbreaks.

"Before the advent of fall plowing of corn fields," Wettersten said, "a lot of snow would be caught and held in the stubble fields; now it blows off into the low spots, filling them in rapidly."

Generally speaking, food sources have been adequate in the southern counties because many fields were too wet to harvest. The food-short areas are in the Twin Cities area and the west central part of the state.

Artificial feeding can be effective where natural food supplies have been covered by deep snow but it should be done with caution and only where natural foods are scarce.

Sportsmens' organizations and individuals who know of localized areas where food is critical should contact their local game manager or conservation officer for information as to where surplus grain can be picked up.

The following points should be kept in mind said Wettersten: 1) Provide feed only when other sources of natural food are not available; 2) Put out feed near pheasant roosting sites, ideally in areas that will blow clear of snow; 3) never put out feed along roadways because pheasants will be attracted to roads and killed by motor vehicles; 4) Once feeding has started it must be continued for the duration of the emergency.

FIRST TURN action provided much of the thrills at the States-Dominion snowmobile rally Sunday afternoon in Thief River Falls. One machine is shown taking the turn extremely high as the driver attempts to pass other machines in the modified class.

The Library Corner

by Flora Altison

Hi, again; so glad to hear from some of you loyal readers that you've missed this column. It wasn't due to a lack of interest on our part; as you know, this ordering books for the Red Lake Falls library kept us all so busy, we didn't get around to a few of the regular things.

Cataloguing, processing and getting the books read (there are about 48 cartons of them in the workroom right now) isn't going to be part of my responsibility and there will be time for getting "Library Corner" out each week as usual. And as usual, we try to bring you date on some of the interesting books that come across our desk and that we consider worth your time reading.

Incidentally, how many of you listen to Earl Nightingale on the radio? Several days ago he paid a golden tribute to books, something that topped the best of what we've run across on the subject. We are sending for the script and will probably display it on the bulletin board. If you don't read, you're missing TOO much. And it's so available to you at your public library: make use of that little library card. May we make a few suggestions for your reading enrichment?

What's your hobby, avocation, plan for your leisure hours? Here are some recent additions to the library; you should find a favorite here, added to what we already have, an impressive list: "Small Meals for Company" (for small or large groups) should be helpful to every housewife; "How to Get Your Song Recorded" might be the answer to some of you teenagers who are part of a combo; "Dictionary of Similies" for the student, old or young; "Guide to Racing Cars," "Fairy Lamps," "A Color Guide to Bennington Pottery," "Field Guide to Early American Furniture," "Care and Repair of Antiques," "Print Your Own Fabrics", "Make Things With Straw and Raffia", "Make Your Own Costume Jewelry", "Old Dolls" "Sketching Is Easy", "Coin Dictionary Guide", "Relax With Yoga."

If one or more of these books won't start you doing your thing, there are dozens of others that just might hook you. Look under Handicrafts or the title of these books just mentioned. The card catalog is the library "road map", so make use of it. If you need help, please do ask us. We don't ever want you walking out of here without what you want, if we can help you find it.

William Lederer's "Our Own Worst Enemy" is a thoughtful look at the Vietnam situation. In it, Lederer (you know that name!) refers to our effort there as "wasteful bungling and ineptitude...a losing battle." He goes on to tell why he feels this way, also giving alternatives, which he thinks can be used to remedy the situation. "Is it not obvious," he questions, "that we are doing something wrong?" We reserve further comments; read it yourself and make up your own mind.

For a change of pace, there's Herbert Tarr's "Heaven Help Us," in which he proves that it is possible to be reverent and funny all at the same time. He gives you a look into the not-so-sedate world of the pulpit and the congregation its occupant is dedicated to serve. Blended with the humor are pathos and tears so often back to back, causing you to wipe your eyes over something that moves you and then breaking into laughter at the next line.

The young rabbi is often faced with the mundane things of life which he must somehow keep kosher. His visit with a youth group to a Christian church crackles with humor while somehow coming away with less brotherly love than it was supposed to engender. The rabbi encounters a rare assortment of mankind...and womankind...and this makes for dialog that is both moving and entertaining. Having read it, you'll want to pass it on to your friends. At least part of every paragraph is quotable.

Teenagers: "Flight From Love," by Margaret Bell, is a particularly sensitive story of 16-year old Wilma with whose family a bush pilot has lived in the Alaska wilderness for many years. When she finds herself in love with him, she faces a stand-off with her parents, and not only on this one issue. She find her way out of her dilemmas through some pretty harsh testing. And those whom she loves and whom she rejects come through for her.

Frank Bonham's "The Ghost Front" (he also authored "Durango Street," another of your favorites) is the story of 18-year-old twins, inseperable before they went to war. On their own in the Battle of the Bulge (WW II) they experience all the agony, the fear, the humanness and heroic bravery which makes men of boys overnight! The outcome is a smasher; you will hold your breath to the very last page.

Children's books that are works of art and not to be missed are the colorful and endearing "Johnny and the Birds," and "Jeepers, the Little Frog". Also look for the big, bright and beautiful "The Little Mailman," and "The Witch and the Cat and the Baseball Bat" and others among these enchanting new arrivals.

See you at the library.

We Offer Applause

President Nixon's announcement that he would abolish a system of political appointment of postmasters and rural mail carriers deserves a solid round of applause. Rare, indeed, is the political figure who surrenders even a small portion of his authority.

"Appointment of the best man for each job eliminates the political patronage system and the administration of President Richard Nixon intends to institute the new procedures immediately," stated Winton M. Blout, postmaster general. President Nixon has announced that appointments would be made under open competitive examination, with the top qualifiers getting the jobs.

The President also called back 451 postmaster appointments which had been submitted to the Senate by former President Lyndon B. Johnson in the last days before Nixon took office. Except for fourth class post offices, postmasters are nominated by the President and subject to Senate confirmation. Postmasters of fourth class offices are appointed directly by the postmaster general.

Approximately [illegible] postmasters and 1,800 new rural mail carriers are named each year. In all, there are about 33,000 postmasters and 31,000 rural carriers in the country today. Rural carriers are appointed by the postmaster general, usually on the recommendation of a member of Congress.

Although the political patronage system has been in effect since the days of Benjamin Franklin, the first postmaster general, it is not a good practice. Many capable and qualified applicants have been passed over by persons giving political consideration, and this has not been conducive to improving employee quality in the department.

The move may be minor in a total relationship to the nation, but it is significant to the new administration. It demonstrates a concern for individuals, and the competitive spirit which has been dormant too long in much of America, particularly government employment. We offer our applause for the President's action.

Ban the Ban!

Congress should act swiftly to trim the wings of the Federal Communications commission in its announced intent to completely ban radio and television advertising of cigarettes. The lawmakers should let it be known quickly and clearly that it will stand for no such power grab by the federal agency which Congress itself created.

Offered as a reason for the FCC announcement is the statement that: "Medical and scientific opinion has long recognized the causal relationship between cigarette smoking and lung cancer. If the FCC proposal is carried out it will be a vital contribution to public health and warrants wide public support."

Radio and television advertising of cigarettes brings in an estimated $226.9 million each year to broadcasters, or about 10 per cent of their revenue. No estimate was made of the fees paid to advertising agencies and related fields for planning and production of cigarette commercials.

The question is not one of revenue or economics or even health so much as it is a question of permitting more government interference in private business. The proposal is not to ban smoking of cigarettes, nor to ban growing of tobacco, but merely to ban the advertising of cigarettes on radio and television.

John J. Public had better react pretty quick to the "protection" that government agencies are so anxious to provide. The old excuse for stupid legislation used to be that the public demanded it. There isn't even a hint of that excuse in the FCC proposal. It is strictly government-inspired and government-proposed and would be government-administered.

What will be the next step by a government agency to control the lives of relationship between automobiles and traffic deaths; will auto advertising be banned? There is a "causal" relationship between soap and bathtub falls; will soap operas fall before the government push? There is a "causal" relationship between alcohol and crime as well as highway deaths; will beer advertising be the next to go? Should a group of Washington bureaucrats be allowed to decree what advertising is acceptable to the buying public, beyond reasonable standards of honesty, morality and product representation?

Lung cancer is bad. Smoking cigarettes may and probably does contribute to lung cancer in some cases. But the American public must also be aware of another cancer—that which exists in the form of government control. It eats away at freedoms, devouring them bit by bit, destroying them and spreading to destroy other freedoms.

Americans are free to choose whether they smoke or don't smoke cigarettes, and they should have that freedom. Manufacturers of cigarettes should be free to compete in sales of their products. Most such advertising is designed to sell the person who already smokes on one brand rather than another. This is free enterprise; this is what makes the American system work. If people in government aren't smart enough to realize it by themselves, then people not in government better provide them with a little education in the matter.

In Your Hands

The following comments were made recently by Sherrill Halbert, judge of the U.S. court in Sacramento, Calif.:

The time has come to stop and think, when man, created in the image of God, seems willing to accept moral standards below those of the beasts of the jungle. There is great concern for violators of the law, but none for the victims. People who are not given their way resort to violence and pillage with impunity. Men defeat their creditors through bankruptcy, with no more concern than coming in out of the rain. Women bear children out of wedlock, and still associate with the elite and remain stars in the entertainment world.

Relief has become a way of life for some of our people. Sanctity of the home is looked upon as something which is old fashioned. What has become of the man who was devoted to his wife and family; who believed in doing a full day's work for a decent wage; who believed that it was a sin not to pay his honest debts; who loved his country and, if necessary, was willing to die for it; and who would forever hang his head in shame if forced to accept charity.

You may say that there are many people about who have these qualities. If such there be, well would it be for them to heed what Edmund Burke said: "The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing."

It is not enough to be industrious, decent, honest, and law-abiding. Good men must be willing to stand up and be counted when the force of evil raises it ugly head.

Do You Doubt?

Do you doubt that instigators of campus disorders have more at the base of their conduct than the stated superficial reasons? Do you think that students get all that riled up over dorm hours and administrative decisions and failure to offer credit courses in Buddhism or karate?

Jack Craemer comments on the question in the San Rafael, Calif., "Independent Journal". Pay attention to the terms used and ask yourself if they sound like the wording of a bunch of kids out for kicks:

If you go near the distrupters at San Francisco State or elsewhere, one sheet of propaganda after another is thrust upon you.

Reading the stuff will make your hair stand on end.

Here are excerpts from one sheet handed out at San Francisco State last week:

"...There is no way (Mayor) Alioto or any of his friends can stop the growing consciousness of the need for revolution in this country."

"We consider Alioto's attack on the Maoists as a compliment to our (Progressive Labor) Party and the international revolutionary movement."

"Alioto and the rest of his class are frightened to death that more and more students are considering revolution as the only alternative to a system which is nothing but a thinly veiled dictatorship of the very rich represented at S.F. State by the board of trustees which makes the laws only to enforce the power of its army and police over the masses of people."

"There is no question that the struggle must go on to insure that the whole racist and bourgeois content of education in this country is totally exposed and destroyed."

"We further support the right to revolutionary violence against the ruling class, recognizing that they must be destroyed before a working class state can be built."

There is no end to the amount of this kind of thing which is passed out in propaganda leaflets by the disrupters at San Francisco State and elsewhere.

CAPITOL COMMENT

by Marty McGowan

By Marty McGowan

After having broken the billion dollar barrier mentioned here recently, it wasn't too difficult for the governor to go for two billion. At least that was almost the total of the budget Gov. LeVander put before the legislature last week at 1.9 billion.

The governor did this with some financial wizardry. He didn't request any increases in rates on the sales tax or state income tax. He went instead to the geese that lay the golden eggs—liquor and cigarettes—and counted on economic growth to make up the balance. Total additional spending requested is about $450 million with $400 million to come from the economic growth and about $42 million from increases in the liquor and cigarette excises. Increases in license fees, such as $2 for getting a new drivers license instead of $1, make up the small differences.

There are a couple of "iffy predications in the budget. One is this matter of economic growth. This is a fancy way of saying that individuals and corporations in Minnesota will do so much more business during the next couple years, their salaries and profits will be so much greater that this will bring so much more to the state in income tax revenue, largely dedicated to pay the big bill for aids to schools.

When Rolland Hatfield was tax commissioner he explained to the House Tax committee how he projected this economic growth, using various barometers of Gross National Product, Federal Reserve banking statistics and some other economic reports. He was always quite close, and anything within a three per cent error is considered close in this field. Commissioner Hatfield disputed the figures of Administration Commissioner Quigley in the Rolvaag administration, but now Hatfield occupies Quigley's office and his figures are being used by Gov. LeVander.

The other "iffy area is the question of the renewal of the 10 per cent federal income surtax. The state budget was balanced on the predication this surtax would not be renewed. But at about the same time the governor was issuing his budget, President Nixon and his congressional contacts issued a statement saying they have now decided the surtax will have to be continued. If this is done that will put a $40 million hole in the governor's budget.

Gov. LeVander hedged this issue by saying that if the sur tax is continued he will provide other alternatives later to make up that deficit. One problem here is that congress might not enact the surtax renewal until after the state legislature has adjourned.

You will note there were no increases proposed for taxes on beer. Minnesota has several breweries but no distilleries for liquor. It will be interesting to see what the powerful liquor lobby does about the proposal for an additional 15 cents tax on a fifth of liquor.

A hike of three cents per pack was proposed for cigarettes. There are those who contend that if the tax gets too high, people will stop buying and the expected gain in revenue will not materialize. This has not been true in cigarettes, however, as people who are hooked on them will keep buying after a few grumbles at the new rates and a momentary slowdown in purchases.

DFLiberals found the budget difficult to criticize. No increases were proposed in their sacred areas of income and sales taxes and they were not about to attack added taxes on luxuries. They could only call the budget "unimaginative."

The proposal didn't do much for elementary and secondary education. It proposed an increase of only from 47.5 to 48 per cent in basic aids, though the governor contends there are hidden areas of support which make it 50 per cent. The university and state college did not receive what they want, but the junior colleges fared better.

This is not to say the budget will come through the session intact. It is only a suggestion, a guideline. The independent senate is beginning to act more independently and has started hearings of its own with department heads to learn their needs, rather than accept what the governor has said are their needs. That might indicate some shifts in the final appropriations.

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Governor LeVander, speaking before the traditional joint convention of the Senate and House, presented his budget recommendations for the coming biennium on January 25. The governor trimmed approximately 80 million dollars from the requests that had been presented to him by the various state departments and educational agencies of the state.

Direct appropriations of all funds in 1967 amounted to 1.027 billion dollars. In the last biennium, direct plus open appropriations from property tax relief, general revenue, and income tax funds totaled 1.550 billion dollars. The direct appropriations for the coming biennium would amount to 1.268 billion dollars or an increase of 23½ per cent.

The direct plus the open appropriations from property tax relief, general revenue and income tax amounts to $2.026 billion or an increase of 30.7 per cent for the biennium.

The governor recommended substantial increases for the junior colleges and area vocational schools in his budget message. For junior colleges, the governor recommends $26.6 million, an increase of $12.7 million or 85 per cent over the past biennium. For area vocational schools, the governor recommends $30 million, an increase of $12 million or 67 per cent for the biennium.

The total state expenditures, including funds passing through the state treasury for local units of government, state expenditures of revolving funds, etc., totaled 3 billion 235 million dollars in the 196769 biennium, and are estimated at 3 billion 790 million dollars for the 1969-71 biennium.

Greatly increased property tax relief was promised by the governor for the coming biennium. A total of $368 million will have been paid out by June 30 of this year, and for the coming biennium that amount will increase to $579 million. Tax relief for personal property on manufacturers tools and machinery or inventory on farm equipment and livestock will increase by $29 million.

Relief for the elderly and renters is to go up by $15 million and the governors budget for $4 million for added relief to the elderly is being brought to the legislature for consideration. Because one-fourth of all property tax relief aid must be in the form of per capita grants to local governments and school districts, they will increase by $35 million dollars.

The 6½ million dollars recommended by LeVander for special distressed school districts will come in that increase. To fund these budget recommendations, Gov. LeVander is proposing no major tax increases. He has suggested, however, a three per cent increase in cigarette taxes and a rise of 15 cents a fifth in liquor taxes along with a broad range of higher licenses and other fees.

The governor stated that package would raise 42.3 million dollars and that amount in addition to our existing tax structure should meet the needs of the state for the coming biennium.

The Feed Grain and Wheat Program sign up for 1969 is in progress. Many farmers have filed their intentions to participate in the program. The program for wheat this year is quite attractive with the diversion of the entire allotment for pay up to 21.7 acres.

The Feed Grain Program is also better this year for farmers of this area with the inclusion of barley in the program. Anyone with a base of 25 acres or less may divert the whole 25 acres this year. If the base is over 25 acres, you may divert 25 acres or 50 percent of the base whichever is larger.

Sign up for ACP practices is now in progress also. If you are intending to establish an ACP Practice on your farm this coming year, we urge you to sign up soon. When you are in signing up for the Feed Grain or Wheat Program, this would be an excellent time to sign up for ACP Practices also. Ruth Hanson, our ACP Clerk, has all the information on the practices for the 1969 programs. If you have any questions in regard to any practice, she will be pleased to answer them for you.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir

You might help me locate some people in that area. The name is Bert Hammer, or anyone who might be a part of his family. I would like to contact.

I have a picture of the wedding party of Bert Hammer, groom, but do not know bride's name. This picture made by J. Borry Photographee, Thief River Falls. I presume this wedding was in or close to this area, made about 55 or 60 years ago If Bert Hammer is still living, he would be about 80 years or more. He may have children or grandchildren still living in that area.

I have had a picture made from this wedding picture, thinking about having it in your paper. Somebody might recognize some member of the party. There are two other ladies and two other men besides the bride and groom, in this picture. My late husband is a member of this wedding party.

My late husband, Gus Edward Gunderson, was born in the southern part of North Dakota and lived with his mother and father. After his father died, when a young man, his mother returned to Norway with two small children. My husband was left with an unmarried uncle. I never knew the little place they lived and he being born in, but it was in Sargent County, North Dakota.

Locating the Hammer family, or some person interested, might help me locate the only close relative, a brother, of my husband's. He came back to U.S.A. after he grew up.

If you can assist me in any way please advise me.

Thank you kindly for reading such a long letter, and trying to understand it.

Mr. Editor:

I believe it is about the best moment to bring up a very useful subject. The potential use of the old city Library Building. How about a sound investment in the lives of the young of T.R.F. I am thinking of a Youth Center. Think of the good it would do the city. It might even save the tax payer money in the end. How much money is spent a year on the Juvenile Delinquency of this city? Well wouldn't this save a little on war and tear of the police force. It would give the teenagers a good healthy atmosphere to go to after all home work was done.

Just think of it, no more young kids hanging out in the local places of business. It would give them (the youngsters) a sence of responsibility. They would have to take over the "Government" of the Center. Of course with adult supervision. But still they would have to appoint members of the Government. People they respect from their own age group.

Of course the adults would have to pay for most of the initial costs but the teens could help by sponsoring dances and the like. This of course would be only a drop in the bucket, but it would make a difference to the kids to think that it wasn't just a gift from Mom and Dad.

Please if you are interested, tell your alderman that you will help to support him if it comes to a head. Remember, its for the good of the community as well as your children.

1969 Estimated Tax Forms Are Being Mailed

Completely new estimated tax forms for reporting and paying estimated tax for 1969 will be mailed about February to approximately 100,000 Minnesota taxpayers, according to George O. Lethert, district director of Internal revenue.

A taxpayer should not assume that he is required to file or pay estimated tax simply because he receives the new package, Lethert said. Anyone receiving the new forms package should read the instructions very carefully to determine whether he is required to file on estimate.

No declaration is required, in any event, if the estimated tax not subject to withholding can reasonably be expected to be less than $40.

The distribution of estimated tax forms is being made separately because of the introduction of some new features designed to reduce problems in crediting payments to estimated tax accounts. The forms and instructions were previously a part of the income tax pamphlets.

The new package will include the necessary forms, instructions and four payment "vouchers" and pre-addressed return envelopes. The new package will be sent to all taxpayers whose prior year records indicate that they may be liable for filing an estimated tax declaration in 1969.

Lethert said the form and payment vouchers will be imprinted with the taxpayer's name, address and social security number exactly as they appear on the Internal revenue file. The imprinted forms will provide assurance that the taxpayer is properly identified and that his payments are credited to the correct account.

Copies of the new form and instructions will be available at IRS offices for those who do not receive them through the mail.

Farmers Urged To Study Feed Grain Provisions

Chairman of the Marshall County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee today urged farmers to study provisions of the 1969 feed grain program to insure that they don't overlook benefits available only to those who participate.

Marcel Dahl said producers who are eligible to participate in voluntary production control program have received their notification of "base acreage" as well as general information on program provisions. Further details on the program are available at the county ASCS office and from county and community ASC committeemen.

Dahl said the principal benefits to cooperators are the availability of price-support loan price - support payments, acreage diversion payments and higher prices resulting from a better balance between supply and demand for the commodities. Farmers must reduce their feed grain acreage to be eligible for these benefits.

Sign-up period for the program is February 3 through March 21. Dahl said the 1969 program is similar to the one in effect last year, with the only major exception that barley is included this year. The other two eligible feed grains are corn and grain sorghum.

Goal of this year's program is the diversion to conserving uses of more acreage than last year. Nationally, the goal is a diversion of 37 million acres—nearly five million more acres than last year when barley was not in the program.

If the diversion goal is reached, Dahl said, it is expected that total production would be slightly less than utilization, thereby resulting in a reduction in carryover stocks.

Careers In Food and Fiber

There is a growing need for individuals with a technical understanding of agriculture and training in economics, says Dale C. Dahl, associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota.

The agricultural economics curriculum is designed to fill these needs. Students interested in majoring in this field should first have a strong background in mathematics and other logic-orientated courses and secondly have a good deal of training in communications skills. They should be able to meet people easily and communicate naturally, he says.

In addition, they should be able to abstract from reality long enough to form meaningful solution to problems. They should also have a real interest in current affairs and recognize their abilities to change the course of events.

The agricultural economics curriculum is designed primarily for farm management and service people whose work involves an understanding of production agriculture. The curriculum includes courses in principles of economics, marketing and prices, accounting and statistics. In addition to a major in economics, students will minor in some area of technical agriculture such as agronomy, soil science or animal science.

Agricultural economics graduates are trained to fill positions which will be close to the production side of the food and fiber industry. Positions include county agents, farm managers, soil conservation specialists, farm loan supervisors or fieldmen for food processing firms. Graduates also find employment as salesmen of chemicals, machinery and other farm supplies, and as buyers of livestock, poultry, grain and other farm products.

Students may use agricultural economics training as preparation for graduate study leading to research, teaching and continuing education, positions in academic institutions, research agencies and industry.

For more information on careers in agricultural economics, write or visit the Department of Agricultural Economics, Institute of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul Minnesota 55101.

BUYER BEWARE BE WISE by DOUGLAS M. HEAD
Attorney General
State of Minnesota

Our consumer division used to receive many complaints from Minnesota citizens who had their automobile insurance cancelled. This caused great hardship and many policyholders were not even told why their insurance company no longer wanted to do business with them.

In response to this problem, our office prepared and supported a law passed by the 1967 legislature regulating the cancellation of automobile insurance. This law applies to those portions of an automobile liability policy insuring against bodily injury, property damage, medical payments and uninsured motorists coverage.

After your automobile insurance has been in effect for 60 days, the law bars cancellation before the expiration date, unless notice is mailed to you at least 30 days prior to the cancellation date. This notice must list the reason or reasons for cancellation and must inform you that you have a right to protest the cancellation. If, however, a policy is cancelled for non-payment of a premium, then only 10 days notice is required.

This law permits cancellation of a policy only for certain specified reasons. Among them are non-payment of premium, material misrepresentation in obtaining the policy, a false claim by the insured, failure by the insured to notify the company of a lawsuit against him or refusal to cooperate in the investigation or defense of a lawsuit, conviction of drunken driving during the 24 months preceding a notice of cancellation, conviction of auto theft and the operation of a dangerously defective automobile.

Under this law, a citizen is given the right to formally protest to the Minnesota insurance commissioner if he believes that his company illegally cancelled his policy. Within seven days of receiving the notice of cancellation, a citizen wishing to object must send his written objections and a $15 fee to the insurance commissioner. His company must then file a reply to the citizen's objections. The commissioner will then decide whether the cancellation was proper. This decision by the commissioner may be appealed to a court by either the citizen or the company.

When a company decides not to renew a policy, as opposed to canceling it, the company must give a 30-day notice of its intention to the policyholder. However, the notice need not state the reasons for non-renewal. The policyholder has no right to protest non-renewal, unless there was not compliance with the 30-day notice requirement.

If your automobile insurance policy is cancelled, immediately contact your attorney. Also, make certain that there will be no lapse of coverage pending determination of your protest against the cancellation.

Prowlers Rally Falls Short at Bemidji; Top Fosston 73-70

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Three!

That was both a lucky number and unlucky number for the Thief River Falls Prowler basketball team over the past weekend, as they fell by three points to Bemidji and then stopped Fosston by three points.

Friday night found the Prowlers coming back from an eight-point deficit at half time to tie the Bemidji Lumberjacks in the closing period, only to find the Lumberjacks coming up with three points in the final minute to edge the Prowlers 53-50 in a game which was delayed for 45 minutes at Bemidji because of a shattered glass backboard.

Saturday night, the Prowlers enjoyed a 10-point lead midway throught the final period only to find a stubborn Fosston squad knotting the score at 70-70 with just over a minute left to play. A long down-court pass to Mike Hammerlinck from Sheldon Joppru put the Prowlers ahead 72-70, and a clutch free throw by Tony Johnson with 10 seconds left gave the Prowlers a 73-70 win and upped their season record to 8-7 with three games left on the schedule.

Bemidji Contest

After battling back to knot the score in the final period, the Prowlers found a bad pass turn the game into a win for the Lumberjacks as the Prowlers tried to set up a last second shot to win the contest.

In that final minute to play the Prowlers trailed by a 51-50 score with 18 seconds left on the clock. Dwight Degerman fouled Tony Johnson, who stepped to the line for a one-and-one shot. Tony missed the shot that would have knotted the game at 51-51, the rebound falling out of bounds and being awarded to the Prowlers. Tony Burke was man on the spot, as he intercepted a Prowler pass and drove the length of the court for the final lay-up at the buzzer which gave the Lumberjacks their 19th straight win over the Prowlers 53-50.

GOING IN FOR a left handed [illegible] Friday night is Steve Edlund (35) of Thief River Falls. Edlund played two of his best ball games over the weekend as he scored 14 points against Bemidji and then on Saturday night tallied 18 against Fosston. Bemidji players surrounding Edlund are Greg Beaumont (24); Tony Burke, (52) and Tom Hill (34).

The game, in addition to being a real battle in the second half, was delayed for 45 minutes when, in pre-game warm-up, a Bemidji player went in for a basket only to have the glass backboard shatter. Bemidji officials replaced the broken one with a metal backboard.

The Prowlers jumped to a 4-0 lead early in the game only to find the Jacks coming back and after knotting the score at 7-7, reeled off four points to take the lead and hold a 15-10 lead at the end of the period.

The Prowlers found themselves trailing by eight points by the end of the first half as Bemidji at one time enjoyed an 11-point lead during the period. At half the Lumberjacks led 30-22.

The third period found the Prowlers coming on like gang busters as they tallied 17 points to close the gap of the Lumberjacks to two points at the end of three periods 41-39. Sheldon Joppru tallied 11 big points in that period.

The final period found the score being knotted at 41-41 on basket by Dan Brodin. A basket by Greg Beaumont gave the Lumberjacks the lead at 43-41, before Joppru knotted the score at 43-43 on two free throws.

A lay up by Dergerman upped the score to 45-43, but a free throw by Poppenhagen cut the lead to 45-44. Three points by Jerry Oelrick and Wayne Olson gave the Jacks a 48-44 lead, and a free throw by Burke upped the lead to 49-45.

Joppru then tallied a free throw, and a basket by Steve Edlund, who played a real good game, pulled the Prowlers within two points at 49-47 with over three minutes left. Edlund then tied the game at 49-49 with 2:26 left with a pair of free throws, Don Balmer tallied his only point with 1:51 left as the Prowlers led 50-49. A foul by Brodin on Degerman gave the Jacks the lead at 51-50 as the sophomore guard tallied the two tosses, and the Lumberjacks scored a 53-50 win over the Prowlers.

Fosston Game

Saturday night the Prowlers entertained the Fosston Greyhounds and at times led by 10 points, only to find the Greyhounds coming back and knotting the score in the final minute at 70-70 before the Prowlers were able to pull out a 73-70 win over the smaller Fosston club.

The Prowlers jumped to a one-point lead at the end of the first period 20-19, and then upped the score to 40-30 at half time. Edlund, playing another good game for the Prowlers on Saturday, led the Prowlers in the first half with 12 points while Joppru had 10 points at half time.

Opening of the third period found the Prowlers being outscored by a 10-4 margin as the Greyhounds came within four points at 44-40, as guard Bob Holm tallied three straight baskets for the Greyhounds.

Tony Johnson then tallied three points to move the Prowlers out in front by six points, and the Prowlers increased their lead to 61-50 at the end of the period. Edlund and Johnson tallied 11 points in the period to pace the Prowlers.

Fosston for the second time suddenly caught fire in the final period as they out-scored the Prowlers by a 20 to 12 margin.

In both games free throws proved to be the difference for the winning club. Bemidji outscored the Prowlers at the charity line on Friday night by a 17-14 margin as each tallied 18 field goals in the game. Saturday night the Prowlers held the edge by a 15-12 margin as each team hit 29 field goals.

Joppru paced the Prowlers in both games by tallying 22 and 20 points, while Edlund [illegible] 14 against Bemidji and then tallied 18 on Saturday night. Johnson also added 14 points for the Prowlers in the win against Fosston.

Next action for the Prowlers will be against East Grand Forks on Friday night as they meet the Little Green Wave in a Big Five conference game. A win for the Prowlers will assure them first place in the District 31 standings.

Against Bemidji on Friday night the junior Prowlers fell behind by an 11-9 score at the end of the first period, and then trailed by a 21-18 score at half time. Bemidji opened the gap to 36-28 in the third period and then halted a last period rally by the junior Prowlers as they handed the Thief River club their third loss of the season 4-40.

Region 8 Hockey Tourney Begins Tonight

Prowlers Meet Spuds At 9p.m. in Crookston

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls, winners of the south half of Region Eight hockey this year will open Region Eight tournament play tonight (Monday) at 9 p.m. against Moorhead at Crookston in the second game of first round action at the Crookston arena. In the opening game Warroad will meet East Grand Forks starting at 7 p.m.

Two other games are also on tap tonight (Monday) at Warroad as Bemidji meets Indus at 7 p.m. and Roseau takes on Crookston at 9 p.m. The four winners will then meet on Tuesday night in semi-final action at Bemidji state college ice rink. On Thursday the championship game will be played with the winner advancing into the state tournament. The loser of this game will meet the runner-up in Region Seven for the Region Three title on Saturday night on Region Seven ice.

The Prowlers, runners-up to Roseau in the region last year and also runners-up to Greenway of Coleraine in Region Three, will meet a relatively new team to the hockey game in Moorhead.

According to coach George Schlieff, who has been talking with other coaches who have played the Spuds, they are a big team and a good skating outfit, considering this is only their second year in hockey.

Schlieff announced his 15-man squad for the first tournament game which includes two lines and two extra forwards, four regular defensive men and one extra, along with two goalies.

The team will consist of Rick Holmes, Dana Stromberg and Bruce Broughton skating on one line; Cal Wicklander, Donn Haugen and Rex Rugland on the second line, with extras being Roger Lee and John Fitzgerald. Defensemen will be Paul Olson, Ron Runger, Dennis Johnson, Bill Narman and Ron Drappo. The two goalies will be Jerry Owen and Dan Sullivan.

The Prowlers will be led by the scoring of co-captains Rick Holmes and Dana Stromberg and Donn Haugen into tonight's contest. Holmes is the team's top point-getter with 32 points, coming on 23 goals and nine assists. Haugen is second in scoring with eight goals and 18 assists for a total of 26 points, while Stromberg has tallied 11 goals and 12 assists for 23 points. Wicklander is fourth with eight goals and six assists for a total of 14. Ten other players have also scored one or more points.

The Prowlers finished the regular season with a 10-8-1 record, losing to some of the top teams in the state of Minnesota.

Region Eight this year is perhaps the most balanced it has been in the past few years, as there are four favorites—Warroad, Bemidji, Roseau and Thief River Falls. It is expected that these four will get by first round competition and gain the semi-finals on Tuesday night.

The two brackets which will make up the region are as follows: Warroad, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls and Moorhead in the top bracket; Bemidji, Indus, Roseau and Crookston in the lower bracket.

Exact time of the semi-finals on Tuesday night at Bemidji has not yet been announced, only the fact that they will be played at Bemidji State college ice arena.

Thief River Falls Prowler wrestling squad snapped a six-match losing string on Friday night as they dropped Crookston by a 37-15 score. The match win was the second over the Pirates this year, with this one coming on the Pirates' home mats.

The match also showed a shake up in the Prowler wrestling ranks as they are preparing for the District 31 wrestling tournament on Saturday to be held at Crookston. The match on Friday found all the regular Prowlers moving down a weight class from which they were wrestling all season.

The district matches will begin with semi-final matches at 2 p.m on Saturday, with consolation matches beginning at 6:30 p.m., and the championship matches beginning at 8 p.m., at Crookston Central. Taking part in the tournament will be the Prowlers, Warren, Crookston, and East Grand Forks.

Friday night the Prowlers traveled to Crookston without head coach Ed Krystosek, as he was called home by the death of his mother on Friday morning. Taking over and coaching the Prowlers was assistant coach Lambert Brunkhorst, who will also be coaching the Prowlers on Tuesday night when they entertain Greenbush in their final dual match of the season.

Ice Fishermen Told to Plan Shack Removal

Minnesota ice fishermen should begin thinking about how they are going to get their shacks off state lakes before the February 28 deadline.

Paul Martz, chief conservation officer, pointed out that many lakes, including Mille Lacs, have hundreds of fish houses on them and some of the houses are frozen into the ice and are impossible to reach by car because of deep snow.

In spite of these difficulties, the law provides that the shacks must be off the ice no later than February 28.

While this is almost a month away, fishermen should begin planning how to remove these structures right now. Many of the fish houses will have to be chopped out of the ice. They were frozen in when slush formed on the lakes

Northland Cagers Split Two Games

Northland state junior college basketball team traveled to Metropolitan state junior college and Brainerd state junior college over the past weekend and came home with a split at the two schools. On Friday night the Northmen dropped a 78-75 game to Metropolitan, and then on Saturday came back to score an 86-70 win over the Brainerd squad.

In that game on Saturday, the Northland squad placed all five of their starters in double figures, led by Nick Neibauer's 21 points. He was followed by Tom Super, 20; Dwight Jaros, 15; Van Swanson, 14; and Gordon Eftefield, 12.

The Northland squad led at half time over the Brainerd squad by a 39-23 margin and were never headed after that point as they swamped the Raiders on their home court.

Friday night's contest found the Northland squad falling behind in the final minutes as they suffered a three-point loss to the Metropolitan five 78-75.

The contest found the Northmen being tied with the home club at 37-37 at half time and then the lead see-sawed back and forth until the final minutes of the game when the host club was able to gain the lead and maintain the three point victory.

Tom Super led all scorers for the game with 29 points and was joined by Neibauer in double figures with 16, the only two Northmen in the category for the game. Taking scoring honors for Metropolitan was Doug Fargo with 23 points; Gary Peterson added 21 for the winners.

Coach Al Adams squad suffered two losses over the weekend besides losing to Metropolitan. Adams was forced to dismiss one of his starters and a reserve for disciplinary reasons. Lost for the rest of the year were Frank Dewry and Bruce Prichard. Dewey was the third leading scorer for the Northmen.

Board Rejects Offer By Teachers; OK's Graduation Credits

Authorization for its negotiating team to increase its salary proposal by two per cent from the original offer was made by the Thief River Falls board of education in regular session Monday evening. The board had previously offered a $6,000 base salary—the same amount being paid for the current school year—and the increase authorized Monday would increase that figure to $6,120. Top salary figure would be $10,420 for Class III career teachers.

Presentation of the proposal will be made by the board's negotiating council tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in the superintendent's office. Prior to authorizing the two per cent increase Monday, the board unanimously rejected the current request of the teachers' negotiating council. That request is for a base of $9,866 and an eight-step index schedule reaching a top figure of $19,732.

Following a recommendation and explanation by Richard Edlund, senior high school principal, the board approved an increase in the number of credits required for graduation in the local school system. Credits required will rise from 12 to 13 for the class of 1970, 14 for the class of 1971 and 15 for the class of 1972 and thereafter.

"The independent study time of the students has been a great concern," Edlund said, noting that full modular flexible scheduling will be in effect for the next school year. 'Next year, the students will have approximately one-fourth to one-third of the time for directed study.

"If a student takes five or six subjects, this time allotment will be fine. But if a student takes only four subjects, as some do, the amount of free time will be excessive in our opinion. Because the independent directed study time is the downfall of most flexible programs, we must control it or the program could fail," Edlund concluded.

Francis Hamerlinck, administrative assistant, reviewed statistical information he had compiled to show comparisons of the Thief River Falls district with other schools in a several state north central area. The figures show school costs in a number of areas.

Supt. Lloyd M. Johnson has a number of items in his report to the board, including a request for information on consolidation, a review of swimming pool costs, status of the free lunch program and projected 1969-70 enrollment.

The superintendent noted that he had been approached by

4 Basics for Industrial Growth Are Outlined

DIRECTORS ELECTED Monday at the annual meeting of Jobs Incorporated in Thief River Falls include, left to right, Robert Flynn, Gordon Ballingrud, Randall Noper, Glenn Peterson and Donald M. Olson. Continuing to serve on the board are Wallace Tunberg, G. A. Beito, Roy Lee, Norris Melander, Harley Kelly, Jarvis Prichard and James Winjum.

Four basics required for industrial development were outlined by John Peterson at the annual meeting of Jobs Incorporated Monday evening in Thief River Falls. Peterson, who heads the rural bureau of the state's department of economic development, was guest speaker at the meeting held in the Elks club rooms.

"To attract industry to your community," Peterson said, "you must have an organization for industrial development, be able to supply the labor market, be able to build a building for lease and have a proper community attitude."

Gordon Ballingrud, Randall Noper, Donald M. Olson and Glenn Peterson were reelected to the board of directors of the organization with Robert Flynn elected as a new member. Continuing in office were Wallace Tunberg, G. A. Beito, Roy Lee, Norris Melander, Harley Kelly, Jarvis Prichard and James Winjum.

Glenn Peterson, president of the organization for the past year, reviewed activities of the past year, including developments at the industrial park south of the city.

Commenting on the purposes of the department of industrial development's rural bureau, John Peterson said that there was a list of only three prospects two years ago. The list has grown to include 90 prospects for industrial expansion at the present time, including 30 prime possibilities, he said.

He also cited importance of an industrial revenue bond, the legality of which is now being tested in the courts. Such a bond would permit a community's governing body to sell bonds in order to provide land, buildings and equipment to industry, with the bonds to be repaid from rental revenue.

The speaker cited the importance of a community image, know it or not. Thief River Falls' image is one of its greatest assets and an excellent selling tool". He said that this city has "a sophisticated image beyond its geographical area" and that positive thinking has proved to be a community power.

Peterson made some suggestions for economic growth in Thief River Falls. Among them were changing Jobs Incorporated from a non-profit to a profit type corporation; completion of the industrial park facilities; resist the temptation to fall into a pattern of complacency; and attempt to provide a better combination of eating place and lounge "to enhance your image to visiting industrialists".

The club estimates that about $500 will be needed to accomplish the desired objective and is asking community support for the fund-raising campaign.

Removal of the junked cars and conversion of the site into a roadside trailer park for overnight campers are being planned by the club. Several Goodridge residents have already offered time and equipment to haul the junked cars away and clean up the lots.

Two events are being planned for March, which has been designated as "Community Betterment Month" by David Evans, president of Lions International. An old-time dance is scheduled for March 8 with Goodridge men donating time and talent to provide an evening of entertainment. Advance tickets are being sold for $1 each.

On March 14 an evening of basketball is planned with the Goodridge Lions playing area farmers in the feature event. Preliminary games will match elementary boys against their fathers and women of the Goodridge PTA against the Girls' Athletic association.

Cholera Causes Hog Removal in LeSueur County

Dr. J. G. Flint, executive officer, Minnesota livestock sanitary board, reports that on January 20 a farm in LeSueur county was depopulated of swine because of hog cholera. Thirty-eight apparently healthy swine on the farm were salvaged at a federally-inspected slaughtering establishment.

The balance of the herd, 48 head, were humanely destroyed on the premises and the carcasses transported to a rendering plant. All movements were under supervision of agents of the board. In addition to salvage, the owner will receive approximately $16,000 from indemnity funds of the Minnesota livestock sanitary board and the animal health division of the United States department of agriculture for the swine that were destroyed.

Hog cholera is a disease of swine caused by a filtrable virus. The disease does not affect other animals nor is there any transmission to humans through the meat.

Cause of this outbreak is as yet undetermined but investigations are being conducted. Hog cholera was diagnosed on the same farm a year ago with a death loss of 68 head. There is a possibility that the outbreak this year is due to spread from a "carrier" animal.

Sick swine were examined at the diagnostic laboratory of the college of veterinary medicine and specimens were flown to the national animal disease laboratory at Ames, Iowa. Both laboratories confirmed the diagnosis of hog cholera made by the local veterinarian.

As of July 1, 1968 under Minnesota statutes and regulations of the Minnesota state livestock sanitary board, premises where hog cholera is diagnosed shall be quarantined and depopulated of swine under salvage and indemnity. The swine are appraised at true market value. Apparently healthy swine of salvageable weight may be shipped for immediate slaughter.

Non-salvageable swine are destroyed on the premises in a humane manner. The owner is paid indemnity based on the difference the appraisal and salvage; but indemnity shall not exceed $50 for registered swine or $40 for grade swine. Premises shall not be restocked with swine within at least 30 days following cleaning and disinfection of premises.

Minnesota entered Phase III of the national hog cholera eradication program on July 1, 1968. Since that time there have only been two other cases of hog cholera in Minnesota.

Swine producers and feeders are cautioned to closely observe their swine and contact their local veterinarian about illness in their swine.

Miss Allene Cole, director of theatre at Augsburg college in Minneapolis and one of the three judges, presented a critique immediately following each play. Americans Drive Trillion Miles In Past Year

"One trillion, ten billion" — that's the number of miles Americans are estimated to have traveled by motor vehicle during 1968, according to the Minnesota AAA.

It's the first time in history the annual motor vehicle mileage total rolled up on the nation's highways has topped the trillion mark.

AAA cited the U.S. bureau of public roads estimate, based on collective state estimates, for motor vehicle travel during the past year. It shows the figure "spelled out" as 1,010,000,000,000.

To bring the total into better perspective, the motoring organization explained in this fashion:

It would take about 40 trips around the earth (24,902.44 miles) to total one million miles.

It would require about 40,000 roundthe-world trips to total one billion miles.

It would take 40,000,000 trips around earth to reach a trillion miles.

And to hit one trillion, ten billion, the estimate for 1968—it would require 40,400,000 trips around the world.

The estimated mileage figure for 1968 represents an increase of 4.6 per cent over 1967 mileage. The final figure for 1967 was 965 billion, up 3.7 per cent over 1966.

Spices, Herbs Can Make Pork A Gourmet Food

With a few exceptions, pork is relatively inexpensive; yet it lends itself to an infinite array of seasonings, accompaniments and cooking methods which can make it a food fit for the most discriminating tastes, according to Verna Mikesh, extension nutritionist at the University of Minnesota.

Such herbs as caraway, marjoram, thyme, sage and basil have a special affinity for pork, as do such spices as cloves, ginger, pepper and curry, she adds.

Fruits and vegetables, too, can enhance the flavor of richly browned pork roasts and chops, Miss Mikesh says. Tart apples, cranberries and oranges and sweet fruits like prunes, raisins, peaches and apricots combine especially well with pork. Salads can feature some of these tart and sweet fruits. Cinnamon apples, applesauce and cranberry-orange relish combine as well with fresh pork as raisin sauce does with baked ham.

A tart vegetable like kraut or sweet vegetables such as squash and sweet potatoes are good accompaniments to fresh pork and ham.

Instead of limiting your choice to the more expensive chops and loin roasts, choose from the big variety of cuts of fresh and cured pork which are lower cost—pork blade steaks, smoked loin chops, boneless picnic, smoked pork shoulder, pork shoulder butt pork sausage and pork liver.

A good browning and thorough, slow cooking will bring out the best flavor of any pork cut and will make it juicy and tender. Roast pork in a 325 degree oven and use a meat thermometer to avoid either overcooking or undercooking. Pork loin roasts will be more juicy when cooked to 170 degrees internal temperature, but most other pork cuts are best when roasted until the meat thermometer reads 185 degrees.

Advance Payment Available for Farm Programs

Producers signing up February 3 through March 21 to participate in the 1969 feed grain and wheat programs can request advance payments of up to 50 per cent for voluntary extra acreage diversion, it was announced by U.S. secretary of agriculture, Clifford M. Hardin. This is the maximum advance that can be made on the diversion payments.

In a statement issued by the President at the White House, the secretary was instructed to make available a 50 per cent advance payment to participants in the 1969 feed grain program. The presidential statement pointed out that a budget request to the Congress on January 15, 1969, had this advance reduced to 25 per cent. Because of the short time between the January 15 budget presentation and the signup starting February 3, the President indicated the government has a moral obligation to continue the rate without abrupt change.

Projected on previous years' signups and current payment rates, disbursement of partial advance payments to feed grain, wheat and cotton program participants is expected to reach $386 million by the close of the signup period on March 21. Otherwise, the advance payments would have been $168 million less.

Feed grain and wheat producers may receive, upon request, up to 50 per cent of the estimated diversion payment for their farm. This is for acreage which producers voluntarily retire from production beyond that required to qualify as a participant.

Crop and Soil Seminar Set at Winter Shows

A crops and soils improvement seminar is scheduled for February 26 at the Northwest farm and home week and Red River Valley winter shows at Crookston. Farmers and other persons interested in crops and soils improvement are invited to attend this seminar which will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the animal science auditorium on the University of Minnesota Crookston campus.

This forenoon session will begin with registration and "early bird" coffee at 9:00 am. James R. Lofgren, agronomist from the Northwest experiment station, will preside at the seminar.

The session will break up for a 12:30 noon luncheon in the university's campus dining hall. The public is invited to attend the seminar, to have lunch on the campus and visit the Red River Valley winter shows in the afternoon.

Minnesota Tech Hall Named for Judge Knutson

Malcolm C. Moos, president of the University of Minnesota, will pay his first visit to the University of Minnesota technical institute in Crookston on February 28. The occasion will be the dedication of the college gymnasium as Knutson hall, in honor of Chief Justice Oscar R. Knutson of the Minnesota supreme court.

Judge Knutson, an alumnus of the Northwest school of agriculture and of the University law school, formerly practiced law in Warren.

The program is scheduled for 2 p.m. in Kiehle auditorium and will be followed by a reception in the campus dining facilities. Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, director, will preside at the ceremonies. President Moos will bring special greetings from the university. Dr. B. E. Youngquist, superintendent of the Northwest experiment station, will introduce Justice Knutson. Hon. Lyman Brink, university regent from Hallock, will present the dedicatory plaque.

Sinclair and Skaar Sponsor New Legislation

Rep. Andrew Skaar and Sen. Donald Sinclair were sponsors of bills introduced the week of February 3 into the Minnesota House and Senate.

Bill HF 646, supported by Rep. Skaar, would authorize the commissioner of highways to construct weigh station facilities at four specified locations on the interstate highway system. It would appropriate $1,131,000 from trunk highway funds to carry out the provisions of this act.

Bill SF 458, introduced by Sen. Sinclair, would make a deficiency appropriation from the general revenue fund totaling $289,640 to various state departments and agencies, including the revisor of statutes, department of administration, forestry division of the department of conservation, retired supreme and district court judges and commissioners. This would be available from and after the enactment of the act.

Elimination of one hour of open swimming per night at the Franklin junior high school swimming pool will reduce costs by about $200 per month, Supt. Johnson noted. The reduced time, now in effect, was deemed advisable since the number of persons swimming is not large at this time. He said the hourly cost of operation after school hours includes $4 for the teacher in charge, $1.25 for locker room attendants and $1.75 for lifeguards. Extra custodial work is also necessary. Total cost for February is projected to be $1,035.

Projected enrollment for 1969-70 includes 721 in Franklin junior high school and 700 in Lincoln senior high school, with 230 expected in kindergarten classes. The free lunch program required under federal law has now been extended to 46 students in the local school system, the superintendent added. The revised English curriculum, prepared by elementary and secondary teachers, was presented to the board.

Bids were called for on two school buses with bids to be opened on February 25. Approval was also given to summer repair of at least one room and possibly two in the northeast corner of Northrop elementary school, with window replacement being a primary portion of the improvement.

Policyholder Questions Answered by the Health Insurance Institute, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. My husband has recently taken out a loss-of-income health insurance policy, even though he has a safe job (he's an accountant) and is in perfect health. How can this policy benefit us?

A. Your husband was probably wise to take out such a policy. Even people who work at a desk are not immune to mishaps. Besides, occupational accidents aren't the only thing covered in a loss-of-income policy. Many accidents also happen in the home or other places and there are also on and off the job sickness.

LOSS OF INCOME HEALTH INSURANCE

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

The food faddist or diet quack has been swindling the public since the beginning of time and will probably continue to do so for a long time to come. He'll do so as long as nutritional quackery is profitable and such quackery will be profitable as long as the public continues to fall for it says the Minnesota State Medical association. Have you been taken in?

Using the primary tenent that the major cause of disease and poor health is "devitalized" foods the food faddist spread primarily four myths of nutrition:

1) Most if not all diseases are caused by faulty diet.

In truth very few diseases are caused by a dietary deficiency. In fact, they are so rare in the United States that physicians have difficulty locating cases for study. And, a "run down" feeling is rarely, if ever, due to faulty diet in this country.

2) American soils are impoverished and produce foods which are poor in nutritional value.

Actually, commercial U.S. agriculture treats soil as a precious commodity and keeps it rich. Even if the soils were depleted they would not nutritionally affect the foods grown on them although the yield per acre would drop.

3) American foods are devitalized by overprocessing.

According to a study done by several noted nutritionists, fresh fruits and vegetables are not in practical nutrition, superior in food value to commercially canned and frozen foods.

And, foods sold by health-food stores are no more nutritious than those you can procure at a regular food market and often cost more. Why pay a premium for the nutrients you can buy at a fraction of the cost?

4) Most Americans suffer from "subclinical deficiencies" of needed vitamins and minerals and should therefore take vitamin - mineral supplements and eat "health" food to insure health.

In truth, clinically ascertainable incidences of vitamin deficiency in the United States in a year make up less than one per cent of our total population. Genuine deficiencies should be diagnosed by a physician instead of being treated by the dubious and dangerous method of self-medication.

It is wise to remember, the association says, that good health does not come from bottles, boxes, organic fields, health food shops or health clubs. It can be had through a well-balanced diet.

U of M Professor Asks Emphasis On Black History

by Judy Vick
University of Minnesota News Service

No Negroes living within a hundred miles of you—or maybe just that one "nice" black family that lives on the edge of town—or the transient railroad employee who sometimes stays in a local hotel—or the "foreign student at a nearby college. . .

Tales of riots, burning, pickets, unrest—problems for the "city folk"—something you read about and click your tongue, but no real concern—it's too far away.

University of Minnesota history professor Allan Spear doesn't agree. He believes everyone should be educated in Afro-American history.

"No American community is isolated anymore. If we have racial wars in the cities no one can remain aloof," Spear says.

"Black history is just as much for white people as for the black. Everyone needs to understand the role black people have played in American history. They need to understand what white racism has done to American life.

"This doesn't apply just to those who live far away from the metropolitan area—people in Edina are just as isolated as those in Willmar."

Spear, who started the program in Negro history at the University of Minnesota, is now also teaching a 20-week television series on "Afro-American History." He travels throughout the Midwest, speaking to groups on the topic of the black contribution to American history.

"I feel I can do the most by working where the problem is—in the white communities," Spear says.

A native of the industrial city of Michigan City, Ind., Spear grew up in a white neighborhood and encountered his first black associates when he joined the YMCA as a youngster. When he was an undergraduate at Oberlin college, he spent an exchange semester at Fisk college, a Negro institution and developed his first interest in Negro history. His doctoral dissertation at Yale university was published as the controversial book, "Black Chicago."

A 31-year-old bachelor, Spear was the DFL endorsed candidate from the 42nd legislative district last fall.

"I believe racial problems are our most important domestic issue," said Spear. He plans to continue his political activities.

How can communities help themselves to better understanding? Spear suggests that they invite Negro speakers to address community groups, that they begin to discuss racial problems, and that they might try to encourage black people to move into their communities. He encourages employers to hire black people as new positions open up in their companies.

Mondale Bill Gives Power To Bargain

Senator Walter F. Mondale has re-introduced legislation to give farmers the right to bargain collectively for prices and terms of sale of farm products.

In a Senate speech introducing the national agricultural bargaining act, which received extensive hearings in the agriculture committee last year, Sen. Mondale said that he was re-introducing the bill at this time "in the hope that it will encourage and focus debate on the benefits and problems that may be associated with farmer-bargaining."

Last year, he added, "no legislation was reported or recommended by the committee. The hearings disclosed a great deal of controversy, but (also) widespread and deep support for the concept of farmer bargaining legislation.

"I think we should proceed on it because the time has come to get down to the hard specifics of legislation. Without it, the farmer is doomed to economic disenfranchisement . . and will continue to be the low man on our economic totem pole."

The Minnesota Senator stressed that farm bargaining was designed to supplement—not replace—federal farm programs, and that it would offer what he called "self-help tools" which farmers could utilize if they so desired.

Title I of the Mondale bill would provide a new legal framework and procedures for collective bargaining by farmers and buyers. When the price of a commodity was unfair and unreasonable, farmers could initiate a referendum to select a committee to negotiate fairer prices in bargaining sessions with a committee representing processors and other purchasers of the commodity. Negotiations would determine both price and non-price terms of sale. Any price agreement reached through the bargaining process would then be binding on all producers and purchasers of that particular commodity.

If no price agreement was reached—or if purchasers refused to bargain in good faith—disputed issues would be resolved by a three-man "joint settlement committee" composed of representatives of the farmers, purchasers and a neutral party. Their decision would be binding.

The farmer bargaining or marketing committee would also be authorized to recommend production and marketing controls which commodity producers would accept or reject in a second referendum.

A national agricultural relations board would conduct the referendums and provide technical and clerical services to both producer and purchaser bargaining committees during negotiations.

The Mondale proposal establishes no procedures to determine when prices are "unfair or unreasonable." Instead, Mondale said, "It relies on basic economic realities and the prevailing market to accomplish this objective. While the farmer bargaining committees would be free to demand any price level they desire, the committee could not demand an unreasonable price without running serious risk of competition from substitute foods, loss of export markets, increased imports, or, in the absence of supply control, tremendous production increases."

Title II of the bill would permit collective bargaining through the agricultural marketing agreement act of 1937, and make any agricultural commodity eligible for a marketing order, if a majority of producers of that commodity to elect in a referendum. Other amendments would permit the establishment of minimum prices through collective bargaining between producers and purchasers as well as through the present hearing procedures conducted by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Under this approach, prices and other terms agreed on by producers and the purchasers would not be binding until approved by the handlers of 50 per cent of the volume of the commodity, and by the secretary of agriculture. The secretary would also conduct all referendums and would continue to exercise the administrative authority outlined in the law.

Mondale said the bill contains two approaches to farm bargaining: "to make it as broad as possible for discussion purposes. In my opinion, Titles I and II are not contradictory. Congress could enact either one or both of them. They are different approaches to the same objective—bargaining power for farmers."

MiSCCA Given No Support by Easter Seals

"Camp Courage and the other services for the physically handicapped provded by the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. (MISCA) are in no way supported by Easter seals," states Ed Meierbachtol, LeSueur, president of MISCCA.

"Because MISCA is one time was a member of the National Easter seal society," continued Meierbachtol, "and various attempts have been made to reunite the two organizations and eliminate the annual Easter seal campaign, there is a great deal of public uncertainty and confusion regarding the relationship of MISCA with Easter seals and the Easter seal campaign.

"However, MISA is an independent statewide agency now affiliated with the United Fund and is not involved in the annual Easter seal campaign in any way, nor do any funds raised as a result of the Easter seal campaign support MISCCA's programs of rehabilitation or recreation services for handicapped Minnesotans.

"MSOCA joined the United Fund movement in 1962 to reduce fund raising costs," Meierbachtol explained. "It was subsequently disenfranchised by the National Easter seal society, which requires an independent number of approximately 650 United Funds in Minnesota and only conducts fund drives in those areas where there is no United Fund. Since MISCCA's experience under United Funds has been excellent, MISCA reaffirms its support of the united concept of giving, regrets the confusion that is caused in Minnesota by the mailing of Easter seals and hopes that the problem may some day be resolved."

In conclusion, Meierbachtol stated, "If Easter seals are received, we hope that Minnesotans will understand that they WERE NOT sent by MISCCA, and that Easter seals DO NOT aid Camp Courage or any other MISCCA service."

MINNESOTA'S FUTURE
University of Minnesota • Agricultural Extension Service

During 1967 approximately 16 per cent of the farms in the United States produced 68 per cent of all farm products sold, according to Arley Waldo, University of Minnesota agricultural economist.

These farmers were the commercial level operators that had sales of $20,000 or more annually, and where the farmer had the capital resources to use up-to-date methods, and could gain the principal production economies that came from large enterprises.

However, these commercial farmers, as well as the small farmer, are faced with the basic farm problem of too many resources in the agricultural industry, and relatively low farm prices and returns to some farm resources.

Farmers in this commercial class are confronted continually by the fact that the capacity to produce farm products tend to rise faster than the demand for the products. This, in turn, affects the farmer's potential profits.

The basic problem of an overcapacity to produce is heightened by excess manpower which is not adjusting out to agricultural fast enough to offset the output expanding effects of new technology and agricultural capital.

Consequently, economic adjustments in agriculture through public policies and programs are important for stability and income protection in the commercial sector of agriculture.

Commercial farmers cannot make adequate production adjustments individually, Waldo said, because no one farmer produces enough so that he alone has any appreciable effect on total supply or price. Accordingly, farmers do not have the incentive usually found in industry to make needed year-to-year production adjustments by operating their "plants" at varying percentages of capacity.

As a result, public policies and programs for agriculture have been used to regulate farm resource use, commodity production, and to attempt to maintain a reasonable profit margin for agriculture.

The question is not whether some type of public agricultural supply control program is necessary, but what type of program will be of the most benefit for the farmer, the consumer and society, Waldo said. The chronic nature of the farm problem indicates that additional adjustments in the agricultural industry currently are needed.

The objectives for commercial farm policy generally include good farm incomes, an ample food supply, efficiency, and freedom of the farmer to make his own management and production decisions. The realities of the current agricultural situation indicate that all these goals cannot be achieved at once.

Farm output adjustment can be achieved by either speeding up the flow of excess resources out of agriculture, or regulating commodity output by limiting the use of farm resources or the quantity of products marketed.

Past and present farm programs have involved both approaches, but have emphasized primarily limiting farm resource output rather than adjusting excess resources out of agriculture.

Clearly the development of new, effective combinations of farm programs would encourage resource adjustment and provide greater economic opportunity for rural residents, Waldo said. Some commercial farm policy alternatives include whole-farm retirement programs, partial - farm retirement programs, combination of these two programs, and programs like marketing quotas.

Taxpayer Group Studies State 2-Year Budget

The governor's proposed budget for the two-year period beginning July 1, 1969, calls for expenditures of $1,932,350,000 to cover operations in three major funds—the general revenue, income tax school and property tax relief funds, with no increases in major taxes.

This is revealed in a statistical analysis of the proposed budget and over-all state financing completed this week by the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

The analysis, contained in a six-page supplement to the association's 1969 edition of "Fiscal Facts for Minnesotans", has been distributed to members of the taxpayer group, to legislators and state officials, and to the news media, according to Harold T. Miller, the association's research director.

"The supplement is wholly statistical in content," Miller said "It draws no conclusions as to spending and taxing methods and levels."

A review of the proposed budget discloses the following pertinent facts:

Proposed spending in the three major funds of $1,932,350,000 is 30 per cent higher than current spending levels. Of this, $568,179,802, or 29.4 per cent, is to come from the property tax relief fund.

The governor's budget proposal calls for increases in existing welfare programs of $47 million plus an additional $19 million to finance a new program for sharing with the counties the cost of caring for mentally retarded persons in private facilities. His budget also would increase appropriations to the department of corrections by $9 million to cover expansion of existing programs.

The level of state aid to primary and secondary schools would be increased by $81 million, of which nearly $25 million is to cover a proposed increase in the school aid formula. Institutions of higher education, including the university, state colleges and state junior colleges, would receive $81 million more, of which $30 million is earmarked for salary increases and $12 million for new faculty members.

The budget proposes a $19.7 million increase in state employees' salaries. It envisions an average increase of eight per cent July 1, 1969, and an additional four per cent July 1, 1970.

To make up the difference between estimated revenues and recommended appropriations, the governor proposes a three cent per pack increase in the state cigarette tax, now at eight cents, to raise $21 million; a 15 cent a fifth hike in the tax on liquor and wine, to yield $14.8 million; and increases in a broad scale of licenses and fees, to produce $11.8 million—for a total of $12.3 million for the 1969-71 fiscal two-year period.

"In addition to the $1,932,350,000 recommended for the three major funds, state spending for highway construction and maintenance, from dedicated funds such as those of the game and fish division, and from funds received from the federal government for welfare, highway and other purposes, will add another $1,539,992,971," Miller said, "making a grand total of state spending for the 1969-71 biennium of $3,472,312,971."

Announces Plan To Raise Funds For Housing

"Keys for Christ," a plan to raise $1,000,000 in a nationwide campaign to provide better housing for the underprivileged, regardless of race, creed or color, has been announced by Rev. Paul R. Biegner, pastor of St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

"Keys for Christ" symbolizes the thousands of keys to homes which will be made possible by this program and which may be the key to needed help for the underprivileged now and for some time to come, Rev. Biegner said.

To culminate in a churchwide observance of Housing Sunday, February 16, the project will stress information as well as solicitation. It is aimed at nearly three million members in six thousand Lutheran church Missouri Synod congregations in the United States.

Major portion of the housing fund, explained Rev. Biegner, will be used to provide "seed" money to enable congregations and organizations to initiate worthwhile housing construction and rehabilitation projects. The money would be returned once the project has secured financing underwritten by the Federal Housing administration. Remaining funds will be used for loans or grants for better housing endeavors, open housing efforts and administrative costs.

Allen Hawk on Road Building Crew in Vietnam

Army Specialist Four Allen O. Hawk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Heigeland of Thief River Falls, is a member of the U. S. Army 20th Engineer Brigade which volunteered to build a new road between the Saigon area and the fertile region of DaLat where most of Vietnam's produce is grown. The current road connecting the two areas reportedly is reminiscent of the Model T era in this country—entirely inadequate to accommodate the thousands of vehicles using it each day and the growing population of Saigon and surrounding cities.

Spe 4 Hawk, a graduate of Lincoln high school, is a wheeled vehicle operator in the brigade's 169th engineer battalion.

Local Planning Important in Extension Work

"Challenge and Response" is the keynote of the agricultural extension service's latest report and its entire program, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county agent.

The report, "Extension Education Programs—Challenge and Response," is especially significant to Pennington county because it emphasizes local planning and involvement in extension work, Courneya said. The report covers programs throughout the state, and many of these are important in Pennington county.

Statements by University of Minnesota president Malcolm Moos, institute of agriculture Dean Sherwood O. Berg, and agricultural extension service director Roland Abraham, all point to the local focus of extension programs.

"The University is working to carry out the concept of the 'communiversity' in the communities of our state," President Moos points out. "By this we mean the partnership of the university and community working together to solve the problems facing society today."

The agricultural extension service has been doing this effectively for many years, Moos adds.

"We feel that the results of our efforts to improve research, collegiate training, and continuing education can and must benefit all Minnesotan's," Dean Berg declares.

Many groups, including the institute's advisory council, state organizations and local extension committees are helping the university in planning, Berg says.

Extension director Abraham points out that, "Extension programs are guided by local extension planning committees and by professional university faculty—both county-based extension agents and campus-based specialists. In this process, extension brings to the local community the competencies of not only the institute of agriculture but also other university units."

These statements are especially significant as local committees meet this winter and spring to plan Pennington county extension programs, Courneya said.

Police Report Theft Solution And Accidents

Thief River Falls police department reported a number of cases investigated during the past week.

Three juvenile boys, ages 11, 12 and 13, were apprehended and, following an investigation, admitted to shoplifting various items from local clothing stores. The three also admitted the theft of money from a local business place on three different occasions.

A traffic accident was noted on February 6 at 3:50 p.m., when a car driven by Mrs. Mary Sylvester, city, was going south on Crocker avenue and was struck in the left side by a car driven by Terry Vojak, Bemidji, going west on Hughes. Damage was $290 to the Sylvester car and $50 to the Vojak vehicle. Mrs. Sylvester received neck injuries, according to the police department.

Another accident was reported on February 6 at 7:05 p.m., when a car driven by Marlow Dunham, city, was going south on Horace avenue and collided with a car driven by Nola Burkel, Greenbush, going east on Fifth street. Damage to the Dunham vehicle was $400 and to the Burkel vehicle $800.

Third accident of the day happened at 10:20 p.m., when a car driven by Steven Larson, city, going north on Duluth avenue, stopped for the stop sign at Sixth street and entering the intersection was struck by a car driven by Daryl Fredrickson, Strandquist, who was traveling east on Sixth street. Damage to the Larson vehicle was $125 while the Fredrickson vehicle sustained $175 in damage.

A personal injury accident occurred on February 6th at 11:25 when a car owned by Bill Dicken, city, properly parked on west Second street, was struck in the rear by a car driven by Roger Nelson, rt. 3, Roseau, who was going south on Arnold and made a left turn onto second street. Damage to the Dicken vehicle was $25 while damage to the Nelson vehicle was undamaged. Dicken was taken to Northwestern hospital and treated for a neck injury.

On February 7 Tony Brenna reported that sometime after 11 p.m. on the night of February 6, his car, which was parked on the north side of the power plant, was struck in the left rear by an unknown snowmobile, causing an estimated $175 in damage to his vehicle.

Also on the seventh a local business reported the larceny of a 12-volt Delco battery valued at $20.

It was reported to the police department that a dark green jacket with black leather sleeves was taken from the local vocational school. The jacket, is valued at $19.

Minnesota AAA Assails Metro Wheelage Tax

Minnesota AAA has attacked the Metropolitan section of the Minnesota League of Municipalities' plan to enact a metropolitan area wheelage tax at the rate of 50 per cent of state license fees.

"Increased wheelage taxes imposed by local governments are another subterfuge for diverting motorists and trucking monies to non-highway purposes," states Arthur C. Tomlinson, executive vice president of the Minnesota AAA.

The proposed local wheelage tax on automobiles and trucks is part of a legislative tax package aimed at "maintaining local services at desirable and necessary levels", according to the metro section's report.

"It is fairly clear such local wheelage taxes would be diverted to the general fund and not used exclusively for local road maintenance and construction," Tomlinson said.

"Members of the Metro section at its Thursday night meeting made it clear there would be 'no problem in transferring monies out of transportation to other uses'," he added.

Tomlinson, who attended the meeting, quoted Dean Lund, executive director of the Metro section, as saying: "There is no real problem in flexibility" in allocating the wheelage tax.

"If this is the intent of the proposed wheelage tax legislation," Tomlinson said, 'then it appears to violate Minnesota's constitution which says local wheelage taxes must be used 'solely for highway purposes'."

The Metro section estimated a seven-county wheelage tax would yield $15,000,000 in 1970.

"But what about the metro wheelage tax we have now?" Tomlinson asked. "Under the Metro section plan, we would have a piggy-back wheelage tax, just another tax burden to be borne by vehicle owners," he added. "Such local wheelage taxes will certainly impair big trucking operations in suburban communities such as Roseville."

4H Snowmobile Project Offered In Pennington

An invitation to winter fun is being issued to young people in Pennington county who wish to enroll in the pilot 4-H snowmobile project.

According to Terry Courncy, county agent, present 4-H members as well as other young people 14 to 19 years of age may enroll in the project. They should contact the county extension office if interested in enrolling.

Pennington is one of 35 counties in the state which has accepted the 4-H pilot project in snowmobiling. Approximately 1,000 young people are expected to take part this winter.

Safety will be emphasized in every unit of the project. 4-H'ers who are enrolled will learn the code of ethics for snowmobilers, state laws pertaining to snowmobiling, care and maintenance of the machine. They will study the operator's manual, principles of balance and track contact in riding and will get practical suggestions on transporting and storing snowmobiles. A unit of the project will be devoted to proper clothing for this winter sport.

The project was developed through the cooperative effort of a committee of extension agents with the state 4-H office at the University of Minnesota coordinating.

Chaplains Wear White Coats at VA Hospital

You can tell a doctor from a chaplain at the Veterans administration hospital in Minneapolis only if you look carefully.

Chaplains are now wearing the distinctive white coats worn previously only by doctors, laboratory workers and other professionals.

There is a difference, however. Depending on his faith, a small cross or a Star of David appears above the left breast pocket of the white coat worn by a chaplain.

Hospital Director, Dr. Arthur J. Klippen said the hospital started the innovation last December and, "It's working out well."

"The easily-laundered white coats not only make chaplains more easily recognizable," he said, "but they contribute to sanitation, especially in cases where chaplains visit intensive care wards."

Previously chaplains wore either black or brown, and patients sometimes confused them with visitors, Dr. Klippen said. He added that many of the VA's 166 hospitals are expected to adopt the idea.

Gov. LeVander Cites School Safety Patrol

School Safety Patrol Week was proclaimed by Governor Harold LeVander for the week of February 16-22 in Minnesota. The proclamation is to honor the more than 30,000 Minnesota school safety patrol members for their services.

Other reasons stated in the proclamation were recognition to the boys and girls for performing their duties diligently; for their guidance and example to other children of both public and private schools to walk safely and to obey traffic regulations at all times; and commemoration of this activity which was pioneered in Minnesota more than 10 years ago.

Sunflowers Are Seminar Topic At Winter Show

Farmers, processors and other persons interested in the sunflower industry are invited to attend the sunflower seminar scheduled for the Northwest farm and home week and Red River Valley winter shows at Crookston. The sunflower seminary will be held on February 25 beginning at 9:30 a.m., in the animal science auditorium on the University of Minnesota tech campus.

Presiding at the seminar will be Freeman K. Johnson, research agronomist of Cargill, Inc. R. G. Robinson, agronomist in the department of agronomy, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, will report on some of his latest research with sunflowers. "Storage of Sunflowers" will be discussed by Kelly Engelstad, assistant manager of Dahlgren and Company, Inc., Crookston. Dave Noetzel, biologist from Concordia college, Moorhead, will speak on "Sunflowers and Insect Pollination."

B. E. Youngquist, superintendent of the northwest experiment station, will report on the International Sunflower conference held at the station in August of 1968. The forenoon session will wind up with a question and answer period, and on the panel will be processors, farmers and the program personnel.

This seminar gives interested persons an opportunity to get up-to-date on the status of the sunflower industry. The session is open to the public.

There will be "early bird" coffee at 9:30 a.m. and a noon luncheon on the campus for those attending the seminar.

For scent-sational effects: Do select the right perfume for you by testing it on your skin; wear it at pulse spots (throat, wrists, crooks of elbows, behind the knees and in front and back of earlobes) where the warmth diffuses the scent; do carry a purse size bottle for touch ups. Don't apply perfume directly to clothing; don't hoard it—perfume's a luxury only when not used, because you'll lose some of it through evaporation.

One chain belt will work many ways if you collect a wardrobe of ribbons and long narrow scarves to mix or match with dresses and separates. Just weave the ribbon or scarf through the belt links.

Thin stripes, petite prints or small plaids usually look best—or try braiding several plain colored ribbons together for a multi-colored effect. If you're making a skirt or dress, buy enough material to make a matching long thin tie belt. Weave it through the links for a custom touch.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I have been waiting to file my 1968 income tax return until I receive a statement from the Veterans Administration as to the amount of service-connected disability compensation I was paid last year. When may I expect this statement?

A—Since your service-connected disability compensation is not taxable, you will not receive any statement from VA and need not delay filing your return. As a matter of fact, veterans' benefits generally are exempt from taxation and need not be reported on income tax returns. Among these exempt veterans' benefits are pension payments, educational assistance allowances, grants for specially-equipped homes and cars for the severely disabled, and payments to surviving dependents of deceased veterans.

The only reportable item is the interest earned on GI insurance dividends left as deposit or credit with VA. This interest is not considered a veteran's benefit and must be reported as income. Veterans were advised on the anniversary date of their policy in 1968 of the amount of interest their policy earned for the year.

Q—I neglected to have some needed dental work done while in the army because I was anxious to get out of service. Can I get treatment from the Veterans administration? I have been out of service three months.

A—Under a new VA policy, a veteran may receive such treatment, without regard to supporting military records, if he applies within six months after release from service, and if it is determined professionally that the condition is service connected. With supporting military records, a veteran may receive VA treatment for the first year after release from service.

Q—I have kept my World War II national service life insurance as a term policy. Is there any way I can find out now how much my premium will be increased for the next five year period. Also, can I find out the comparative costs and advantages of permanent plan GI insurance policies?

A—Yes. By writing to the VA office where you send your GI insurance premiums, you can obtain information about your present term policy including the next five-year premium cost. VA insurance officials will also be happy to send you information about the comparative costs and advantage of permanent plan policies. It will probably be to your advantage to find out about these various plans as soon as possible. In any event, you should keep in mind the fact that the modified life plan, which offers the lowest permanent plan premium, is available only through age 60.

Q—Once a veteran has been granted compensation for a service-connected disability, does he receive it for the rest of his life regardless of his income?

A—Compensation payments do not depend on income, but rather on the nature of the disease or disability. Some conditions would be subject to change while others would remain stable. On conditions subject to change, the veteran might be examined periodically, and his compensation adjusted accordingly if his condition has changed. A veteran may reopen his claim at any time by submitting new and material medical evidence to the VA. This evidence could also change a previous static rating made by VA.

Servicemen are insured automatically for $10,000 unless they refuse in writing.

A NEW FEATURE of the States-Dominion snowmobile rally in Thief River Falls Sunday was a race with drivers riding their powerful machines in pairs, switching drivers on the move as they approached the grandstand area. The move was accomplished as the rear man stood up, reached forward for the controls, and moved ahead while his partner slid underneath him to assume the rear position. Careers in Food and Fiber

Thrill of the explorer or adventurer may be yours if you have studied a problem and found an answer nobody has found before you. That thrill is one of the rewards of the researcher.

Research in home economics may be the field for you if you want to find out the whys and hows of many problems concerning the home and family living.

Home economics laboratories everywhere are understaffed because not enough personel are being trained for research, says Louise Stedman, director of the school of home economics at the University of Minnesota. Research jobs are open in colleges and universities, hospitals, government agencies and industry.

Answers home economics scientists find in their research provide information for living and for teaching—in the classroom, in extension and through the mass media. Home economics researchers try to increase information and to find answers to problems in such areas as the kinds and amounts of food we need and why, preparation and preservation of foods, equipment and how it functions, energy and how we use it, consumer goods we buy, textiles and their care, our homes and how to care for them, relationships with people in the home and in everyday living.

If you wonder whether you are the type to do research, you should be able to answer "yes" to such questions as: Am I interested in science? Do I have mathematical ability? Do I have patience? Do I have a stubborn streak that makes me plug away until I get what I'm after? Can I get along with fellow workers? Do I have imagination and initiative? Am I curious about the whys of things? Can I think logically and independently? Do I have enough of the pioneer about me to want to push on beyond today's frontier of knowledge.

If you think you want to go into research, you should choose the area you are interested in and plan your course carefully, advises Miss Stedman. For example, if you are interested in nutrition research, you should have training in physiology and other biological sciences and in chemistry, as well as food and nutrition. If you are interested in family economics, you will want training in the social sciences and in the several areas of home economics.

In addition, you'll need training in the tools of research—in statistics, research methods and writing techniques.

Throughout your college course you can get valuable information by working as an assistant to a competent research worker. After graduation you should plan to do graduate work, since work beyond a bachelor's degree is generally required before one can become an independent research worker. A scholarship, a fellowship or an assistantship can at least partially finance your graduate study.

The opportunities for research are many, since research is carried on in every phase of home economics.

Additional information on careers in home economics research may be obtained from the School of Home Economics, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

So you want to be a part of the business world!

One of the best ways for a woman to get an entering wedge into the business world is to combine home economics and business in her career, according to Louis Stedman, director of the school of home economics at the University of Minnesota. The combination of home economics and business offers a wide range of challenging careers. And opportunities are abundant for those willing to go where the jobs are.

Specialization in an area of home economics such as food and nutrition, clothing and textiles, related art or household equipment provides a desirable background for a business career. College and university curriculums in home economics have been set up to provide the best possible training for the home economics major who wants to go into business. Part-time and summer jobs that provide selling experience are also strongly recommended.

More and more business firms are employing home economists. Here are some of the types of firms which employ business-trained home economists who have specialized in a particular field:

Public utility companies and home service agencies. Your responsibilities in home service are to acquaint the public with the products or services your company sells. You may demonstrate new equipment, help plan laundry and kitchen areas, advise consumers on better lighting, prepare television and radio scripts, write instructions or recipe booklets, or answer consumer inquiries through letters, telephone or home calls.

Manufacturing companies. Whether your specialty is foods, clothing and textiles or household equipment, your job may be to help develop products and present new and interesting ways to use them. You might travel as a company representative to schools, stores, clubs and national events, arranging promotional meetings for teachers, editors and others interested in the company's products. You might supervise fashion, food or equipment, photography or the production of educational films or TV commercials.

Retail stores. A career in the retailing of textiles and clothing merchandise usually begins with selling experience which you may acquire on a part-time basis while attending college. After your graduation from college, a place in a store's executive training program may lead to more responsible positions in the merchandising area—as department manager or buyer—or in training, fashion coordination or promotion.

If your major is related art, you may work as an interior designer and advise consumers in the selection of furnishings. Or you may sell in home furnishing departments, work with advertising or display, do buying or fashion coordinating.

If you're thinking of a career in retailing, you should have an outgoing personality, the desire to sell, enthusiasm for working with the public and business aptitude.

Veterinary medicine — the application of modern medical science to animals—is a broad field that offers fascinating career opportunities for persons interested in the study, treatment and prevention of disease in animals and man.

In discussing the opportunities in veterinary medicine, Dr. W. T. S. Thorp, dean of the University of Minnesota's college of veterinary medicine, said that the increasing size of livestock and poultry herds and flocks in Minnesota has resulted in a growing demand for veterinarians in the area of preventive medicine and herd health management.

In fact, preventive veterinary medicine is crucial in Midwestern states where dairy, livestock and poultry enterprises are major segments of the economy. In preventive medicine, the veterinarian contributes to the economic stability of agricultural enterprises by minimizing loss from disease and contributing to increased overall herd health and productivity.

This is just one career area in which veterinarians are needed, Dr. Thorp says. By 1980, it is predicted that twice as many veterinarians will be needed as presently.

This increasing need is partly the result of expanding professional opportunities in newer, more specialized areas of veterinary medicine, such as space biomedical programs, comparative medical research and public health and laboratory animal medicine.

For example, a veterinarian's thorough understanding of the biological processes in several animal species and his knowledge of the principles of nutrition, surgery and medicine give him the essential background and training for research.

Veterinary medical research is concerned with the problems relating to animal disease and are readily available at universities, space biology laboratories, medical centers and federal and armed forces research centers.

Basic research by veterinary medical researchers often contributes to knowledge of comparative medicine and consequently to the welfare of mankind, Dr. Thorp says.

Veterinarians working with government agencies promote the public health and economy by controlling diseases which are transmissible from animals to man, working with food processing and other industries, and in programs for the control and eradication of animal diseases such as brucellosis and hog cholera.

Industries, particularly drug and agri-business firms, employ veterinarians as research and specialists, consultants and executives.

And, while veterinarians have helped make our livestock the healthiest and most productive in the world, veterinary medical knowledge also is needed on a worldwide basis in the control of animal diseases, Dr. Thorp said.

Further information on career opportunities in veterinary medicine can be obtained by writing: The College of Veterinary Medicine, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

When a Child Darts Out

Rare is the parent, and rare is the motorist, who has not been haunted by the vision of a child darting out in front of an oncoming automobile. Yet, tragically, such accidents are anything but rare.

If a child is injured or killed in this manner, who bears the legal responsibility?

In a sense the child himself is at fault, since he "took the initiative" in causing the accident. But the law adjusts its standard of care to fit the age of the individual. In most of these darting-out cases, the child is too young to be tagged with the label of negligence.

Yet, the fact that the child is not responsible does not automatically shift responsibility to the motorist. Our impulsive, humanitarian sympathy for the youthful victim does not justify placing the blame on someone who is truly blameless.

Thus, a motorist is ordinarily not liable for running down the child who darts out suddenly from behind a parked car. For there is nothing to give the motorist fair warning of what is to come.

But there are many circumstances which should put the motorist on a special alert. An obvious example is the presence of a child in the street. The motorist should not assume, even if he blows his horn, that the child will promptly and prudently retreat to the sidewalk.

Even if there is no child in sight, other telltale signs may cry caution. For example:

In one case, the fact that a ball bounced into the street was held good reason for an oncoming motorist to expect that a child might follow.

In another case, a posted notice of "CHILDREN AT PLAY" was held sufficient to call for extra careful driving.

It is true that this special responsibility on the motorist, when children are in sight or in prospect, has a tendency to slow the movement of traffic.

But it is also true that cars are killing thousands of our youngsters every year. The law is willing to slow the traffic, to slow the slaughter.

The Palace of Mirrors

Canada, the host country of the 1967 International Exposition, was the first foreign nation to agree to participate in EXPO '70, Osaka, Japan.

"Discovery" is the theme of the Canadian exhibition which will be housed in the "Palace of Mirrors." This theme will depict the vastness which is Canada, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from its southern border to the Arctic region, its initial discovery and subsequent exploration. At the same time the exhibition will also describe the history and people of Canada in a panoramic fashion.

The Palace of Mirrors takes its name from its four towering walls which rise 65 feet and slope inward at an angle of 45 degrees. The walls are all sheathed with mirrors, giving the impression of the immense, stark beauty of the Canadian landscape. Vertical walls, located at the entranceways, likewise are sheathed with mirrors, and they along with the pools placed adjacent to the main walkways reinforce this total effect.

The vast beauty of Canada and its history and people will therefore be the central focus of the "Discovery" theme of the Canadian exhibition in the Palace of Mirrors.

Prowler Cagers Need Win Over East Side

Thief River Falls Prowler basketball team finds itself in a must win situation on Friday night as they play host to East Grand Forks in a Big Five conference game. A win for the Prowlers will give them the conference championship and the number one position in District 31.

The game will also be the last conference action for the Prowlers as they will have two non-conference games left after Friday's contest with the Green Wave. Those two games will be played back to back on Monday and Tuesday evening as they host Ada in a make-up game and then travel to Bagley on Tuesday to close their regular season.

In an earlier meeting between the two clubs at East Grand Forks, the Prowlers came up with a 73-72 win over the Little Green Wave in overtime. In that contest the Prowlers' Sheldon Joppru tallied 34 points, his highest point effort for the year, and pulled down 20 rebounds. Against Fosston last Saturday night, the 6-1 center pulled down 26 rebounds, his highest for the season in one game.

Joppru leads the conference in scoring with a 24.8 average and is the leader to date in rebounds with 83. Besides leading the two departments in conference play, he also has the best average during the season among the conference schools in all games at 21.8. He is the leading rebounder with 234.

Joppru will be the Prowlers' starting center against the Little Green Wave on Friday night. The two guard positions will be held down by Kip Poppenhagen, a junior, and Tony Johnson, a senior. Only sure starter at forward for the game on Friday night is Steve Edlund. Edlund played his best games of the season against Bemidji and Fosston on Friday and Saturday nights, scoring 14 and 18 points respectively and pulling down 14 rebounds in each game. His performance earned him the "Player of the Week" award staff.

Steve Edlund
Player of the Week

The second forward for Friday's game is undecided, according to coach Whitey Olson. He can move Dan Brodin into the lineup at a forward spot from the guard position, or two others could possibly start. They include regular starter Don Balmer, who has been having his troubles in the past three games for the Prowlers, or Dave Kiddahl, who started against Warren and played one of his best games of the season. It was Kiddahl who came off the bench at East Side with a couple of lay ups in the over time period to keep the Prowlers in front and help them to victory. Against Warren he tallied eight points.

More than likely the starting five for the Little Green Wave will be Tim Nedberg and Scott Rossall at the forwards, Kurt Knoff at center and Don Jamieson and Steve Gravseth at the guard positions. Top reserves for coach Larry Selk have been Tom Budge and Scott Gravseth.

Statistics show that the Little Green Wave has three players in double figures in conference play, while four of them are averaging in double figures for the season.

Leading the Little Green Wave is Jamieson with an 18-point average in conference play and a 16.1 overall average. Nedberg and Budge are averaging 13 points per conference game, while Nedberg carries a 13-point overall average and Budge has a 10.4 average overall. Steve Gravseth is the other starter in double figures for the season with a 10.6 average.

Leading the Prowlers is Joppru with a 24.8 conference average and 21.8 average overall. Balmer is averaging 10 points per conference game while he has slipped to a 9.3 overall average. Brodin is averaging 9.4 points in the conference and 9.3 overall, while Edlund in conference action is averaging 5.2 points and a 9.4 average overall. Johnson has a 7.6 average in conference action and is 5.8 on the season.

Game time for Friday's contest at Lincoln high school gym is 8 p.m., with the two 'B' squads doing battle at 6:30 p.m. The Prowler junior varsity scored a onepoint victory over the junior varsity of East Grand Forks in the first meeting, 55-54. The junior varsity will be gunning for win number 10 against three defeats this year.

Save Minnesota Deer Group Is Formed in State

Save Minnesota Deer is the name and the aim of a new organization with blaze orange cards for its deer hunting members in Northeastern Minnesota.

Members are urging hunters to dig into their own pockets to finance a long-range program to increase the size of the deer herd and to improve the winter food supply. They propose a $1.50 increase to the big game license with the increase dedicated solely to the improvement program. This $1.50 surtax would be in addition to any increase now contemplated for the license.

Deeply concerned with the current threat of starvation for many Minnesota deer in this winter of deep snow, Save Minnesota Deer emphasizes that a long-range approach is the best way to attack the problem. A committee is at work right now to encourage outdoorsmen to cut browse for deer, but they express the opinion that the deer herd will go downhill steadily unless there is a year-round effort to improve the food supply.

"Unless we get behind this program," says President David C. Shaw of Grand Rapids, "we can expect our deer herd to decline just as the pheasants and ducks have gone down. By improving food conditions, we can increase the size of the deer herd and reduce the threat of starvation in a winter such as we're having."

A bill is being prepared to present to the legislature. Background information is being sent to sportsmen's organizations, and regional deer hunters meetings will be held. Funds from the surtax would be used in an annual improvement program, which would have crews cut timber and use control burning to improve deer browse.

"If you're interested in keeping a strong deer herd, we urge you to contact your legislators about this proposal," Shaw says. "Contributions to help finance this campaign may be sent to Save Minnesota Deer, Welcome House, Grand Rapids, Minnesota 55744. We'll send a blaze orange membership card as a receipt."

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

'Tis the season to be jolly—but how jolly will your season be if your child is seriously or fatally injured by the toys you thought would give him an especially happy Christmas.

The toys this season are infinite in variety and ingenuity. Most of them are completely safe but some may have inherent built -in dangers health and safety of your youngster.

Here are some shopping hints from the Minnesota State Medical association that may help you insure that your Christmas is unmarred by a preventable accident originating from toys:

Avoid toys made of lead or colored with lead-based paints. Small children sometimes put their playthings in their mouths and if they should swallow some of the lead, a serious illness could result.

Children are tough on toys—buy toys that are durable and not liable to break and cause injuries.

Beware of small toys that can be swallowed, flammable toys and toys with rough or sharp edges.

Baby's toys should be too large for him to put in his mouth, washable lightweight and non-brittle.

Your best assurance of getting a safe electrical toy is to look for the U. L. (Underwriters Laboratory) label or tag on it.

Air rifles, toy archery sets or any toy that propels an object are hazardous particularly to the eyes. If your child receives such a toy, establish ground rules for safe use and see that they are enforced.

Take care also in purchasing chemical sets for children. Toys requiring alcohol, kerosene, gasoline or carbide lamps may be dangerous in juvenile hands.

Remember, says the association, it is the responsibility of parents to instruct their children in the proper way to use a new toy, to inspect toys regularly for possible broken edges which can cut or scratch, and to be sure that children are aware of the dangers involved in toys that require special handling.

One of the questions most often asked dermatologists (skin specialists) during the winter is "What can I do to keep my skin from becoming excessively dry and flaky" says the Minnesota State Medical association.

The dryness is primarily due to loss of water from the skin's outer layer which may be due to various factors: low temperature and humidity outdoors, overheated living and working quarters with low humidity, cold wind, excessive use of soaps and detergents, too-frequent bathing in overly hot water.

Nearly everyone—and older persons in particular—may need to decrease the frequency and duration of bathing during cold weather. In addition, apply a lubricating body lotion after bathing and before bedtime. The legs and arms usually need special attention. Bath oils are helpful supplements to creams and lotions in relieving dry-skin symptoms.

Daily use of emollient (softening) preparations should help to counteract the effects of dry skin. Emollient creams and lotions help to make the skin soft and pliable by retarding evaporation of moisture from the skin surface.

Many of these preparations are emollient and protective without being unduly oily or greasy.

A foundation cream worn under makeup helps to protect the face from the effects of cold wind and to keep the skin soft and smooth. If the skin is excessively dry use cream makeup in place of powder. It also may be desirable to alternate soap-and-water-cleansing of the face with the use of cleansing cream, says the Minnesota State Medical Association.

Increase in infectious hepatitis reached epidemic level throughout Minnesota in October. The St. Paul bureau of health cites 614 reported cases this year compared with 388 a year ago; 51 new cases were reported in October.

But this may be only a few of the actual number of cases existing in the state, says the Minnesota State Medical association. Many who contract the contagious virus infection suffer symptoms so disguised or so mild that the presence of the disease goes undetected.

The symptoms of the disease are like those of many others. Malaise, fatigue and loss of appetite are the first definite symptoms. The patient notices that his urine gets progressively darker, a pain develops in his right side, his skin itches, his heart beats faster and he may have chills, fever and headaches.

If the infection worsens, jaundice, a yellowing of the eyeballs and skin, can develop. It is caused by bile forced into the blood stream by the destruction and swelling of sick liver tissue. Most hepatitis never reaches this jaundice stage.

The virus is most often spread through contaminated food and drinking water. Food and drink in the home should be handled under sanitary conditions. Every home should have proper sewage disposal.

Since early medical treatment can sometimes prevent or lessen the severity of an infection, anyone with a suspected case of hepatitis should see a doctor at once.

One way to ward off infectious hepatitis is by injections of gamma globulin (serum of antibodies) taken from the blood of people who have just recovered from viral hepatitis.

TIPS & TRICKS for TEENS

Before you skate or ski or even spectate, Avon suggests these steps to "winterize" your skin: Even if you don't wear makeup, do apply a moisturizer generously on your face and neck to guard against chapping; use a colorless lip moisturizer under lipstick to prevent cracking . . . and take along a suntan preparation if the sun is bright. That's right! Snow will reflect up to 85% of the sun's rays, and that can be double trouble for unprotected skin.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Sophia Taylor, who departed this life Feb. 15, 1968.
There is so little we can do—so little we can say,
When God has called a loved one home—who means so much to you.
When eyes are closed in sleep—according to God's will,
And that dear voice we loved to hear has suddenly grown still
Sadly missed by all, daughter Grace, Howard and children. 1t13p

In the other semi-final game also played at Bemidji, the Roseau Rams scored a 3-0 shutout over the Bemidji Lumberjacks.

Warroad will now meet Roseau for the Region Eight championship on Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. at Bemidji state college fieldhouse. The winner will go to the state tournament, while the loser will get another chance to go to the state by meeting the runner-up of Region Seven for Region 3 honors. This game will be played at Hibbing on Saturday night.

On Tuesday night the Prowlers met the Warroad Warriors for the second time within a week, but this time it was for the right to advance into the championship game of Region Eight. The Warriors gained the semi-finals on Monday night as they dfeatd East Grand Forks at Crookston by a 10-2 score, while the Prowlers stopped Moorhead at Crookston on Monday by a 6-1 score.

Tuesday the Warriors didn't show any signs of being tired from playing the night before, as they jumped to a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period and added three more goals in the final period to take home a 5-1 win.

The Warriors got on the scoreboard at 3:56 in the first period as Lyle Kvarnlov scored on an assist from Richard Ellerbusch and Henry Bouchn. The next goal came at 8:14 as Leo Marshall pulled the Prowler goalie to the left and slapped the puck into the net unassisted, giving the Warriors the lead at 2-0. In the opening period the Prowlers' Jerry Owen was credited with making five saves while Warroads fine goalie, Jeff Hallett, had six stops.

There was no scoring in the second period as each team was in the other's zone for equal time. Owen made five stops in the period while Warrior goalie Hallett recorded seven.

The final period story was told in stops alone, as the Warriors' Hallett recorded no stops, while the Prowlers' Owen was called upon to make four stops. In that final period Warroad scored three goals, one when the Prowlers were skating two men short because of a double penalty.

Warroad upped their lead to 3-0 at 1:13 in the period as Marshall and Baucha combined for the score, with Marshall getting the goal. The Prowlers then scored their lone goal of the night as Dana Stromberg, who scored a hat trick against Moorhend on Monday, found Dick Holmes coming up the center of the ice and flipped a beautiful pass to him. Holmes beat Hallett as the Prowlers narrowed the lead to 3-1.

Thief River Falls picked up a double penalty at 6:10 in the period as Bill Norman was called for slashing and Cal Wicklander for tripping. The Prowlers were forced to skate with two men short, and in that minute and one-half the Warriors scored another goal but had many opportunities blocked by the Prowler defense. Scoring the goal with eight seconds left in the penalty time was Frank Krohn from Alan Hangsleben at 7:23, making the score 4-1 in favor of the Warriors. The final goal of the game came at 9:09 as John Taylor scored unassisted for the Warriors.

Moorhead-Thief River Falls

Thief River Falls gained the semi-finals of the Region Eight hockey tournament Monday night as they defeated the Moorhead Spuds 6-1 at Crookston. In other first round action on Monday night at Crookston, Warroad defeated East Grand Forks 10-2. In the other bracket, Bemidji defeated Indus 4-3 and Roseau topped Crookston by a 4-0 score.

In the game against the Spuds on Monday night, the Prowlers jumped to a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period and increased that lead to 3-0 at the end of the second period. The Prowlers then added three goals and Moorhead scored their lone goal of the game in the final period.

Dana Stromberg led the Prowlers as the senior co-captain tallied a hat trick, with one goal in the first period and two goals in the final period, one coming unassisted. Other scoring was done by Cal Wicklander, Bruce Broughton and Donn Haugen.

Wicklander scored unassisted at 3:44 to open first period scoring. The second goal was tallied by Stromberg on an assist from Wicklander at 9:30. In that period Prowler goalie Jerry Owen had a total of two stops while the Spud's goalie recorded nine stops.

The second period found the Prowlers adding to their lead as Broughton tallied the lone goal of the period at 8:46, giving the Prowlers the lead at 3-0. In this period Owen recorded six saves while the Spuds goalie tallied 11 saves.

The Prowlers scored three goals in less than two minutes during the third period. Stromberg from Broughton recorded the first goal of the period at 8:37. Stromberg then picked off the puck, skated the length of the ice and scored at 9:42. Unassisted. Final goal of the night for the Prowlers came at 10:22 from Ron Runger to Haugen.

The Spuds tallied their lone goal in the final minute of the game as Steve Henry tallied on assists from Lee Meyer and Tom Johnson at 11:39, spoiling Owens bid for a shutout.

In the final period Owen recorded six stops while the Spuds goalie, Fran Ramsdal, recorded nine in the period. Owen recorded 11 saves for the Prowlers during the contest while Ramsdal had 29 for the Spuds.

Preuss To Head Wildlife Week In Minnesota

The 1969 observance of wildlife week in Minnesota will be directed by Roger Preuss, Minneapolis wildlife artist, who has been named state chairman by the National Wildlife Federation.

He will head efforts of the Minnesota Conservation federation in co-sponsoring the conservation project, the largest of its kind, March 16-22.

The growing need to provide places for wildlife is one of the most pressing conservation problems, Preuss said. The theme "Provide Wildlife Habitat" means restoring destroyed natural areas and preserving those not yet spoiled.

The chairman cited the important need to support Save Minnesota Wetlands and the Wetlands for Wildlife, Inc., program. He emphasized that an early start is required for the special effort that will be made during the week to encourage individual habitat improvement projects by farmers, sportsmen and all other outdoor enthusiasts.

Information on how to join in the campaign may be obtained by contacting state chairman Roger Preuss in care of the Minnesota Conservation Federation, 4313 Shady Oak Road, Hopkins, Minn., 55343.

Sportsmen Will Hold Seminar in St. Paul Sat.

Third annual hunting and fishing seminar for sportsmen and conservationists, sponsored by committees of the Minnesota legislature, has been set for Saturday at the state capitol, according to Rep. Thomas W. Newcome, White Bear Lake, chairman of the Minnesota Resources commission.

"Emphasis will be on exposing the sportsmen to the legislative process in establishing game and fish budgets, appropriations and license fees," states Newcome.

The format of the seminar will be built around hearings of standing committees of both the House and Senate on the game and fish budget requests, proposed increased license fees and detailed testimony on two major program proposals.

Five committees of the legislature—the House appropriations subcommittee on state departments, Senate finance subcommittee on conservation, Senate game and fish committee, House conservation committee and the Minnesota resources commission—will hold joint hearings at the seminar.

"Normal rules of procedure governing meetings of the standing committees and appearances of witnesses will apply," according to Sen. Clifford Ukkelberg, Clitherall, chairman of the Senate game and fish committee, vice-chairman of the Minnesota resources commission and general chairman of this year's seminar.

Officials of the department of conservation are scheduled to testify at both the morning and afternoon hearings.

The chairman of the seminar explains that the purpose is to "provide an opportunity for any interested organization or individual to understand the legislative process and how your voice may be heard."

There will be no registration fee, but all attending will be asked to register. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday on the first floor of the capitol, near the main entrance.

Since the seminar will be on a Saturday, parking will be permitted without charge at all state parking lots in the capital area.

Urges Farmers To Sign Up for Wildlife Plans

State game and fish director Richard Wettersten today urged farmers and other rural land owners to sign up for the wildlife projects recently announced as eligible for cost sharing under the federal ACP program.

Approximately 2,000 food plots were planted with ACP cost sharing assistance last spring and Wettersten said they "will play a large part in bringing pheasants through this most difficult winter." He also praised the winter cover plantings available under the program.

"With many marsh areas gone over 50 per cent of our pheasant population must now find winter protection in farmstead windbreaks. Unfortunately, the number and quality of such windbreaks has declined."

Wettersten said windbreaks planted for wildlife must contain a minimum of eight rows of trees and shrubs although 10 rows is recommended. The inner four to six rows should be made up of conifers such as spruce and cedar.

There has been increased interest in planting windbreaks recently and landowners can now receive 80 per cent cost sharing of up to $2 per tree and $300 per windbreak.

Landowners can also receive cost sharing for planting nesting cover and to improve or restore shallow water areas for wildlife.

Wettersten urged landowners to call the county ASCS office for additional information. There is also technical assistance and some additional financial help available through the private land habitat improvement program of the conservation department, division of game and fish.

Information on this program can be obtained by contacting game managers at game and fish division field offices or by writing to the Division of Game and Fish, 390 Centennial Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Lakeshore Study Made to Forecast Future Building

Minnesota Lakeshore development study has announced that it is sending questionnaires to property owners on more than 300 Minnesota lakes. The questionnaire will attempt to determine the perceptions of Minnesotan's toward their lakes and will help to explain and forecast future lakeshore building.

The study was initiated by Professor John Borchert of the university's geography department. Its director is George Orning. The study was authorized and funded by the Minnesota Resources commission. Goals of the study include coordinating data on all Minnesota lakes from a variety of state and local sources, and research into areas of concern in lakeshore planning.

The lakeshore study had its origin in the realization that Minnesota's lakes are a vital resource and that their development should be adequately planned. The Lakes of Minnesota, even as far north as Red lake, are part of Minnesota's urbanization. These crystal blue and unpolluted lakes help to draw jobs into the state and to hold them there by providing amenities for all working men. In addition, they draw tourists and cottage dwellers from every state.

"One such cottage dweller, who lives on Red lake, almost 300 miles from the Twin Cities, said he was there because, "This is one of the most beautiful lakes in Minnesota. I had a cabin on Gull lake years ago, but it's too crowded now. If it weren't for the lakes I wouldn't even be in Minnesota."

Huge Moose Is Found Shot in Superior Forest

Another of Minnesota's prized moose has been reported killed by some irresponsible shooter, the conservation department has reported.

A grouse hunter working the area south of Phantom lake in the Superior national forest came upon the remains of the animal this past fall, according to the U.S. forest sevice. The big bull had an antler spread of 60.5 inches.

The only authentic record of a moose in Minnesota with a larger rack was one with 61 inches taken in 1900 C.A.A. Nelson of Lutsen.

There are records of Alaskan moose with antler spreads of 75 ... in the Canadian subspecies which is found in Minnesota. The Phantom lake moose was apparently shot and left to rot.

Jarle Leirfallom, state conservation commissioner, said, "The Person who shot this beautiful animal was not a hunter and he certainly was not a sportsman."

People who need glasses are apt to find the world pretty fuzzy without them. What appears as only a blur without their "specs" swings into sharp focus, once they've put them on.

If only there were glasses we could don quickly when we need to put ourselves, our problems, our successes and our failures into proper perspective! But that kind of lense has yet to be devised.

We all have moments when we seem to be groping and nothing comes clear. We wonder where we are going and, perhaps, why. We have such moments whether or not we go to church on Sundays—for the Church will not give us spectacles, rose-colored or otherwise, with which to view the world. But . . . the Church does teach us of God's world, it does teach us the meaning of Faith, it does show us life in its proper light.

Try going to church. If you do, you may find your "inner vision" getting a great deal sharper.

GM
Value Showdown:
Match these features against what competition gives you for the same kind of money, and you'll have a better idea why more people are buying Chevrolets again this year.

Built-in "guard rails"
There's a strong steel beam built into every door of every 1969 Caprice, Impala, Bel Air, Biscayne, Kingswood Estate Wagon, Kingswood, Townsman and Brookwood.
We call it a side guard beam, and it looks like one of those guard rails you see along the freeway.
That's what it's there for: To guard you. To strengthen the door and put a more solid wall between you and the outside world.
Not a glamorous feature.
But you'll have to admit worthwhile.

Computer-selected springs
Maybe you'll order your new Chevy equipped to the hilt.
Or maybe you'll order it with hardly anything on it.
Either way, you're going to get your full measure of our renowned ride.
Because we go to the trouble of programming each car's equipment load into an electronic computer.
The computer then tells us exactly which springs to use, depending on the car's weight and the way it's distributed.
Chevrolet, the only car in its field with computer-selected springs.

Fenders inside fenders
We could have skipped this. (The other cars in our field do.)
But we're as anxious as you are to keep your beautiful new Chevy looking beautiful and new.
So:
Up inside the regular fenders we've placed a second set.
They do all the in-fighting. Catch all the splashed-up rain, slush and road salt. Stop the kicked-up stones.
While your "outers" just sit there looking pretty.

Astro Ventilation
The other two cars in our field give you air intakes down by the floor.
So do we.
We also give you two up on the instrument panel.
And all four of them are adjustable so you can regulate the flow of air just the way you like it.
Even with all the windows closed, you'll be comfortable inside. You get air without wind. Without noise.
Astro Ventilation is standard, now, on all the big Chevrolets.

The theft-thwarter
On the steering column there's a lock.
Only Chevrolet has it, in Chevrolet's field.
You turn the key and it locks three things:
Your ignition.
Your steering wheel.
Your shift lever.

When you own a car this tempting, you don't dare take chances.

Biggest standard V8 in our field
Ask any car enthusiast, he'll tell you:
Chevrolet builds great engines. Especially V8s.
And this year there are six great V8s available for the big Chevrolet. Standard: Our 235-hp 327-cubic-inch Turbo-Fire.
Another thing: We've lowered the price of several of our bigger V8s along with our automatic transmissions and power disc brakes. Which makes it possible for you to buy a '69 Chevrolet for even less money than you could last year.
Show up for our Showdown. You can't lose.
Putting you first, keeps us first.

"The critics say we seem to be in a very, very bad way, and engaged in our decline and fall. Criticism is no doubt good for the soul, but we must beware that it does not upset our confidence in ourselves. So perhaps the time has come for Americans to take stock and think something good about themselves."

Klobuchar Calls

Jim Klobuchar writes a column for the Minneapolis Star, a daily newspaper published in Minneapolis. Last Saturday his column dealt with Thief River Falls, a direct result of a personal visit which he made to our fair community for the first time.

We are happy that Mr. Klobuchar came to call. In his own words, the visit was "...in an attempt to spread the salve of conciliation on this wronged community, one which is famed through the Northwest for being upright morally and horizontal geographically."

By way of background, the newspaper which employs Mr. Klobuchar carried a recent article listing Thief River Falls as one of two places where a controvesial phonograph record album could be purchased. Implication was made that modesty was more easily found in the metropolitan area than in Thief River Falls. We took issue with the Star editorially, and it seems that others may have sent letters or made telephone calls to that daily.

At any rate, Mr. Klobuchar arrived to "spread the salve of conciliation"—and to uncover whatever items of iniquitous nature he could in 24 hours or less, thereby proving that Thief River Falls is not an unblemished pillar of virtue. To the uninitiated, this might be a formidable challenge. To Mr. Klobuchar, it was no problem. He scanned several magazine racks with an experienced eye and came up with a pulp tabloid "featuring lightly or non-dressed people in its photographs."

This triumph achieved, he turned to relaxation. Friendly people of Thief River Falls provided him with a snowmobile outing, sauna bath at a private home, dinner at a local club and plenty of conversation. In addition to his column material, he received a liberal education on some of the finer points of Thief River Falls. Some of these impressions were contained in a story in the Star's Monday edition.

We were happy to have you visit, Jim. Come back again anytime when you crave a deep breath of unpolluted air.

Know What They Lost

The following editorial appeared in the Marshall Messenger:

Those of us who live in the countryside portion of America tend to think of ourselves as conservation-minded custodians of our natural resources. We live so close to nature, to the streams and woods and lakes, and we make so much use of them we tend to take a proprietary interest in them.

Yet when it comes to the ecological aspects of conservation and natural resources, our interest seems to stop.

This week at Augsburg College a conference on man and his biological relationship with nature is being held. Who is attending the conference?

The big city people, of course.

The countryside residents know vaguely about the biological relationships of plants and animals and people, but it doesn't frighten us.

Big city people see evidence every day of the relationship. And they know what they have lost as humans have conquered nature with bricks and mortar and paving and poison and pollution.

Every day 10 square miles of land in this country is converted to concrete and brick. Cars that spew pollution ride on much of this concrete. The concrete itself canceled out the vegetation that once grew on the 10 acres, and this vegetation used to help purify the air.

Big city people know this.

The city of St. Paul has stopped using DDT in its fight against the insects that carry Dutch Elm disease. They know that DDT is upsetting nature's balance by killing birds and otherwise polluting the earth.

The concern that big city peole have for ecological processes sooner or later must spread to the countryside. Lake Big Stone already has been ruined by upsetting nature in that watershed.

We would be foolishly shortsighted to say, "It can't happen out here in the country."

Borrowed Nonsense...

Two reckless drivers were up before the judge for having been involved in an accident. "I wish to commend you two careless fellows," said the judge, "for having run into each other instead of some innocent person. If this sort of thing can be encouraged, we may have hit upon the answer to a serious problem."

Cause for Concern

One problem with high taxes is that everyone may complain about them but nobody seems to do anything about them. Governing bodies are coming to accept yearly increases in taxes as inevitable, and question only the percentage of increase. The constant upward spiral of taxes—the deeper government reach into the pockets of the taxpayers—is certainly cause for legitimate concern.

Spending programs are promoted by elected officials as being "demanded" by the people. We wonder sometimes how politicians have developed such acute hearing for spending demands, while sustaining deafness to the pleas for some semblance of sanity in holding down costs.

Just how serious is the problem? That depends to some extent on the individual in question. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce reports that employed Americans will work two and one-half hours every eight-hour working day in 1969 to pay their federal, state and local tax bills. That's serious enough.

"The 10 per cent surtax last year accounted for a big jump in federal taxes, but state and local taxes are also showing a distinct upward trend," the Chamber of Commerce report says. "This is revealed in a just-completed review by taxation and finance experts of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States." (It is also reveled in the withholding tax statements and real estate tax statements received by taxpayers this year.)

Amount of increase in taxes becomes more frightening when viewed from the standpoint of the rate of increase. Income tax take in 1959 was $54 billion. In 1932 the total was slightly more than $1 billion. From 1932 to 1940, the figure doubled to about $2 billion. By 1950, federal income tax receipts reached $26 billion. Now, less than two decades later, they have more than quadrupled. Receipts from federal income taxes are expected to reach $122 billion in fiscal 1969.

Governmental units on all levels are casting about for new ways to raise revenue, preferring to tax something else rather than increase existing taxes. Emphasis seems to be established on finding money to spend rather than finding ways not to spend money.

In 1902 all taxes—federal, state and local—came to $17 per capita. In 1948 it was $349 and in 1958 it was $568. For 1969 the estimated tax bill will be $1,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Can anyone seriously deny that this is cause for concern?

A Minor Problem

A minor problem for some potential racers in the States-Dominion Snowmobile rally Saturday developed when they were required to have licenses on their machines in order to run in the cross-country race. Minnesota law permits operation of snowmobiles on private property without licensing, but requres that they be licensed to operate on public property. This includes crossing roads, which the cross-country course did.

We understand that several Canadian racers chose not to run in the cross-country rather than pay the license fee, and that at least one group of machines returned home without racing. This was unfortuante, for good will between Minnesota and its bordering Canadian provinces has been a thing of pride for a number of years. Many good friendships have been cultivated across the border by exchange events and activities.

One state conservation officer, who assisted in the licensing of machines at the cross-country race site, informed us that Canadian racers were very understanding of the law. The real complaints, he said, came from Minnesota drivers. There was no problem on the closed course races Sunday, for they were conducted on private property.

We say the problem was minor, because it is not too likely to occur in the future. Snowmobiles licensed in other states or Canadian provinces may be operated in Minnesota without Minnesota registration. The conflict was that several machines to be entered here came from states or provinces which do not now require licensing. It is likely that licensing will be required in those stats and provices in the near future.

Congratulations are in order to the Jaycees for their second annual rally. With a year of experience to serve as a guide, the Jaycees conducted a generally smooth-operating event. The races were challenging to the drivers and entertaining to the spectators. It was a job well done.

Governor LeVander Reports

The first responsibility I gave assigned to Robert W. Carlson as he assumes the post of state commissioner of agriculture, is to develop plans for a statewide governor's farm conference to be held this spring.

I have been pleased with previous statewide conferences on tourism and rural community development. Many recommendations brought forward by concerned citizens have resulted in new programs and legislation at the state level.

I firmly believe that a farm conference by and for farmers will provide valuable input as well.

A second urgent project which the new commissioner will carry out will be establishing a close working relationship between our state department of agriculture and the U.S. department of agriculture.

I am confident that the Nixon administration will provide new leadership for solving farm problems.

In developing my proposed budget for the next biennium, I took into consideration the needs of local units of government as well as those of state agencies.

Few persons realize the proportion of our state budget which is returned to local governments. For example:

*$630 million, or 33.1 per cent will be returned to local government as property tax relief.

$630 million, or 33.1 per cent will be returned directly to local school districts as state aid to elementary and secondary education.

The two above expenditures alone total some $1,210,000,000, or almost 62 per cent of the total proposed budget.

And, if expenditures for higher education and welfare are added, we find that only $340 million out of the proposed $1.9 billion, will be used for all other state services, including highway construction, conservation, economic development, and other general government administration.

So, while it is obvious that the state budget is larger than ever before, it is well to note that the primary increases are for aids to local governments and higher education.

Council Rejects Bids For New Arena Project

All bids received for he new city arena for Thief River Falls were rejected by the city council Friday evening at an adjourned meeting held in the city auditorium. The adjourned meeting also included hearing on a portion of the 1969 Improvement project.

Council members had met with Thomas Hodne of Hodne Associates earlier in the week and informed him that they intended to reject bids. They also instructed the architect to re-design an arena within the funds available — $625,000 — including fees, ice-making equipment and other necessary equipment.

Bids officially rejected Friday evening were for $711,774. They had been received December 17, with the council having 60 days to reach a decision on accepting or rejecting them.

Hodne indicated in his meeting with the council that plans and specifications for bidding would be ready in 10 weeks, and a tentative date of May 13 was set for opening of bids. It is believed by the council that this would provide sufficient construction time so that the arena would be in use by December 1 of this year.

Several members of he council and other interested citizens have recently visited the new arena at International Falls. The Bronco arena, built by School District 361, was dedicated December 22 of last year. Cost of building and equipment was $545,000. The arena seats approximately 2,600 spectators and has an 85x200 feet ice rink. Council members were reportedly impressed with that structure and, with modifications, expect that the Thief River Falls building will be similar in design.

Council members on Friday also adopted a resolution requesting that the Minnesota legislature amend the laws of 1895 to provide that the term of may. or be extended to four years from the present two-year term.

Another portion of the 1969 Improvement project will be considered at a hearing tonight at 7 p.m., in the city auditorium meeting room. This will concern street improvement, water main and sanitary sewer extension to serve the areas of Atlantic avenue, Red Lake boulevard, Dewey avenue, Pine ave. No., first southeast addition and the industrial park.

Dates Set for Community Play

Dates of Tuesday and Wednesday, February 25 and 26, have been selected for the Thief River Falls Community theatre production of "Arsenic and Old Lace". The play will be staged at 8 p.m. both evenings in the Lincoln senior high school auditorium.

Pennington DHIA Elects Officers

Pennington county DHIA held its annual meeting on Thursday, at the courthouse, electing Darrow Lundeen, president; Karl Kron, vice president; and Mylo Carlson, secretary - treasurer. for 1969 Donald Erickson was elected to serve a three-year term on he board of direcors.

Jerry Hamre, supervisor for the association, reported that there were 28 herds on standard DHIA test and 10 herds on the ownersampler method. Mylo Carlson received the award for the top herd in the association with an average butterfat production of 565 pounds per cow.

Other herds in the top ten respectively were Mrian Augustine, Gene Nelson, Martin Hanson, Carl and Duane Krohn, Donald Ericksan, Warren and Lowell Hamrick, Wallace Releison, Mordy Morrison and Harold Sabo.

The award for high increase in butterfat over last year's production went to Albert Koop.

The top cow in the association, with a record of 25,450 pounds of milk and 1,170 pounds of butterfat is owned by James Muzzy. The butterfat production mark is a new state record.

A review of the association's yearly herd summary indicated that while the local association average production was slightly below the state average, the feed cost per hundred weight of milk was 23 cents less than the state average and income over feed cost was $37 per cow above the state average.

These figures indicate that the dairymen in this area are in a positon to compete favorably with other areas of the state, it was noted at the meeting.

Snyder St. Bernards Think Winter Is Fun

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

At 230 pounds Great Shakes isn't exactly a lap dog; he just thinks he is. The registered St. Bernard, pride and joy of the Lowell Snyder family of rural Thief River Falls, has a heart as big as his massive head and a true desire to be man's best friend. Winter is his time of year, and he thoroughly enjoys romping in the heavy snow of northern Minnesota.

"Look at the size of that dawg!" is the first reaction of visitors to the Snyder home south of Thief River Falls. The home is located at the end of a long driveway which curves east from highway 32 to a large yard near the Red Lake river. "What do you feed a animal like that?"

In spits of their large size, St. Bernards are not heavy eaters, except when growing to maturity. Pups are 10 ounces to a pounds at birth, but reach 25 to 30 pounds when weaned at about four weeks. A female will grow to 150 to 160 pounds at one year and a male will reach 180 to 200 pounds during that time.

Because of the rapid growth, care in feeding is important. A high protein, high calcium diet is needed for good bone structure and healthy growth. Cod liver oil is fed with a calcium supplement to activate the calcium in the dog's digestive system. An adult dog will eat about the same amount of commercial dog food, or possibly less, than Labradors or other large sporting breeds.

While the Snyders have two registered females in addition to Shakes, they raise St. Bernard's more for pleasure than profit. Selective breeding is done to attempt producing high quality pups, and is done only when the Snyders feel it is best for their females. Although they have raised numerous litters over the years, they expect to have, at most, two litters per year.

"Our dogs are registered with the American Kennel club (AKC)," Mrs. Snyder said, "and we are considered a kennel since we have had numerous litters in the past. We will drive all over the country to find a suitable stud when breeding time comes, and expect to go at least to southern Minnesota or into Wisconsin. There are quite a few St. Bernards in the area we moved from in Wisconsin."

First Crow of Season Sighted

First crow of the season in the immediate Thief River Falls territory was seen last Wednesday by Art Stenberg, who lives west of highway 59 near Barnick's Furniture mart. Stenberg saw the bird before he heard its raucous call. What does it mean? Either an early spring or a cold crow.

Erwin Muzzy of rural Thief River Falls recently accepted the position of manager at Riopelle Implement company in Argyle.

Store at Badger Is Cited Under Food Stamp Law

Darwin's Red Owl, Badger, and owner Darwin A. Johnson have been disqualified from participation in the food stamp program for a period of 30 days.

According to USDA's consumer and marketing service, the store violated program regulations by accepting food stamp coupons in exchange for ineligible items; by giving cash for change in a food coupon transaction; and by giving credit in excess of the allowable 49 cents.

Board, Faculty Meet and Confer

Members of the Thief River Fall teachers' negotiating team received the board of education's counter proposal for the 1969-70 salary schedule Wednesday evening and rejected it immediately as being unsatisfactory. The faculty council and at 7:30 p.m. for futher negotiations in an attempt toward settlement.

C. L. Charlson, chief negotiater for the board of education's unit, presented the counter proposal Wednesday. I called for an annual base salary of $6,120—an increase of $120 or two per cent from the original offer of The teachers council had $6,000.

The teacher's council had originally requested a base salary of $10,400, then reduced the request to $9,88 two weeks ago. The first figure was based on four-thirds of a $7,600 nine-month contract, and the second on four-thirds of a $7,400 nine-month salary. The board has adopted a 12-month schedule for 1969-70, and the length of school term is said to be non-negotiable.

Ted Hellie, co-chairman of the teachers' council, listed a number of places where concessions had been made during or as a result of negotiations to date. He said that faculty concessions far out-numbered school board concessions and suggested that teachers didn't believe the "give" in negotinting should all come from one side of the table.

In making th presentation, Charlson said the increase authorized by the board was consistent with the decrease presented by the teachers' council.

Roseau Teacher Back on Payroll But Not Teaching

Blaine Begeman, who was recently discharged by he Roseau school board, is to be put back on the payroll of the school system but will not teach in the system, board chairman Dr. Robert Harris reported this week.

Dr. Harris blamed the cost of proposed hearing and legal action as a reason for the reinstatement on the payroll from which Begeman had been removed at a recent board meeting. Harris stated that it would be more costly to the taxpayers of the Roseau school district to carry out the discharge proceedings than to keep him on the payroll until the end of the school term.

Begeman had been dismissed for alleged conduct unbecoming a teacher. Begeman, who has been charged with carnal knowledge of a child, has not yet appeared before a court on that charge, county attorney Chester Yon reported.

According to Yon, Begeman has not yet secured an attorney to represent him. A hearing on the felony charge cannot be held until he is represented by counsel.

Once an attorney has been secured the general procedure is to have a hearing and then a jury trial. The case will come up in the spring term of district court, Yon concluded.

He was selected from among six final nominations from the United States and Canada, and was the only Minnesota Holstein nominated for All-American honors.

Marshall county sheriff Oscar Erickson recieved a call about 6:30 a.m. Monday that the burglaries had taken place. So far, he has been unable to uncover any evidence of anyone noticing anything suspicious during the night.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Mrs. Dwight Westman of Warren

Several area newspapers regularly feature a recipe column. Some are similar to Kitchen Karnival with a brief account of the family, and others are a combination of poems, editorializing, helpful hints and a number of recipes. During the past week, I received a clipping of the Warren Sheaf recipe column, "Sugar and Spice, Other Things Nice." The recipe was contributed by Mrs. Dwight Westman, the former Carol Anderson of rural Thief River Falls, who now resides at Warren. It features hamburger, which according to the article, was introduced in 1903-4 at the St. Louis fair. Today, because of its versatility, more hamburger is consumed than any other type of meat. Mrs. Westman's meatballs may be used with a sour cream gravy, as Swedish meatballs or in a spaghetti sauce. The measurements are not exact, as Mrs. Westman, like so many cooks today, uses the "dump" method.

Meatballs

1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound ground pork
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup milk
¾ cup cracker crumbs
½ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper.

Method: Mix all ingredients thoroughly and shape into 1½ inch balls. Brown on all sides at 340 degrees in a small amount of shortening. Remove from pan and prepare sauce or gravy. Add meatballs and simmer at least ½ hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Westman moved to Warren the later part of December from Humboldt. They have three children: Steven, 5; Brian, 4; and Susan, 3. Mr. Westman is a representative for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. Formerly he was high school principal and band instructor at Humboldt, also serving as parttime U. S. Immigration Inspector. His hometown is Stephen. Mrs. Westman gave her occupation as full-time housewife, although she has had some experience in speech correction and special educational instruction on a part-time basis. While in college, she worked in a fabric shop and sewed model garments for advertising display. She has also done some custom sewing, mostly draperies. Reading, creative writing, all athletics, especially gymnastics, and cooking her own variations of basic recipes are her special interests.

Gun Laws Pushed

Twin Cities newspapers, and the Minneapolis Star-Tribune in particular, are beating the editorial drums once again for further gun controls in Minnesota. They are insisting that the state legislature pass laws which will impose more restrictions on firearms owners or potential firearms owners in the state.

Our comments on the question of firearms controls have been emphatic and numerous in the past. At the present time, there is little need to review the reasons why we vehemently oppose firearms registration and owner licensing, and take a dim view of projected benefits from other so-called "control" legislation.

New Jersey has severe statewide restrictions on firearms of all kinds which went into effect in 1966. Its citizens are required by law to obtain police-issued permits, after fingerprinting, in order to buy or carry rifles, shotguns or handguns.

The New Jersey gun law was loudly hailed as a model for the rest of the states. New Jersey officials urged Congress to adopt it for the entire nation as a means of curbing crime. Just how effective is the model law?

The number of homicides in New Jersey has increased approximately 26 per cent from 219 in 1965 to 240 in 1966 and 276 in 1967. Crime in New Jersey has risen from below the national crime rate to above it—from 1,396 law violations per 100,000 population in 1965 to 1,979 in 1967, compared with a national rate in 1967 of 1,921.

New Jersey now has a higher overall crime rate than 39 other states, including some with very few gun controls. Two of the states with the least restrictive gun laws—Minnesota and Wisconsin—had less homicide than any of the states with strong control laws.

Most people in this area have very definite opinions on the subject of controls. These opinions may or may not conflict with the opinions of the metropolitan area in general, since polls can be highly misleading.

But the pressure is being applied by the anti-gun forces, and the members of the legislature are certain to feel it. If we value our freedoms and individual rights, it behooves each of us to swing that pressure to the other side. Write, call or visit your legislator and tell him in no uncertain terms that you will stand for none of this anti-gun nonsense. Tell him you will not stand for his acceptance or support of any of it as your elected representative. Make sure that your position is crystal clear.

We believe the legislators from this area have enough common sense to reject the illogical arguments put forth by the zealots for controls. We feel strongly enough about this question to accept no compromise. Should any legislator from our circulation area vote in favor of any gun control legislation, we will actively work to see that he is not reelected. This is not the type of legislation with which to play footsie or trade votes.

Take Home Pay Is Less Today

Beginning on the first payday in 1969, the law requires an increased deduction for social security tax by every firm in the country. Employees and their employers will each have to pay at the rate of 4.8 per cent on the first $7,800 of annual pay instead of the previous rate of 4.4 per cent.

The maximum deduction will be $374.40, compared to $343.20 last year. The following table will show how the increase will affect each employee.

The more workers you get who don't do what they're supposed to do, the more products you get that don't do what they're supposed to do."
—Bill Copeland

To Avoid Failure

Writing in "The Imperial Magazine", William Feather makes the following observations:

"The average young man is at work at twenty, and married at twenty-five. He anticipates that he will be definitely on the way to success at thirty. If he isn't, he assumes that something must be wrong with his job or his employer. He knows he must have more money. Instead of appraising the situation coolly and making sure that the next step will take him forward, he jumps blindly. In two or three years he is worse off then ever—unless he is an exception.

"Many have puzzled a lot about this, wondering what advice should be given to a young man. Should he regard himself as a pilot of the business machine, or as a cog? Should he submit to what appears to be a blind-alley future, hoping for a turn which he cannot see?

"These are questions that are difficult to answer even for that indefinite average young man. They are still harder to answer when a real flesh-and-blood young man asks you what to do.

"John Hays Hammond refused to reply to applicants who said 'What is the future in this job?' He reasoned that the future of one man would be totally different from the future of another. He would not commit himself, and resented the effort to make him.

"Probably there is no gain in attempting to tell anyone what to do to insure a future.

"But, like E. W. Howe, the Kansas philosopher, we can tell a man how to avoid failure. Let him be industrious, temperate, honest, fair and polite. Then he'll probably always have a job. If he is an exceptional person the chances are that his employer, or some other employer, will notice him and offer him a better job."

The Crime Capitol

From the Republican Congressional Committee Newsletter comes the following observation:

If you've wondered why Washington, D.C., has become the crime capital of the Nation, a look at the statistics will provide the answer: In only one out of 33 crimes committed in the District of Columbia does the offender go to jail.

These figures were included in a speech last week by the Executive Director of the Republican Congressional Committee, I. Lee Potter, who elaborated:

"The time from filing a case in D. C. District Court until disposition was 9½ months last year—an all-time high and six times longer than in 1960. In 1968, D. C. police made 10,800 arrests covering less than one-fourth of the 49,272 reported crimes. Only six per cent of those convicted were sent to jail. In other words, in less than nine per cent of the crimes reported did the offenders go to jail. And the latest survey indicated there were three times as many crimes committed in D.C. as reported to police.

"Therefore, a potential criminal knows he has a better than 33-to-1 chance of escaping jail in the District of Columbia."

Welfare Problem

Rising costs of welfare during a period of prosperity are a concern of many Americans. To indicate a portion of the problem, consider the situation in New York City.

Last August there were 916,116 persons on relief in the city of New York, and that figure has increased to over a million by January 1 of this year—nearly 15 per cent of the city's population. Cost of all welfare programs in that city in the year ended June 30 was $3.6 billion—a billion dollars more than the previous year. By comparison, Norway has a national budget of $1.8 billion.

The city government of New York contributes $1.4 billion to welfare programs—more than a quarter of all city spending and more than the amount used for education. And someone has figured out that if all the people on welfare in New York City moved out and set up their own city, it would be the eighth largest city in the country.

CAPITOL COMMENT

BY MARTY MCGOWAN

By Marty McGowan

Committees are the workhorses of the legislature. The screening process is done in committee and it is generally true that once a bill gets out of committee it stands a good chance of passage. This is more true in the senate than in the house, but late in the session time runs out with bills still pending.

Visitors to the legislature often sit in the galleries of the house and senate expecting to see and hear some interesting debate. Usually they are disappointed for much of the time of both houses is spent in detail work of the clerks droning out committee reports. The debate, if any, is usually brief for once a bill gets to the full house or senate the authors provide as little explanation as possible. The practice of wise heads is to limit discussion for if they say too much about a bill it may induce members who otherwise wouldn't know what is in the bill to ask questions.

Members don't have the time to analyze all bills in detail. They rely on the committees, the integrity of the authors of bills and others interested to the topic of the bill to raise questions. If none are asked by more knowledgeable members, the others go along and pass the bill.

Some mention was made that in the current session the number of committees in the house was reduced by four. Groups seeking legislative reform say this is good, but they fail to recognize some of the underlying reasons for creation of particular committees.

It is true that major committees are created to deal with major topics like taxes, appropriations, education and others. However, some committees exist only to provide a member with a chairmanship. For example, if there happen to be six members of the majority group who have four terms of seniority, each of them must be found a committee to head. If no committee exists, one is created. There might be a banking committee and an insurance committee or there might be a dairy products and livestock committee in addition to an agriculture committee. The following session if there are only four members of the majority with four terms of seniority the committees on banking and insurance might be consolidated into one on financial institutions and the dairy products and livestock committee might be assimilated into the agriculture committee, thereby reducing the total number of committees.

House Speaker Lloyd Duxbury makes a valid point about this matter. He contends that if the number of committees is reduced, then a greater number of sub-committees will have to be created to handle the volume of bills. Each session has so many bills to be processed and reducing the number of committees to handle them doesn't make the bills go away.

Joe Bright, who heads the office of revisor of statutes where bills are drafted, noted recently that in 1959 his office was asked to prepare 1800 bills. For the 1967 session his office was asked to draft 3800 bills. Not all of them were introduced for various reasons. Usually about one third of the bills introduced become law, with committees filtering out most of them. Some are introduced to satisfy a constituent and no time can be found for a hearing. Some claims bills are lumped together in one bill for final passage.

The senate found when the number of committees was reduced a few years ago that it didn't help much. That particular session the house processed its bills in orderly and speedy fashion and in some cases was waiting for the senate to take action at the committee level.

One suggestion of the Citizens League, a group seeking legislative reform, is worth consideration. The suggestion is that members be assigned to fewer committees and that committees meet for longer periods of time—two or three hours instead of an hour or hour and a half. Some senators have been assigned to as many as 10 committees and in this session some house members are assigned to six committees. In this way they spread themselves too thinly and probably don't do the kind of job they could with more of a specialization on two or three committees. Annual legislative sessions might also help and that may receive serious consideration at this session.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor
Thief River Falls Times
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Having been born and raised in small towns and the small town atmosphere and now living in the largest city in Minnesota, it was easy to relish with gusto the reprint of an editorial from your newspaper (attached) in the February 1 Minneapolis Star. It probably should be considered big of them to have reprinted it on the editorial page along with an "editor's note".

It seems fairly logical that the major problem is that most readers in the metropolitan area of Minneapolis accept as gospel everything they read in the twin dailies. The tragedy of this is that these same readers are being slyly spoon fed large doses of "liberalism" and don't know it. Why? Because they are restricting themselves to reading but one newspaper thus winding up with but one viewpoint on everything—the newspapers".

Now consider the phoniness of the twin dailies' claim to "political independence." In the Minnesota Legislature, for example, DFLers are called "liberals" and Republicans are called "conservatives". How then can newspapers be "liberal" and "politically independent" simultaneously? The Thief River Falls Times editorialist made it quite clear to this reader at least, that he believes the twin dailies serve up huge quantities of "liberalism" to their readers.

Finally, to this writer, who in all candor has been termed by at least one editor as "the perennial letter writer", Thief River Falls folks are fortunate to have a newspaper with standards and principles. All we're privileged to read about in the big city are problems i.e., snow removal, racism, birth control, pornography, take over of school property by dissidents, demonstrations, protests, drugs and marijuana, etc., etc., etc., etc. It is wearisome that solutions to the problems are never found nor are they ever thought of as challenges.

ASCS Activities

Do you feel that the conserving base is too high on your farm? If you do and you believe it should be adjusted you must request the county committee to adjust your base in writing no later than March 21. That is also the final date of the wheat and feed grain program signup. Upon receiving your request for an adjustment, the committee will review your request and consider adjusting it within the procedure provided for them.

One of the most common, and the reason used most, is a reduction in your livestock numbers. That is one item which the county committee may consider when reviewing a request for an adjustment in a conserving base. There are other reasons also. If you have questions in regard to your conserving base, before March 21.

If you are one of the farmers who has no barley or corn base or wheat allotment and have none on any other farm in which you have an interest, you may file a request for a new base now. This must be done before February 28.

A quote on farmers:

The farmer leads no EZ life,
The CD sows will rot,
And when at EV rests from strife,
His bones all AK lot.
There is a farmer who is Y's
Enough to take his E's,
And study nature with his I's
And think of what he C's.
He hears the clatter of the J's
As they each other T's,
And sees that when a tree DK's
It makes a home for B's
In raising crops he all XL's
And therefore still O's,
And when he hoes his soil by spells
He also soils his hoes.

FOR SHOWERING

Precision showerhead called "Mark Sixty" has 60 directional spray jets which form a filled-in spray pattern instead of the conventional ring of water, with a wide selection of spray patterns and water intensities.

"MUSH, DAWG!" commands five-year-old Rozanna Snyder, but "Shakes" wants to think about that for a minute before leaning into the harness. This one dogpower vehicle is not used a great deal by the Lowell Snyder family since they came to Minnesota two years ago, but they have often used a two-wheel cart in the summer. Also riding the sled is seven-year-old Bert Snyder. "Shakes" is the son of the Snyders' first St. Bernard—Susie—and is considered to be a good example of the breed's size, style and temperament.

Winter Shows To Hold Seminar On Development

According to information released by the Inter-County community council of Oklee, a rural development seminar originating from the state technical action panel (TAP) will be part of the 59th annual Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston.

Purpose of the all-day seminar, which will be in the auditorium of the animal science building on Monday, February 24, will be to dispense and emphasize the information concerning the continuing expansion of coordination of governmental agency effort toward the solution of the problems of rural America.

The idea of TAP originated in the department of agriculture and was intended to concentrate all efforts of the agencies within that department toward common problems. It was established in national, state, district and county offices to insure consistent efforts at all levels.

Recently, TAP invited the Office of Economic Opportunity, and especially their community action program branch (CAP), and other agencies with similar concerns to join their effort so as to prevent an overlap of services, and to develop procedures that would result in an efficient utilization of all agency resources.

The morning portion of the seminar will be a training session for members of county TAPs. It will be presided over by Charles "Harpo" Dexter, program planner for the Inter-County community council.

This part of the seminar will feature Dr. Charles E. Ramsey, professor, department of sociology, University of Minnesota, who will speak on "The Vicious Cycle of Poverty". Dr. Ramseys discussion will be followed by group assignments and group sessions for the rest of the forenoon.

Presiding for the afternoon will be Bud Crewdson, resource development specialist, extension division, University of Minnesota. Richard Reinars, rural development specialist for FHA, will discuss technical action panels and outreach. Everett Thelis, director of the governor's office of economic opportunity, will cover community action panels.

Ray Olson, director of the state planning agency, will cover state planning. Wayne Hoganson, loan officer, Small Business administration, will cover the local development company and Stan Pechaver, field coordinator for the economic development administration, will discuss economic development assistance. The session will end with a general discussion of all points covered.

File Tax Return Now For Best Refund Service

Now is the time to file your tax return if you have a federal refund due. The work load at the IRS service center in Kansas City at this time promises better service in processing and issuance of refund checks, according to George O. Lethert, IRS district director.

With a full crew on duty at the service center, we hear that many refunds are being received within four weeks," Lethert said. "Later, when the returns came in in greater volume, the waiting period will be extended to six or eight weeks."

Lethert cautioned that the return should be accurate and complete to avoid unnecessary delays. Before you mail it, take another look to be sure that you have selected the right tax table, that Forms W-2 are attached and that you have signed the return. Send it direct to the IRS Service Center, Kansas City, Missouri 64170, for quicker processing, Lethert suggested.

Labor Unions In State Must File Reports

Labor unions in Minnesota were reminded today that most of them must file annual financial reports with the U.S. department of labor before March 31, 1969.

The March 31 deadline applies to unions whose fiscal year ended December 31, according to John W. Beaty, area director for the labor department's office of labor-management and welfare pension reports.

About three-quarters of the state's unions close their books for the year on December 31. These unions have 90 days after the end of their fiscal year to submit reports required by the labor-management reporting and disclosure (Landrum-Griffin) act.

Reporting forms have been sent to unions, and two copies must be returned to the labor department in Washington, D.C.

F.M. RADIOS

F.M. Radios, only a curiosity until even recently, captured practically half of the new radio sales in 1967. If present trends continue, Jewelers' Circular-Keystone predicts that F.M. will have 60 per cent of the market by 1970.

RAPID GROWTH is characteristic of the St. Bernard, as indicated by the size of "Susie", the year-old "pup" on the left. A female will grow from less than a pound at birth to 150-160 pounds in the first year, and a male will reach 180-200 pounds at 12 months. "Susie" and "Shakes" are daughter and father, both raised by Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Snyder of rural Thief River Falls. Pictured with the dogs is 13-year-old June Snyder.

Rites Held For Charles Kiewel, 93, Of Crookston

Charles E. Kiewel, 93, of Crookston, brother of Benjamin Kiewel of this city, died Tuesday at Crookston.

Requiem High Mass for Charles E. Kiewel was celebrated at Crookston Friday at 10 a.m., at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception with Msgr. John R. McAleer as celebrant. Interment was in the Calvary cemetery. The Houske Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Kiewel was active in the brewery business for most of his life. For many years he was manager and owner of the Kiewel Brewery company which bore the family name. Until his retirement in 1953, he was president and general manager of one of the state's largest brewing companies, the Minneapolis Brewing company.

Charles E. Kiewel was born Oct. 28, 1875 at Moorhead to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kiewel. In 1896, he was married at Little Falls to Kathryn A. Blake.

As a young man, he assisted his father in farming and at the age of 18 years, he became bookkeeper for his father's brewery firm in Little Falls. Later he was in partnership with his father in a Crookston brewery, which during prohibition, became a creamery. When this venture failed, he started a brewery in Winnipeg and another in Toronto, Canada. During the depression, Kiewel sold his Canadian concerns and used the money to back the Polk County State bank in Crookston. Since then, he served the bank as president of the board until he was named chairman emeritus a year ago.

After his retirement as president and general manager of the Minneapolis Brewing company, Kiewel returned to the Crookston area to live on the family farm located between Fisher and Crookston. There, until just the past few years, he was engaged in farming and raising cattle.

Snyder Family's St. Bernards Enjoy Winter

The Snyders moved to Thief River Falls about two years ago. Lowell is zone manager for Detroiter Mobile homes at Red Lake Falls. His wife, Betty, has been active in local activities, including vocal entertainment at public events. For several years she was active in USO work, and for one three-week engagement sang with the Guy Lombardo orchestra on a USO tour.

With seven children in the Snyder family, the St. Bernards get an occasional workout pulling the youngsters on sleds or skis, or just romping in the snow. In the summer, the dogs pull a cart with one or two of the younger Snyder children while Mr. and Mrs. Snyder and older youngsters ride bicycles.

Pride in owning a good dog is evident in the Snyder family. "You can see thoughts forming in people's minds about having such an animal for a pet," Mrs. Snyder said. "That's after they get over the shock of seeing a dog of this size, and getting the answer to the invariable question: 'How much?' "

There is a romantic history to the breed, since they were used by Monks in the Alps to locate people lost in the mountains. The original breed was short-haired, but breeding has developed a longer coat to make the dogs appear even more massive.

The Snyders' first dog, Susie," was from a line of exceptional quality with numerous champions to its credit. Her uncle, and the first sire of Snyder litters, was Ch. Beinhof's Anzo V Zwing, rated third in the United States.

If a person has any liking for dogs, it is difficult to restrain a strong affection for St. Bernards. As a breed they are affectionate and gentle, but extremely protective. "Let the prowler beware," Mrs. Snyder said. "They protect their own."

St Bernards have an average of six to eight pups per litter, but litter size varies as in any breed. The Snyders prefer to have a small litter, and attempt to time their breeding for smaller litters which have larger, stronger pups.

When the time comes to sell a litter, it is done with mixed emotions. "Each pup leaves with a part of us," Mrs. Snyder said. "They do require a lot of attention and care when growing, and you can't help but get quite attached to them."

As for now, the Snyders have no litters at the farm nor on the way. The Times ran a photo of Shakes last fall and the Snyders received a large number of calls for pups with none available for sale. To avoid disappointment, I suggest that persons interested in a St. Bernard do not call and ask about pups. They are not available now.

School Safety Patrol Week Is Proclaimed

Citing 48 years of Minnesota school safety patrol work with never a fatality, Governor Harold LeVander today proclaimed February 16 through 22 as school safety patrol week, and called upon Minnesota communities to give appropriate recognition to the more than 30,000 young people "who faithfully serve the patrol program."

Gov. LeVander pointed out that Minnesota pioneered this now nation-wide program, and praised the patrol workers, "who have accepted assignment and performed their duties well."

The first school safety patrol was formed in St. Paul in 1920, and this was followed two years later by the enactment of a St. Paul city ordinance providing for the appointment of school police.

In 1930 the American Legion began sponsoring school patrols throughout the state, and with the cooperation of other groups the patrols became a statewide program with activity in all the schools.

Muzzy Bull Is Selected As All-American

Gunsmoke is the son of Muzzy's Mar-Ridge Smokey Lorraine, classified excellent 95 and the highest scoring cow ever in Minnesota. She was an All-Minnesota aged cow, grand champion at the Minnesota state fair and best uddered cow of the show at the state fair. His sire is Glenofton Rag Apple Charmer, a gold medal sire.

Announcement of the All-American selections for 1968 is made by "Holstein Friesian World" magazine, which has sponsored the competition for the past 44 years. Selection was made by a panel of 40 judges, all accredited by the Holstein - Friesian association.

Commenting on the central national show, at which Gunsmoke won the senior yearling championship, Ted Prescott of the Holstein - Friesian World said it was ". . .hailed by veteran observers and exhibitors as the strongest contest of Holstein excellence ever seen in North America. Superb quality ran deep in every class as leading contenders from both Ontario and the eastern shows challenged the finest in the middle west."

About Muzzy's senior yearling champion of that show, Prescott wrote: ". . .he won over Glindibroe Triune Lad. . .shown by Oxford & District Cattle Breeding association, Woodstock, Ont., and his strength, balance and fullness of forerib. Quality of the class is indicated by the sixth place ribbon in the Eastern States and New York state fair winner and seventh on the Illinois junior champion and 1967 All-American bull calf."

The Muzzys were notified of the All-American selection in a brief telegram from the Holstein-Friesian World late last week.

Safety Council Urges Caution On Snowmobiles

Pennington county safety council has urged all persons operating snowmobiles within the city to observe the basic safety rule of yielding to automobile traffic. According to Minnesota law, snowmobiles must stop before crossing any street or highway. With snowbanks along streets high enough to completely obscure approaching snowmobiles, auto drivers will have no warning and be unable to stop if a snowmobile comes into their path.

Bruggemans Are Honor Dairymen

Mr. and Mrs Donovan Bruggeman, representing Pennington county, will be among the honored guests at dairy day at the Red River Valley winter shows, Monday, February 24.

Selection of the honored dairy man from the county is based on civic responsibility, good herd improvement, production records and general leadership toward improving the dairy industry in the county. Accompanying them as guests will be Mr and Mrs. Mark Bruggeman, junior partners in Bruggeman Farms.

At the "honored dairymen" banquet to be held at 6 p.m. at the Minakwa country club, Crookston, a dairyman and his wife from each of the Red River Valley counties will be honored. Hon. Harold LeVander, governor of Minnesota, will be the speaker.

The day's program will wind up with a special "dairy industry program" to be held in the winter shows arena beginning at 7:30 p.m. Jim Hill of St. Paul, executive secretary of Dairy Processors, Inc., will address the group. A registered dairy calf will be awarded to young dairyman. Princess Kay of the Milky Way, Linda Lounagle, will assist in the ceremonies.

Presiding will be M. J. Augustine of Thief River Falls, president of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association. Also participating in the evening program will be G. D. Marx, Northwest experiment station, Crookston; B. E. Youngquist, president of the Red River Valley winter shows; Clifford Markuson, manager of American Dairy Association of Minnesota, St. Paul; Conrad Kvamme, Ada; and Marlyn Jacobson, Northwest experiment station, Crookston. Entertainment, preceding the main program, will be provided by the Polka Dots of Middle River.

Board, Faculty Meet on Salary Without Results

He said he would like to review more fully the board's proposal so that it would be clearly understood, but the teachers' council indicated that such review would be unnecessary.

Teacher's council representatives indicated that they believed it was the obligation of the board to make a reasonable offer, since both sides have admitted that their present offers are unrealistic. Supt. I. M. Johnson disputed that contention, however. "You're selling a service," he told the teachers' council, "and we're buying. Right now we think the price is too high. It's up to you to make the offer."

Representatives of the teachers suggested that the board raise its offer to $8,000 and start negotiating from that point.

Dr. George Martin, chairman of the board of education and permanent member of the board's negotiating team, said he was disappointed in the reception the board's proposal had received from the districts teachers. "Let's forget about the dollars and just consider what we're trying to do," he said. He then reviewed the board's general thoughts on attempting to break away from a salary schedule where all teachers advance on the same basis of college credits and years of experience.

He said the board's proposal for peer evaluation and administrative approval would increase the opportunity for teachers to improve their professional status. Salary increases would not be automatic, but they would be larger and earned by good teachers, he added.

Teachers' council members questioned the peer evaluation in the proposal, stating it would be difficult to evaluate fellow teachers. If time was devoted to lecturing, they said, there would be no opportunity to view the work of other teachers.

Two recesses were called during the meeting, one by the teachers and the other by the board. Both were held and neither produced any further items for discussion.

Kansas Group Conducts Survey On Sod Houses

Did you ever live in a sod house, a dugout or an adobe block building; or were you born in one? Did you ever teach school, attend school or church services in a sod building, or help build one? Are you a child or perhaps a grandchild of a former pioneer sod house dweller or builder?

If you can answer "yes" to any of these questions, the Sod House society of America, with headquarters at Colby, Kans. would like to hear from you. The unique society is making an effort to compile a census of people living who have had any kind of personal experience with sod houses, dugouts or adobe block buildings, which were once common in the United States, Canada and Mexico; also the descendants of such persons.

If you are a former sod house dweller or a direct descendant of a family that can claim a part of the sod house heritage during the prairie settlement era of North America from 1870 to 1930, the society wishes to have the information to include in a permanent historical record of sod house dwellers and their families.

To make this survey a success, information is needed from folks in all parts of North America. If you have any information concerning former sod dwellers, your report of this will be most welcome. Please tell where the sod buildings were located, and give the family names. Kindly send your report to: Sod House Survey, Colby, Kansas 67701.

Korpis Selected Dairymen from Marshall County

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Korpi of Middle River were named "Outstanding Dairymen" for Marshall county this year, according to Marshall county agricultural agent Charles D. Peterson.

Korpi is secretary-treasurer of the Middle River Milk Producers association and all are members of the First Lutheran church in Middle River.

Mr. and Mrs. Korpi, along with outstanding dairymen selected from other counties, will be honored at a dinner at the Minakwa country club in Crookston, and presented an engraved trophy by the Red River Valley Dairymen's association at the Red River Valley winter shows.

Postpone 4-H Federation Meet

Marshall county 4-H federation meeting scheduled for 8 p.m., February 21 at Argyle has been postponed until March 10. MINNESOTA'S FIRST SNOWMOBILE!

Brainerd, Minnesota . . . Brainerd, Minnesota's $20,000 Fourth Annual Paul Bunyan Snowmobile Derby races February 22-23, at Donnybrooke, have plenty of tradition. This wood burning, crawler-type, steam hauler, may have been the first snowmobile, when it dragged up to six sleighloads of logs in the Brainerd area from 1910-'25. The water tank for icing the runner tracks would not be needed this year, as over four feet of snow covers the Donnybrooke 420-acre motor sport facility, six miles north of Brainerd, east of Highway 371.

A total of 800 modern-day snowmobiles is expected to compete for $20,000 in prizes in the annual mid-winter event, at speeds up to 80 miles per hour.

'Miracle' Tot Yawns For Heart Fund

HEART SURGERY saved lives of both Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Grumbols of Longview, Wash., in 1967. Then, in 1968, after 21 years of childless marriage, Baby David was born. Little wonder all three say, "Heart Is My Cause."

A case of tacks fell off a speeding hardware truck and burst open on a Tokyo highway. Eighteen cars with flat tires were counted by the time police arrived.

"Yellow journalist!"

If any of Tom Paine's enemies called him that, it was the kindest thing they ever said about him.

When Paine came to America he was uneducated, sick, demoralized, dead broke, and a failure. In England, he had just been fired as a tax-collector, charged with incompetency and neglect of duty. All he had was a letter obtained in London from Benjamin Franklin.

But soon he was aflame with the ideas of the American Revolution. He became a newspaper publisher ("pamphlet publisher" would be more accurate, since "Common Sense" was printed on one side only and folded in half) and found his true mission in life. Many Colonials didn't know what they were fighting for. Paine's "Common Sense" told them. His skill at interpreting the ideas of the Revolution to the common foot-soldier was a large factor in boosting Colonial morale. Gen. Washington thought so, for he ordered his officers to read "Common Sense" to the troops.

Before, during and after the Revolution, Paine's character was attacked on both sides of the Atlantic. The well-to-do called him an opportunist. The clergy said he was an atheist. When he died in 1809 he was nearly forgotten.

But Tom Paine showed what forceful words on paper can do. Among all Patriot writers, he caught the significance of the American Revolution. Historians, still puzzled about the origins of that war, theorize that were it not for a group of skillful writers—with Paine in the frontmost rank—the war might not have happened.

Words printed on paper have great power when written by fearless and responsible men.

That's something for you to think about

"These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country; but he that stands it NOW, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly: it is dearness only that gives every thing its value. Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as FREEDOM should not be highly rated."

Six Prowler Seniors See Final Cage Action

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Six members of the Thief River Falls basketball team will be playing before the home town fans for the last time of their high school basketball careers tonight (Monday) as the Prowlers host the Ada Vikings in a make-up game beginning at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school gym.

Tuesday night the same six will be making their final appearance during the regular season in a Prowlers uniform as they travel to Bagley for the last game of the season before moving into District 31 tournament play the first week in March.

Five of the six seniors have started during the season while the sixth has seen very little action during the year for the Prowlers, but is described by coach Whitey Olson as a big asset to the Prowler team this year.

The five that have started during the season are Sheldon Joppru, captain and center who is the leading scorer and rebounder. Senior forwards include Steve Edlund and Dave Kildahl and guards are Dan Brodin and Tony Johnson. All five have played a big part in the Prowlers success this year. The lone senior reserve who has been on the bench for most of the season but has shown up for all the practice sessions and is the biggest asset to the squad during their daily practice sessions is guard Steve Hess.

Joppru has started every game for the Prowlers this season and, not including Friday's game against East Grand Forks he has scored 327 points on 122 field goals and 83 free throws for a 21.8 average. Joppru has taken 340 shots and made 122 for 35 per cent, while at the free throw line he is shooting 68 per cent, attempting 123 and making 83. The 6-1 center has also pulled down 324 rebounds and has tallied 16 assists, third on the squad.

Joppru's highest point production of the season came on January 17 at East Grand Forks when he tallied 34 points, six short of the school record. In that game he made 14 field goals and added six free throws. In rebounding, his big game has been against Fosston when he hauled down 26 rebounds.

Edlund, who started the season at a forward spot and then missed starting a few games, has come through in the last few ball games, especially against Bemidji and Fosston, where he played his two best ball games of the year. He is the second leading scorer on the squad with a 9.4 average, with his high coming against Fosston when he tallied 18 points.

Edlund is the second leading rebounder for the Prowlers with 104 in the 15 games that he has seen action. He is shooting at a 36 per cent clip from the field and is the leading free throw artist for the Prowlers, shooting at 71 per cent. He has made 52 of 143 from the field and 37 of 52 from the free throw line for a total of 142 points. His best nights rebounding came against Detroit Lakes and Fargo North as he grabbed 12 on each night.

Brodin started the season at a guard position and since has been replaced in the starting line-up by junior Kip Poppenhagen. Brodin is the Prowlers' fourth leading scorer with a 9.2 average, with a total of 139 points.

Brodin's outing came against Climax in a Big Five conference game as he tallied 23 points. He is shooting from the field at a 31 per cent clip, making 51 of 160 shots. From the free throw line he has made 36 of 56 shots for 64 per cent, while he has pulled down 60 rebounds and is the team leader in assists with 19. His big night in rebounding came against Detroit Lakes when he pulled down nine rebounds.

Johnson has been the Prowlers' starting guard for most of the season and is the small man on the squad at 5-6. His size has not hurt him in the shooting department, as he has scored in double figures on four different occasions with 14 being his high against Warren and Fosston.

In the 15 games that Johnson has played, he is averaging 5.8 points per contest and has a total of 88 points for the season so far. He is shooting at a 35 per cent clip from the field, making 33 of 93 shots, while at the free throw line he has made 22 of 40 for 55 per cent. He is the smallest man on the court but still has come up with 27 rebounds and has 17 assists to his credit.

Kildahl, reserve forward for the Prowlers, has started one game, that coming against Warren in an important game for the Prowlers. He come through with eight big points in that game, his highest for the season.

Kildahl carries a 3.4 average and has appeared in 13 games for the Prowlers. He is shooting at a 31 per cent clip from the field making 15 of 47 shots taken. At the free throw line he has made 16 of 35 for 42 per cent, and has pulled down 29 rebounds.

Hess has only seen action in one Prowler game this year, against Oslo, and he was unable to get a shot off but managed to grab a rebound. Hess is a big asset in the practice session, according to coach Olson, as he plays the part of the opposition and does his job real well, according to the Prowler coaches.

Five of the players will be two-year lettermen while the sixth will be a three year letterman. Those that will be earning two year letters this year are Brodin, Edlund, Johnson and Kildahl, along with Hess, who will be earning his season letter in basketball after lettering as student manager last year. Joppru will be earning his third letter this season.

New Benefits Available Under VA Pensions

Veterans administration has contacted a large number of Minnesota pension recipients recently, offering them an opportunity to elect to receive new benefits under the provisions of a new federal law.

Pension recipients were sent information sheets, together with a questionnaire card on which they can elect to receive benefits under the new law. According to Al G. Loehr, Minnesota commissioner of veterans affairs, pension recipients, in most instances, will receive increased benefits if they elect to under the new law.

Anyone in this area receiving the forms under the new and especially the older law should contact Lewis Hill, Pennington county veterans service officer, for guidance in making a choice most beneficial to them. Office hours of the veterans service office in the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays, and 8 a.m. to noon on Wednesdays.

Toasts 'n Tidings BY Your Minnesota Hostess

It's a pleasure to salute the Minnesota Beer Wholesalers Association, celebrating its 25th Anniversary in 1969! It's interesting to note that many of our state's beer wholesalers are husband-and-wife teams, or father-and-son teams . . . and in some cases, even three generations of one family have continued in the business.

First eyes opened wide . . . then mouths opened in protest, when the 16th century "Sun Inn" Pub in the quiet near-London village of Chobham put up its new sign. Gone was the familiar old rendering of the sun. In its place, a sunbathing beauty in a bikini smiled down at offended British-ers! Pub-goers, it seems, simply haven't gone "mod." The flustered company announced the sign soon would be replaced by something more traditional.

Meat Balls Hors D'Oeuvres In Beer Sauce

Jeanne Andreiko of the aforementioned MBWA suggests you combine 1½ lbs. ground beef with 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper and 3 tbsp. water. Roll into tiny meat balls, and brown in 1 tbsp. butter. Mix together ½ cup beer, 1 tsp salt, ½ cup chili sauce, 1 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce, 1 tsp sugar and ⅛ tsp. Tabasco Sauce. Pour over meat balls. Stir over high heat 5 minutes. Serve warm, with cocktail crackers and tall glasses of cool beer . . . Send for my free recipe book. Write "Minnesota Hostess," 1705 Soo Line Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn 55402.

Prowler Wrestlers Win 4th Straight District Title

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls Prowler wrestling squad sent 12 men into the finals of the District wrestling tournament on Saturday at Crookston and came home with the team championship and six members going into the Region Eight tournament at Bemidji on Saturday.

The District 31 championship was the fourth straight district title for the Prowlers as three defending district champs picked up district titles once again. They were Ed Furuseth, Tom Duke and Tim Duke, while the other three district champs were Tim Hoaas, Perry Omdahl and Scott Vettleson.

The Prowlers scored 117 points for the team crown as they out distanced second place Warren by 29 points as the Ponies finished with 88 points. Crookston was third with 60 and East Grand Forks, in their first year of wrestling, picked up 37 points. Saturday the Prowlers had the District 31 title wrapped up before the start of the championship rounds as they had a total of 94 points scored in the opening round of the tournament.

The Prowlers started the day off with a bye in the 95 pound class as Steve Nordhagen moved into the finals against Jim Murray of Crookston, who had defeated Laurel Wittman of Warren. Murray came out the district champion, while Nordhagen came in third as he lost a wrestle back to Wittman of Warren, for second place.

Ed Furuseth, defending 103 pound champion, gained the finals on Saturday night as he defeated Foester from Warren, pinning him in 3:26. In the final, Furuseth met Wayne Belch, Crookston, who gained a decisioned over Joe Zak of East Grand Forks in the opening round. Furuseth gained the championship by a decision, 13-2.

A big surprise for the Prowlers came in the 112 pound class, where the Prowlers also gained the district championship. Perry Omdahl gained the finals by defeating Mike LaRochelle, Crookston, by pinning him in 4:46. Omdahl then met Les Swanson, Warren, in the championship round. Swanson gained the finals by drawing a bye. Omdahl decisioned the Ponie wrestler by a 6-3 margin.

Rod Peterson, wrestling at 120 pounds this year and one of the defending district champions, gained the finals with a decision over Glen Norgart, Warren by a 2-1 score. He was then defeated by Ken Porter of Crookston in the final match by a 6-0 score.

At 127 pounds Curt Swanson stopped Murray Tiedeman of Crookston by a 4-2 score in the opening round. In the finals Swanson was defeated by Bruce Lundgren, Warren, by a 4-0 score. Swanson lost the match in the final 45 seconds as Lundgren gained a reversal and had two points by riding time.

In the 133 pound division Jerry Muzzy of the Prowlers gained a decision over Bob Whitney of Crookston and then was defeated by Jim Pokrzywinski, Warren, by an 8-0 score in the finals.

Tom Duke, who was the 145 pound champion a year ago, dropped to 138 pounds this year and gained the fastest pin of the tournament in the first round as he pinned Steve Matzke, Crookstan in 1:19. He then took the championship from Dennis Mischel, Warren, by a 7-0 score.

Tim Duke, who won the 138-pound title a year ago, moved to 145 pounds this year and took the championship in this weight class by pinning Dave Paul of Crookston in 5:22 and then decisioning Clayton Johnson, East Grand Forks, by a 7-0 score.

Wrestling at 154 pounds for the Prowler was Rich Hruby, who gained the finals by pinning Allen Opperud, Crookston in 3:28; but was defeated by Jerry Sedlaceck, Warren, in the championship round by a 4-0 score.

Jerry Meyers, Prowlers, gained the championship round by decisioning Arlen Mortens, Crookston, 2-1 and then was pinned in the finals by Jon Slusar, Warren in 3:06.

Tim Hoaas, at 175 pounds, was the fifth district champion Prowler, but was the first wrestler of the Prowlers to gain the Region Eight tournament as he gained a decision over Jim Hood Warren, who had gained the finals by drawing a bye. Hoaas gained the final by defeating Ron Caouette, Crookston, by an 11-2 score. Because of a wrestle back for second place, the 175-pound class was the first match wrestled in the finals of the district on Saturday, so Hoaas was the first Prowler to gain the region tournament.

Scott Vettleson gained the only double pin of the tournament as he first gained the final by pinning Dave Hoppe of Crookston in 5:05, and then stopped Marv Atkinson of East Grand Forks in 2:35.

GAME OF THE WEEK

by Bob Wielinski

Season Coming to a Halt

The basketball season is fast approaching its end as most of the area teams close out their season on either Tuesday, Friday or Saturday of this week. Up to last Wednesday, Newfolden had the top record with a 13 and three record, but Goodridge's win over Alvarado on Wednesday evening put them in a tie with the Noodles as they also hold a 13-3 mark. Behind them are McIntosh with a 12-3 record; Mentor with a 12-4 record; and a fast Clearbrook team that won eight straight before dropping a game to Red Lake has moved its record to 11-5.

Speaking of Goodridge, it took head coach Glen Peters eight years to win the 100th victory of his coaching career, that coming over Red Lake Falls on February 7. His win over Alvarado last Wednesday brought it to 101. Peters is having one of his better years as a coach since the Huskies won 23 straight, captured the District 31 title and then fell to Bemidji in the Region Eight tourney a few years back.

This year Peters looked for the team to be fair with next season being a good one as he would lose only one senior that was starting. Since that time he has lost a junior forward, Gary Anderson, because of a knee injury and had to insert another senior into the line-up. At the present time there are three seniors in the starting five. They are guard Roger Blaine, forward Gary Kiesow and center Ray Moisbeorger. The other two starters are juniors Brian Wiseth and David Dahlen.

Moisbeorger is the most improved player on the Huskies squad over last year as the senior center is averaging over 10 points per contest, while Wiseth is the team's leading scorer with a 19 plus average and Blaine is carrying a 16 point average. The Huskies only weakness is rebounding, according to Peters, as Anderson was carrying most of the load until he was injured.

Goodridge could just wind up in the District 31 tournament this year but will have a tough time. The Polar conference is pretty well balanced with Oslo, Fisher, Goodridge and Alvarado all being favorites to come out of sub-district play starting the last week of this month.

The Huskies have two games left this week as they meet Oklee on Tuesday night and then travel to Newfolden on Friday night, winding up a successful season. McIntosh finishes against Middle River on Friday and then meets Waubun on Saturday night; both are home games for the Scots. Newfolden will close its season in the game with Goodridge on Friday night. Clearbrook finishes its season on Tuesday night by hosting a tough Blackduck squad.

Mentor, meanwhile, has Borup at home on Tuesday night; while Middle River will be at McIntosh on Friday to close their regular seasons. Oklee, in addition to the game against Goodridge on Tuesday night, will host Red Lake Falls in their final on Friday night. Erskine, defending Tri-County champions which had its troubles this year and to date has only won five while losing 11, finishes on Tuesday by hosting Hendrum. Plummer closed its regular season against Goodridge last Friday night, and Gonvick also finished their year against Clearbrook on Friday night.

Leading Scorers

Mark Schimanski, McIntosh, continues to lead the Game of the Week in scoring as the Scots 6-1 forward center is averaging 29.4 points in 15 games. Besides leading in scoring, he also has made the most field goals with 169 and has tallied 104 free throws, also tops in this department. This total point output in 15 games is 442 points, and with three games left on the Scots schedule he should be over the 500 mark by the end of the season.

Second place is held by Curt Jenson, Erskine, who in 14 games reported has a 22.4 average, three tenths higher than that of Mentors' fine guard, Robbie Super, who is averaging 22.1 points per game.

Fourth place is held by Goodridge's Brian Wiseth with a 19.0 average in 14 games, not including the 24 points he scored against Alvarado on Wednesday night. Fifth place is held by Middle River's senior forward Jerry Johnson, who is clipping the nets at an 18.6 average.

Sixth place is held by Goodridge's Roger Blaine with a 16.8 average, while Gordon Engebretson, Clearbrook, and Clyde Strandquist, Newfolden are tied for the seventh position with 16.5 average. Steve Radniecki, Oklee's fine all-around athlete, is in the eighth position with a 15.6 average; while Middle River's Jerry Nelson is ninth with a 13.4 average, one tenth of a point better than Clearbrook's Jim Goudge, who is averaging 13.3 points per contest.

TRF-EGF Cage Game Re-Set

Thief River Falls Prowler basketball team will be in action tonight against Ada and on Tuesday night travel to Bagley, while the game postponed with East Grand Forks last Friday night will be played on Thursday night, February 20, at the Lincoln high school gym.

As a result of the postponement of Friday's night's contest with the Little Green Wave, the Prowlers have sole possession of first place in District 31. It is expected that district games played after this past weekend will not be counted in District 31 final standings but will count in the Big Five conference standings where the Prowlers are also currently in first place.

Crookston Edges Northland 74-72 on Wednesday

By Daryl Augustine
Times Reporter

With seven seconds remaining in the game Crookston technical institute Trojan cagers dropped in the winning bucket in action with the Northland state junior college Northmen at Lincoln high school gymnasium on Wednesday night. The 74-72 verdict left the Trojans at the top of the Northern junior college conference standings with just one setback on this season's record.

Northland jumped to an early lead in the game to leave the floor at half-time with a 39-32 lead. They held their lead until the last two minutes of the game, when Tech started to narrow the margin.

With the score tied at 72-72, and 24 seconds remaining in the game, Crookston brought the ball down the court and passed off to 6'8" Steven Koster, who dumped in the winning points. Northland attempted to bring the ball quickly down the floor but time ran out and Neibauer, who had possession of the ball, was forced to shoot from the center line.

Free throws decided the issue as the Northmen dropped in 30 field goals, compared with 29 for the Trojans, but the latter counted 16 gift tosses to the Northmen's 12. Both teams only missed three charity shots each. Crookston missed three out of 19 attempted and Northland three out of 15 attempted.

Tom Super of the Northmen notched the high scoring total for the game with 12 field goals and four charity shots for 28 points. Also scoring in double figures for the Northmen were Nick Neibauer with 20 points and Gordon Eftefield with 12.

Leading scorers for the winners were Steven Koster with 24 points, Lloyd Mayes with 21 and Brian Sjodin with 14 points.

Next home game for the Northmen will be Wednesday when they host the Itasca state junior college of Grand Rapids. The Northmen lost to Itasca by a score of 84-69 in their first meet of the season on Itasca's court on January 27. Northland now holds a 4-14 record.

SELECTED TO APPEAR at the national youth-power conference to be held March 26-29 in Chicago, Ill., was this display exhibited by Fred Brodin at the Minnesota conference in Minneapolis February 14-16. Fred was one of eight delegates selected from Minnesota to attend the Chicago conference. Selection was based on leadership qualities, manner and general participation. L. B. Hartz wholesale in Thief River Falls is one of 35 food companies and associations sponsoring the youthpower conference, where 50 boys and girls from Minnesota met with food industry leaders to discuss nutrition, health, economics of food distribution and careers in the food industry.

Priest To Speak On Abortion at Knox PTA Meet

"Abortion and Law" will be the topic of a talk by Rev. William Mehrkens, chaplain of the Newman club at Bemidji state college, when he speaks to the Knox Parent and Teacher association Monday evening. The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the Knox school gymnasium.

Rev. Mehrkens will also meet with clergymen from the area earlier in the evening at the St. Bernard's Catholic church rectory in Thief River Falls.

All members of the Knox PTA and other persons interested in the subject are encouraged to attend the PTA meeting. Abortion is a current topic of discussion in a number of state legislatures, including Minnesota, and legislation proposing legalized abortion has been introduced.

A key to Rev. Mehrkens talk is stated in the introduction to his written opinion on the subject. "If the present trends in our national moral values continue to develop in the directions lately taken, then the liberalizing of our abortion laws is almost inevitable. Nevertheless, I would consider liberalization at this time to be an irresponsible and dangerous step," he writes.

"I consider abortion to be immoral because it is presumably, the killing of a human being. For the purposes of this statement, by abortion I mean the direct, endured and intended elimination of a human embryo or non-viable fetus. The burden of producing evidence to the contrary rests with those who favor the liberalizing of abortion laws."

Mid-Winter Conference Of Lions Slated Here

22 at Northland On Entertainment Traveling Team

Students of Northland state junior college have recently formed a talent troupe called the "entertainment team." The team, presently made up of 22 students, presents a program of light entertainment for high school assemblies or community organizations. The first performance was before the entire Mentor student body at Mentor high school last Thursday.

Organized with the desire to bring Northland a little closer to home for the neighboring communities and to help schools and organizations understand the pride the college has in itself and its students, the group has planned eight tentative trips including 20 performances.

The program consists of vocal as well as instrumental music, dancing, satire and pantomime. Members of this year's team are: Cynthia Alby, Daryl Augustine, Wayne Bakken, Ron Bladwin, Barbara Belch, Bonnie Bengtson, Doug Brandt, Barry Frollund, Rob Gustafson, Dale Hanson, Mary Henrickson, Kay-Dell Henning, Carole Kettenhelm, Thomas Kimball, Suzann Mandt, Karen Mattson, Nathan Mikaelson, John Rokke, Linda Skay, Julie Sorter, Van Swanson and Rocco Wilson.

Assisting is Bob Bredeson as technical director and master of ceremonies. David Morken is director of the choral numbers and James Solsten directs the orchestra (band). Advisor to the entertainment team is Madelyn Bance.

James Parkins

Named in honor of James Parkins, veteran local member and past district president, the mid-winter conference of Lions district 5M-3 will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls. Approximately 350 Lions and their wives from Minnesota, Manitoba and southern Ontario are expected to attend the conference.

Fred Sorensen and Frank Hamerlinck, general co-chairmen for the conference, noted that the event has been named for Parkins in recognition of his long service to Lionism, service on the Minnesota Lions eye bank and faithful adherence to Lions principles.

Speaker at the Saturday evening banquet to be held at 6:30 p.m. in the National Guard armory will be Dr. Robert D. McCullough of Tulsa, Okla., second vice president of Lions International. Robert Hitesman of Winnipeg, district governor, will preside at the open cabinet meeting to be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at the Lincoln senior high school auditorium.

C. W. Rodekuhr, chairman of the housing committee, noted that a shortage of rooms for housing delegates and their wives is being encountered. Any persons who have rooms which would be available for Friday and Saturday nights are asked to contact Rodekuhr and offer their use. All commercial accommodations are filled for the weekend.

Opening event of the conference will be a dance and smorgasbord at the National Guard armory Friday evening. A Saturday breakfast for men will be held from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. at the American Legion club room prior to the open cabinet meeting at the high school. Ladies will be entertained with a brunch and special activities at noon in the Elks club rooms.

Following the evening banquet, the mid-winter Governor's ball will be held in the National Guard armory from 9 p.m. to midnight. Music will be provided by Merle Rodgers and his 11-piece band from Fargo, N.D.

Only activity scheduled for Sunday is a buffet dinner from 11:30 a.m.

TRF Will Host Flooding Meet

Thief River Falls has been selected by the Minnesota department of civil defense as one of two sites for meetings on flooding potential this spring, according to A. E. Jorgenson, Pennington county civil defense director.

The Thief River Falls meeting, scheduled by Henry G. Jung, commander of mobile support area three of the civil defense department, will be held Thursday, February 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pennington county courthouse. The other meeting is to be held February 25 at Ada.

Requested to attend the meeting are township, county, city and village officials and county defense boards in this area. Main purpose of the meeting, according to Commander Jung, is to try to expedite evacuation of grain from the flood plains, and to remind elected officials of the procedures to be followed so that adequate records will be maintained if benefits become available under Public Law 875.

"I have been advised by Vern Hendrickston of Fargo weather bureau," Commander Jung wrote to county directors, "that if we receive a normal amount of moisture in the next six weeks we can anticipate flooding in the Red river valley area equal to 1965 or 1966."

A large attendance is expected at the meeting in light of the following statement made by the Fargo weather bureau:

"Assuming normal precipitation from now until the spring run-off, major flooding can be expected over sections of the Red river basin this spring. Precipitation was above normal over much of the area last fall before freeze-up and snowfall has been heavy during the winter months.

"Normal snowfall in the Fargo-Moorhead area during the next six weeks would total nine to 10 inches and at Grand Forks about eight inches. Water content of the snow cover over the basin ranges from two inches in some areas to as much as six in others.

"An early spring with intermittent cold and warm periods and below normal precipitation will contribute to lower crest stages. A late spring with above normal precipitation will cause higher stages. Precipitation in the form of rain over a snow cover will contribute to higher crests also."

St. John Will Erect Education Bldg. Addition

St. John Lutheran church of Thief River Falls has voted to erect an education addition to its parish facilities. The vote approved a plan to add 12 classrooms and a library-lounge to the church located at First and Pine at a cost of $56,000.

The action was favored by over 70 per cent of those voting, and was taken on Monday evening, according to Rev. Paul Blegner, pastor.

The church council appointed Les Borning, Ted Belswenger, Curt Brandt, Albert Koop and Maurice Steiger to serve on the building committee. Appointed to serve on the finance committee were Ken Onken, Cliff Becker, Moynard Mehrkens, Bill Mehrkens Jr., Don Pream and Jerry Wendorff.

The design, engineering and supervision of the project will be carried out by Church Building and Equipment company of America, a St. Louis, Mo., firm. Area firms will be asked to bid on the project.

Adjustment Panel Is Asked by Teachers

Briefest meeting yet in the series of negotiating sessions on school faculty salaries for 1969-70 was held Tuesday evening at the superintendent's office in Lincoln high school. The teachers' negotiating council made a minor concession, the boards' negotiating team received it for conveyance to the full board, and the meeting adjourned to Thursday, Friday 27.

In one significant attempt at action of importance to the proceedings, Ted Hellie of the teachers' council offered official request for an adjustment panel. Dr. George Martin, chairman of the board of education, acknowledged the presentation but asked that the teachers' council send the request through the mail in accordance with law. Dr. Martin acted in the absence of C. L. Charlson chief negotiator for the schools board's negotiating team.

Bill Blankenfild, co-chairman with Hellie of the teachers' council, presented the current request from the faculty. It called for the same $7,400 base salary for a nine-month contract and the same eight-line index schedule, but deleted the request for a fringe benefit of income protection insurance. In agreeing to bring the request to the board, the board's representatives noted it was not a 12-month proposal as requested.

Fringe benefit requests for health insurance and life insurance were continued. Cost of income protection insurance had been estimated at $1,956 per year. Deletion of this portion of the teachers' request would result in a projected increment of approximately $380,000 (about 83 mills) over the present salary schedule for a nine-month contract.

Hellie read the request for the board to name its representative on the adjustment panel

Annual meeting of the Grygla Cooperative Creamery association has been postponed from Tuesday, February 25, to Tuesday, March 18, according to Amos Thompson, manager. Health Service Accepts Requests

According to information recently released by the Inter-County Community council of Oklee, the multi-county home health service sponsored by that agency is now accepting requests for home health service in Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater counties.

This new service, approved by the Minnesota department of health, is designed to provide patients and their families with nursing and supervised health care in the home.

While under the sponsorship of the Inter-County Community council, the program will operate with funds from the office of economic opportunity, whose regulations specify that the service be provided primarily to low-income residents of the county served.

Requests for service will be accepted from doctors for all who make a request, but family income will determine how much service can be provided without cost to the patient.

It is expected that the program will prove sufficiently successful to warrant later transferral to county administration, under the support of medicare, where service will be available at minimal cost, similar to self-supporting health programs in other areas.

Health Service Will Accept Aid Requests

Home health service under Inter-County's program will provide skilled nursing care to patients in the home. It is intended to alleviate the work and facility load on existing services by permitting doctors to release patients to their home so that hospital space and service may be more immediately available to those patients needing concentrated medical attention.

The service will be provided in each county by a registered nurse who is assisted by home health aides who have recently completed their training.

The nurse will furnish skilled nursing care within the home. She will work under the direction of the patient's doctor, providing such care as is proscribed by him.

Home health aides will help the patient, the nurse and the family by giving personal attention to the patient's needs—baths, shampoos, assistance in getting out of bed, exercise, etc. She may also help with light housekeeping chores when such service is necessary for the patient's or family's well-being. All home health aide services will be under the supervision of the registered nurse.

Home health aides now trained and ready to provide service are: Marie Nordwick and Phyllis Vettleson, Pennington county; Joyce Acker, Red Lake county; Diane Korf, Mae Nelson and Isabelle Thompson, Clearwater county.

Home health care should be requested when the patient has been released from the hospital and, according to the family doctor, needs home help during the convalescence. Care should also be requested when the patient is chronically ill or disabled, and with a little help at home, could stay there rather than in a hospital or nursing home.

Requests for home health care should be made by referral for service by the family doctor. Others may request such service, but in such cases the nurse is legally allowed to make one visit only. Subsequent visits must be under the direction of the family doctor.

More information concerning the new health service may be obtained by calling or writing: William Brommer, Coordinator, Home Health Service, P.O. Box 187, Oklee, Minnesota, or by contacting the nurse assigned to each county: Pennington, Mrs. Bonnie Syverson, Thief River Falls, 681-5950, Red Lake, Mrs. LaVone Mogen, Red Lake Falls, 253-9785; and Clearwater, Mrs. Virginia Hokkanen, 694-6543, Bagley or 796-4135, Oklee.

Teachers Ask Adjustment Panel In Negotiations

prior to being asked to place the official request in the mail. In essence, the letter of request cited lack of progress in negotiations, appearance of differences which exist and anticipation that those differences would not be resolved before the March 1 deadline for requesting a panel.

In adjustment panel proceedings, the board of education and the teachers' council each appoint one member to represent them. These two representatives then attempt to reach agreement, and if unable to do so, mutually agree upon a third member. If agreement cannot be reached upon the third member, that member is to be appointed by the district court. Decisions reached by such a panel, however, are binding on neither the school board nor the faculty.

Contracts for the 1969-70 school year must be submitted to teachers by March 20, and teachers then have until April 1 to sign and return the contracts, resign or return the contracts unsigned. Under the continuing contract law, a teacher not signing a new contract nor submitting a resignation is under contract to the district for the following year under terms on the previous contract.

Negotiations may continue between the board team and teachers' council while an adjustment panel is meeting since formation of such a panel does not preclude direct negotiations.

Last year agreement was reached on the salary schedule shortly before the deadline for returning contracts. Adjustment panel members had been named but did not meet in attempt to reach agreement.

The next meeting date of February 27 was mutually agreed upon after the teachers' council requested a change from Tuesday, February 25.

St. John Church Holds Housing Sunday Service

Housing Sunday—Symbolizing concern of the Lutheran church—Missouri synod with the nation's housing needs for the underprivileged and needy—was observed at St. John Lutheran church Sunday with a special service led by Rev. Paul Blegner.

Rev. Blegner stressed the "need for immediate help for the 41,600,000 Americans now existing in substandard housing in the nation's slums and ghettos." To meet this need, he urged "wholehearted support" of the church's "Keys for Christ program which, nationwide, is expected to raise $1,000,000 for immediate housing help.

"Keys for Christ", Rev. Blegner explained, "is a current extension of the Lutheran church—Missouri synod's traditional concern with the needs and suffering of mankind. The emphasis is on helping people, not bricks and mortar."

With the "Keys for Christ" program and the funds raised on Housing Sunday, the church body will immediately launch rebuilding and repairing projects in key housing areas. New housing will be started. Spiritual and social services will be provided to enable victims of substandard housing to help grams will be established to maintain fairness and stability in America's neighborhoods.

St. John church in this city and Redeemer church of Plummer are two of 6,000 Lutheran church—Missouri synod congregations, totaling more than 3,000,000 members, which participated in this nationwide Housing Sunday program.

BSC Director Heads Group on Educational TV

Dr. Lowell A. Vaughn, director of continuing education at Bemidji state college, is chairman of a nine-man committee to study ways and means to establish educational television for northern Minnesota.

Serving on the committee, appointed by Dr. R. D. Decker, BSC president, are representatives of several local school districts and faculty and administration of BSC. They hope to obtain funds for equipment and installation in the near future.

Members are: Ray Witt, superintendent, Bemidji public schools; Fred Beitner, superintendent, Park Rapids public schools; Charles Matthew, superintendent, Blackduck public schools; John Glas, vice-president for administrative affairs, BSC; Dr. Raymond R. Carlson, vice-president for student affairs, BSC; Kris Geisen, acting director of audio-visual services, BSC; Dr. Harold Fleming, professor of education; Dr. John Yourd, chairman of the Bemidji state division of education; and Vaughn.

A 1966 study of educational television in Minnesota showed that northern Minnesota is one remaining area in the state not receiving educational television. About 80 per cent of school children in the state have educational television available to them at school or at home.

Channel 9 is designated for the northern Minnesota area by the Federal communication commission for educational tv. This channel would broadcast VHF signals to a primary radius of 65 miles, using a 1,000-foot tower, serving all or part of 13 counties and reaching a potential 114,230 people.

In this area, some 28,560 school children would be able to receive educational tv if funds are granted. The committee has applied to the Minnesota state department of education for a planning grant under Title III of the elementary school act.

Dr. Vaughn states that the project has received enthusiastic support from area schools, civic groups, news media and interested individuals.

He further states that "much study and planning has gone into the project up to this time and our expectation is that we will be able to see the completion of this project in the near future."

Perfect Pig Is Object of Search By Scientists

Development of the "perfect" pig is the key to the future of Minnesota's pork industry. University of Minnesota research is geared to identifying and developing these "perfect" pigs, which combine meatiness and high meat quality, according to Paul Addis, food scientist at the university.

Addis explains that careful selection and breeding programs which have developed meat-type hogs have resulted in general lowering of pork quality. Pork quality refers to attributes such as color, flavor, juiciness and processing characteristics.

"To make matters worse, during the period that pork quality has declined, housewives have become more aware of meat quality and won't accept low quality meat," Addis says. "This results in serious losses to the meat animal industry. In Minnesota alone, the incidence of low quality pork carcasses—about 20 per cent—accounts for a loss of several million dollars annually."

Experience shows that as the leaness or meatiness of swine herds is improved, pork quality tends to decline. In contrast, fat pigs tend to yield less meat per pound of live weight, but the meat is usually higher quality.

"Although we want to improve the meat quality factor, we can't afford to sacrifice the leanness-meatiness factor," Addis says. So the search goes on for "perfect" pigs, and they are hard to find.

Leaness, muscularity and quality can be evaluated on thousands of carcasses each day in the packing plant. Only a few carcasses are found which rank very high in all three of these characteristics. But it's too late to use these pigs for breeding stock when they reach the carcass stage.

"The swine industry urgently needs methods to identify the "perfect" pig while it's alive," Addis says. He explains that University of Minnesota researchers are developing a promising method to measure potential meat quality in living pigs. The method involves the quantitation of the five isoenzymes of lactic dehydrogenase in blood serum.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Don't neglect a sore throat! Even an ostensible "Minor sore throat" can be extremely dangerous to a child, says the Minnesota state medical association. It could be one of the early symptoms of strep throat which could lead to rheumatic fever. And, rheumatic fever cripples the hearts of at least 28 American children every day and causes more deaths than polio did before it was curbed with the Salk vaccine.

If a youngster contracts a respiratory infection, consult a physician. He will determine the cause of the infection by a simple throat culture and blood test. Unless a laboratory test is made, not even a physician can truly diagnose a strep throat; he must identify the streptococcus germ.

When the infection is caused by a streptococcus, early treatment with penicillin or other antibiotics offers an excellent chance of eliminating the potential threat of rheumatic fever.

Rheumatic fever is extremely insidious, having seemingly innocent beginnings—minor sore throat, fatigue, muscle and joint pains.

Symptoms of the more severe stages of the disease are sore throat, high fever, sore neck glands and sometimes red and swollen joints. At this stage of the disease, irreparable damage may have been done to the heart. That is, the heart and heart valves become inflamed and scarred. This may interfere with the blood pumping action the body needs.

Rheumatic fever is not contagious but strep throats are highly communicable. Strep infections, and therefore rheumatic fever, may occur among persons who are in close contact.

About one-half of those who contract rheumatic fever recover without permanent damage to the heart valves. But the disease often repeats itself and each attack renews the chance for heart damage.

Because of the serious consequences of rheumatic fever, the association strongly advises that, if a child suffers any respiratory infection—including that "minor sore throat" — see a physician.

Nonfarm Jobs in Minnesota Hit January Record

Nonfarm jobs in Minnesota rose to an all-time high for January, Commissioner George J. Vavoulis said in the monthly report on employment conditions just released by the Minnesota department of employment security.

The 1,237,600 workers recorded last month was up 17,600 from January of 1968, although there was a seasonal drop of 28,200 between December of 1968 and January of this year, Vavoulis said.

Vavoulis noted that the December-to-January decline was 2.2 per cent, compared to a 2.9 per cent average decrease for the past five years. He attributed the improved employment picture to the general growth of the economy and less than average seasonal adjustments in both manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries.

Comparing last month's levels with January 1968, he reported that manufacturing industries added 8,300 jobs, and nonmanufacturing employment rose 39,100.

Unemployment, at 59,600, was 5,800 less than a year ago, but up 5,600 from December. The unemployment rate last month was 3.3 per cent. The rate was three per cent in December and 3.8 per cent a year ago.

Logging on State Land Aids Deer

In addition to other efforts being made to aid hungry deer, more than 2,000 active timber sales on state-owned land are providing an important source of food to the animals this winter, the conservation department reported today.

Every winter, deer are attracted to logging sites to feed on the trimmings and branches lying about at the close of the day's work.

Roads plowed to the logging areas also serve as access trails for the deer. Loggers report that deer soon learn to know the time that workers quit for the day and start showing up as soon as the men leave.

Clarence Buckman, director of lands and forestry, said that during a normal winter there would be more than 2,500 logging operations in progress on state land, but that deep snows have prevented loggers without heavy equipment from getting to some of their cutting sites.

State timber sales are planned to encourage the logging of cedar, aspen and other good browse types during the winter months in critical areas, Buckman said.

BUYER BEWARE BE WISE
DOUGLAS M. HEAD
Attorney General
State of Minnesota

The consumer division reports progress in 1968 in the fight against the swindlers who daily victimize Minnesota consumers.

It is important for citizens to remember the best protection against devious business practices is to be an alert consumer. Much of the information our consumer division receives comes from people who did not investigate that "free" item or "golden opportunity" before buying.

Our consumer division suggests the following to save you money and the heartaches of being fleeced by an unscrupulous operator.

1. Read all contracts carefully before signing. Insist all details of the sale be in writing. Never sign a blank contract or a contract with blank spaces in it. Demand and get a copy of the contract. Check with a lawyer if you don't understand the terms.
2. Require that all guarantees and warranties are in writing. Make sure you understand them.
3. Take your time before you make a purchase. Don't be rushed into buying by tales of a "last chance" to get in on a "good thing". From past experience, such statements are warning signals.
4. Beware of bargains offered at prices which are hard to believe. Check prices of the same quality merchandise or service offered by other dealers. Make sure that the advertised article is what it claims to be.
5. Don't be misled by the dealer who clues you to his establishment with an attractive offer and then tries to persuade you to buy a higher priced article.
6. Never allow door-to-door salesmen to leave merchandise with you on an "approval" basis. He may not come back. You may find yourself receiving a bill for merchandise you did not want. Always ask for the salesman's credentials.
7. Never hesitate to investigate before buying. If you have any doubt about a dealer or a product, check with the better business bureau in your area, your local chamber of commerce, or other organizations which work to protect the consumer and the legitimate businessman.

Advance Money Available for Farm Programs

Producers signing up February 3 through March 21 to participate in the 1969 feed grain and wheat programs can request advance payments of up to 50 per cent for voluntary extra acreage diversion, it was announced by secretary of agriculture Clifford M. Hardin. This is the maximum advance that can be made on the diversion payments.

Projected on previous years signups and current payment rates, disbursement of partial advance payments to feed grain, wheat and cotton program participants are expected to reach $386 million by the close of the signup period on March 21. Otherwise, the advance payments would have been $168 million less.

Feed grain and wheat producers may receive, upon request, up to 50 per cent of the estimated diversion payment for their farm. This is for acreage which producers voluntarily retire from production beyond that required to qualify as a participant.

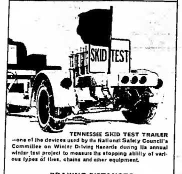
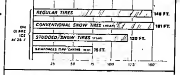
SKIDDING FOR SAFETY



TENNESSEE SKID TEST TRAILER —one of the devices used by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards during its annual winter test project to measure the stopping ability of various types of tires, chains and other equipment.



These findings paint up the extreme hazard of driving on glare ice—showing that with regular tires it may take close to nine times as far to stop as on dry pavement. The Safe Winter Driving League cautions drivers that regardless of the type of traction device employed—even with tire chains—far slower than normal speeds are essential on icy pavements.

To the Editor:

Participation in winter sports, at all levels, in our school system, provides a healthy way of growing up. Boys are having fun, but more important, are learning self-discipline, how to get along with others through team play and a fair-play type of competition. These young athletes deserve recognition and credit where credit is due.

Basketball is a great sport and we heartily congratulate the Prowler team. May this be a successful year for them. But, are not our wrestling and hockey programs entitled to equal coverage in your sports news? How many of your subscribers are really interested in your game of the week account of basketball teams some 50 miles away?

Hockey, at all levels, be it grade school, V.F.W., Eagles, or Prowler, is the most popular sport in our community, as indicated by the magnificent fan support.

We had a fine group of boys on our hockey squad this year. These hardy young men put forth their utmost efforts, in an extremely short season. They travel long distances in severely cold weather, two or three nights a week, to play in cold arenas.

Since no credit has been given to the seven seniors participating this year on the Prowler hockey team, perhaps we as parents and avid fans should do so.

These seniors, Jerry Owen, Donn Haugen, Ron Dropop, Dana Stromberg, Ron Runger, Richard Holmes and Mark Froehle, played hard and well. Four of these seven are three letter men in this sport. They are Richard Holmes, Ron Runger, Jerry Owen and Dana Stromberg. These four have played the game together since first and second grade.

We say "Hats" off to all these boys, and may their future be bright. They have given us many happy hours of enjoyment through the years.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Stromberg

Thirty-two rinks participated in the event which had an all-Canadian finals with the exception of the second event.

The Charlie Woods international memorial trophy was presented to the Canadians for the second consecutive year after being won by U.S. rinks the first two years it was in existence. The trophy goes to the winner of a majority of the first seven draws in the bonspiel between U.S. and Canadian rinks.

In the only exception to the all-Canadian finals, the Barry Smith rink of Winnipeg defeated the Leonard Furuseth rink of Thief River Falls for the second event championship. The match went down to the last rock in the 10th end with Smith winning by a 9-8 score.

In winning first event honors, McMeekin's rink opened up a wide margin over the Laurentian Shores Ltd. rink of Rainy River, Ont., skipped by Wally Brunn. The draw was conceded in the sixth end.

McMeekin's rink, which included his son Jamie at Lead, Harvey Campbell at second and Bert Hicks at third, won its way into the finals by defeating the Richard Jorde rink of Thief River Falls, Larry Berggren rink of St. Paul, David Guest rink of Winnipeg and Ardell Liden rink of Thief River Falls.

Barry Smith's second event champions lost to the Ardell Liden rink in the first draw and then defeated Garry Krize of Gilbert, Lewis Ugland of Grand Forks, N.D., and Harold Nubben of Thief River Falls before shading Leonard Furuseth for the title.

Herb Lizette won his first draw from Gary Krize, then lost to Ardell Liden to move into third event position. After the loss to Liden, Lizette defeated Al Thompson of Thief River Falls, Jerry Smith of Winnipeg and Larry Berggren of St. Paul before defeating the George Medway rink of Winnipeg for third event honors.

Brunn's Laurentian Shores rink advanced to the finals of the first event by defeating Jack Hall of Winnipeg, Ed Applin of Winnipeg, Leonard Skaar and Bob Ekeren of Thief River Falls.

Furuseth's rink lost its first draw to Gerry Smith of Winnipeg and then defeated Bob Wilkes of Winnipeg, Richard Jorde of Thief River Falls and John Kenfield of Bemidji.

Medway's rink lost to David Guest in the first round and then defeated Lewis Ugland of Grand Forks, Ed Applin of Winnipeg, Everett Amundgaard and Curtis Bottem of Thief River Falls to enter third event championship play.

First, second and third events were sponsored respectively by L. B. Hartz wholesale, Arctic Enterprises and Border Drug.

Development of Recreation Land Shows in Survey

A recent survey of outdoor recreation areas in Minnesota reveals a substantial increase in such sites during the past four years, the conservation department reported today.

Commissioner Jarle Leirfallom said the survey shows that of the nearly 54 million acres in the state, almost 11 million acres provide some outdoor recreation to the public.

"There are now 3,884 sites available for public use," Leirfallom said. "This is 2,800 more sites and 3.6 million more acres than were open to public use at the time of the previous survey in 1964."

The state and federal government control more than 80 per cent of the land open to public recreation use in Minnesota at the present time, according to the study.

Six LHS Wrestlers In Region Meet

Six Thief River Falls Prowler wrestling squad members will travel to Bemidji on Saturday to take part in the Region Eight wrestling tournament. Weigh-ins are scheduled from 9 a.m., with first round wrestling to begin at 12:30 p.m. Consolation matches will begin at 6 p.m., with the championship round to start at 8 p.m. All matches will be in the Bemidji junior high school gym.

Prowlers taking part in the tournament are Ed Furuseth, Perry Omdahl, Tom Duke, Tim Duke, Tim Hanns and Scott Vettleson. First round opponents will be unknown until Saturday after they draw. There are five boys in each weight class with the boy with the top record being seeded into the championship round. The other four meet in first round action to see who will advance to the championship match.

The Prowlers are the defending Region Eight champions with Bemidji, Mahnomen and Greenbush for the title this year. Bemidji has seven in the tournament, Greenbush will have eight in the Region meet, while the number of boys coming from Mahnomen is unknown as District 30 sends both the first and second place finishers to the Region 8 meet.

Furuseth will be wrestling at 103, Omdahl at 112, Tom Duke at 138, Tim Duke at 145, Hanns at 165, and Vettleson at heavyweight. Furuseth and Tom Duke only lost one dual match each this past year, as they lead the Prowlers into the Region Eight tournament.

Bemidji who handled the Prowlers very easily in a dual match this season, will have the following boys entered in the tournament: Dave Wildmo, 103; Dave Sutton, 112; Curt Nord, 127; Jeff Heniel, 133; Dave Carlson, 145; Ricky Lee, 154; and Warn Winger, heavyweight.

Bemidji's Carlson at 138; dropped from 145 where he wrestled during the year. Carlson is the only wrestler to defeat Tom Duke this year in any match.

Prowler Junior Varsity Posts Two Victories

Thief River Falls Prowlers junior varsity upped their record to 11-3 with wins over Ada and Bagley on Monday and Tuesday night, in preliminary action to the two varsity games. On Monday night the junior Prowlers stopped Ada by a 65-45 score and Tuesday night came up with a 50-31 win over the Bagley juniors.

In Monday night's contest three members of the junior varsity scored in double figures as they jumped from a 13-8 lead at the end of the first period to 33-20 at half time. The junior Prowlers enjoyed a 49-34 lead at the end of the third period against a smaller Ada team.

Dale Hanson and Darrell Rodahl were high men for the Prowlers against Ada as they tallied 17 points each. Mike Hamerlinck, playing three quarters of the game, added 13 points, while Tom Olson had nine for the winners. Tops for Ada and the game was Heltman with 22 points.

At Bagley the junior varsity led at the end of the first period by a 12-9 score, and 30-19 at half time. In the third period the junior Prowlers held Bagley to two points as they upped their lead to 40-21 at the end of the period.

High point honors for the night for the Prowlers went to Hamerlinck with 15 points, playing only three quarters of the game. Hanson added 10 points in the win. High for Bagley and for the game was Lee Prestemon with 22 points.

LHS Cagers Defeat Bagley; Fall to Ada

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls Prowler cage team upped its season record to 9-8 on Tuesday night by stopping Bagley Flyers 59-51 on the Flyers home court. On Monday night a Prowler second half rally fell short as they fell to the Ada Vikings by a 72-69 score on the Lincoln high school court.

The Prowlers have one game remaining and that will be played here on Thursday evening with the East Grand Forks Little Green Wave. The game is a make up of one which was scheduled last Friday.

Tuesday night against the Flyers the Prowlers came up with their most balanced scoring performance of the season as they place three players in double figures but all that saw action scored four points or better.

Like Monday night, the Prowlers couldn't find the range in the first quarter as they fell behind 15-7 at the end of the period. After the period break the Prowlers began to move like they have in the past and began to score as they knotted the score at 24-24 at half time.

Sheldon Joppru put the Prowlers out in front to stay in the third period as he hit on a jump shot from 15 feet, giving the Prowlers their first lead of the game at 27-26. A basket by Steve Edund on a stolen ball upped the Prowler lead to 29-26 as they led at time during the period by six points. Bagley pulled within four at the end of the third period, 44-40.

In the final period the Prowlers increased their lead to 47-40, but the Flyers came back to close the gap to three points at 51-48 mid way through the stanza. The Prowlers opened a gap of 55-48 and then went on to win the contest 59-51.

The Prowlers were led by Joppru with 14 points, while Steve Edlund added 12 points and Dan Brodin was the other Prowler in double figures with 10. Kip Poppenhagen added eight points; Don Balmer, six; Tony Johnson, five, and Dave Kildahl, four.

Tops for Bagley was Gary Berg with 14 points, while Gary Pattison added 10 points.

Ada-Thief River Falls

Trailing by as much as 25 points during the first half, the Thief River Falls Prowlers pulled within three points in the final period, only to see the Ada Vikings keep out of reach of the fast charging Prowlers by making free throws in the final two minutes. The Vikings handed the Prowlers a 72-69 loss at the Lincoln high school gym Monday night.

The loss evened the Prowlers' record at 8-8 and the game was a make-up from Januray when it was postponed due to bad weather. The win for the Vikings was their 11th against five defeats this season.

Ada reeled to a 26-10 lead at the end of the first period, which found the Prowlers unable to find the range on the basket. During a five minute stretch during the first two periods the Vikings upped their lead to 35-10 before the Prowlers began to rally. The Vikings led at half time by a 46-26 margin.

The game, like the past few that the Prowlers have been in, was marked by fouls. The Vikings stepped to the free throw line 32 times for a total of 52 shots, of which they made 26. Four Prowler starters fouled out of the game, with Don Balmer the first to go to the bench during the final period. Others that followed were Kip Poppenhagen, Tony Johnson and Sheldon Joppru, who fouled out for the first time this year. Ada, on the other hand, had 19 fouls called against them with only one man fouling out of the contest. The Prowlers made 23 of 29 shots from the charity line, as the Vikings held a three-point free throw margin. Both teams hit on 23 field goals for the game.

In the second half, the Prowlers out scored the Vikings by a 43 to 26 margin but were unable to close the Vikings' lead which they built up in the opening two periods.

Trailing by a 55-40 score at the end of the third period the Prowlers scored 29 points in the final period. They pulled within three points, 68-65, in the closing minutes, only to find Vikings' free throws adding to the score and keeping the game out of the grasp of the Prowlers. In that final period Steve Edlund tallied 10 of his 19 points, while Tony Johnson added seven and Joppru connected for six in the final eight minutes of play.

Joppru and Edlund took scoring honors for the game with 19 points each; while Ada was paced by Steve Storslee and Rich Merkens who tallied 18 and 17 points respectively. Also in double figures for the Vikings were Randy Balzum and Rick Prussia with 14 and 13 points. Johnson finished the contest with 14 for the Prowlers, while Dave Kildahl added nine points in the loss.

In that cold first half, the Prowlers only made seven of 47 shots from the floor, and finished the game with 23 of 87 shots for 27 per cent. At the free throw line they made 23 of 29 for 82 per cent. They were outrebounded by a 60-53 margin, but throughout the contest only made five turnovers while Ada had 13.

Edlund and Joppru were the Prowlers' leading rebounders as they pulled down 16 and 17 respectively, while Kildahl hauled in eight rebounds.

Mpls. Star Columnist Writes Views of T. R. F.

Editor's Note: The following column and story are reprinted from the Minneapolis Star through the permission of Jim Klobuchar, columnist for the Star, who wrote the column and article after visiting in Thief River Falls. The column appeared on February 8 and the story on February 10.)

For two weeks it was an unequal struggle—the forces of virtue and good works marshaled under the plumes of Thief River Falls, Minn., versus the entrenched depravity of Minneapolis and the Minneapolis Star.

Skeptics insisted the two could not co-exist. They said it was impossible for the typical Minneapolis decadent to be exposed to the dazzling civic piety of Thief River Falls without losing forever his yen and talent for corruption.

I disagree, having just returned from that frosty bastion of honor, justice and small grains 320 miles to the northwest. I'll explain my mission by asking you to recall The Star's account a couple of weeks ago of the distribution troubles experienced to peddle a record showing a naked Beatle and his girl friend on the jacket, fore and aft.

The original dispatch quoted a distributor as saying you couldn't buy the record at reputable shops in Minneapolis but it was available in certain smaller and presumably more sportive towns including Thief River Falls.

This, unforgivably, was in error. Enraged ladies appeared at the office of the Thief River Times demanding an explanation. At least one minister in town entered the practical objection that nobody's backsides are that beautiful to justify equal display on the record stacks alongside the Red River Valley Schottische Rascals.

The scholarly aggressive editor of The Times, Mr. Marvin Lundin, thereupon clapped on his visor and armor plate and speared The Star with an editorial in which he accused the newspaper of inaccurate reporting, wrongheaded logic, bare backsides morality and, by implication journalistic halitosis.

Now these compound charges are difficult to answer in one paragraph, to say nothing of a special 44-page supplement, but The Star tried zealously. It explained that the name Thief River Falls was used chiefly in a hypothetical sense. This conveyed the idea that it had been plucked out of the sky willy-nilly, escalating the slander because it now impugned not only Thief River Falls but the reporter, Miss Deborah Howell.

Vengeance was quick. In the newspaper business you can question the Vatican, the federal government, the Lutheran Brotherhood and even Matt Eubanks, some times in the same edition—and have reasonable expectations of surviving. With small towns and farmers, however, you simply reduce your future to choice between the guillotine and gas.

Miss Howell received a letter accusing her of writing insanely and mongering smut in the use of the record jacket picture—which I'm sure most fair-minded critics will agree was published as a public service.

What happened, I discovered a few days ago, was that the agent for Hellicher distributors said Thief River Falls when they meant Fergus Falls. I realize we may be burning all of our options recklessly here, and that they also have a newspaper in Fergus. But this, friends, is what Hellicher is telling us.

Thus it was that I flew to Thief River in mid-week in an attempt to spread the salve of conciliation on this wronged community, one which is famed through the Northwest for being upright morally and horizontal geographically.

I need hardly tell you I found Thief River an agreeable, sociable town whose customs and prosperity will be reported later. Most of its infrequent sin has to be exported to such places as Grand Forks, N. D., Detroit Lakes, Winnipeg and an occasional quiet rendezvous in St. Hilaire because of the lack of suitable restaurant and motel space in Thief River. But other wise it is the essence of good hard-working rural Americana.

It was with some surprise, but fraternal understanding, therefore, that I found on the Rexall, Wallgreen and Pennington Hotel, *magazine shelves a 20-cent tab*loid featuring lightly or non-dressed peope in its photographs. I prefer to view this as a distributor's error. Therefore, I've asked the editor to suppress for his one time his duty to public service, and not reproduce the Beatle - and girl jacket photograph that appears on page 3 of the publication.

So that my good friends in Thief River may be aware of this one small lapse in civic consciousness, and correct it, I have asked the photo department to tastefully edit the front cover.

Ag Engineer Explains Grain Drying Methods

Harold Cloud, extension agricultural engineer, spoke on grain drying methods and layouts to a group of interested farmers on February 11, reports Charles D. Petersen, Marshall county agricultural agent. Cloud discussed the fundamentals of grain drying and showed slides of various grain drying methods and layouts.

"The make or model of your grain dryer makes very little difference" Cloud stated "The important thing is the handling set-up that goes with the drying systems, provided you use a dryer from a company that has been in business long enough to get the bugs out of their system".

Cloud plans to spend some time in this area during the 1969 harvest to study problems specific to our area. Plans are being made for a return meeting to discuss these problems in another year.

The meeting was held in the multi-purpose room of the Argyle school.

Women Entitled To Benefits from VA

Government benefits of particular interest to women were outlined today by the Veterans administration.

For the first time in the history of veterans benefits in the United States, war widows are eligible for GI bill-type education and home loan benefits. The education benefits are also available to wives of veterans who are permanently and totally disabled as the result of military service.

Under a new law which went into effect in December of 1968, the widow of a man who died, or the wife of a veteran who was permanently and totally disabled as the result of military service, is entitled to 36 months of educational assistance from the VA.

An allowance of $130 a month is paid for full-time training with lesser sums paid for part-time training.

Unremarried widows of veterans who served in World War II, the Korean conflict, or in the Post-Korean period (since Jan. 31, 1955) and who died in service or as the result of service, are eligible for VA-guaranteed GI home loans.

This eligibility expires July 25, 1970, for World War II widows, with widows of Korean conflict veterans having until Jan. 31, 1975, to use their entitlement. Generally, widows of Post-Korean service veterns have 20 years from the date of their husband's death or discharge from service to obtain loans.

The VA will guarantee 60 per cent—up to a maximum of $12,500—of the loan obtained by the widow. Long-term mortgages (up to 30 years) and little or no downpayments remain the principal advantages of GI loans.

The VA also listed some other benefits of particular interest to women:

Dependency and Indemnity Compensation — Monthly payments for widows and children of men who died in service or as the result of service. Payment is generally $120 a month plus 12 per cent of the monthly basic pay now being received by a serviceman whose rank and years of service are the same as those of the deceased serviceman. Minimum payment is $133 a month.

Death Pension—Monthly payment for needy unremarried widows and minor children of veterans whose deaths were not related to military service. The amount of the pension is keyed to income.

Reimbursement of burial expenses—Payment not to exceed $250 may be made within two years to the widow, undertaker or any other person who bore a veteran's funeral expenses.

Children's Education—In addition to education benefits for qualified wives and widows, an allowance of $130 a month for full-time college level training is paid to children (under 26) of veterans who died or were permanently and totally disabled as the result of military service.

The VA invites women who have questions about possible benefits to contact their nearest VA office or local Veterans county service officer.

U of M Seeks Test Grazing For New Clover

University of Minnesota has a potential new white clover variety which it would like to test under grazing situations in pastures of northern Minnesota, according to Charles D. Peterson, Marshall county agent. The variety results from a cross between Ladino and wild white clover and looks to be more persistent, more winter hardy and more productive than its parents.

Harley Otto, extension agronomist, is trying to locate about 10 farms where pastures will be seeded during the spring or summer of 1969. This could be old pastures which are being renovated or new areas which are being seeded to pasture.

Some of the qualifications are:

1. Plan on seeding some pasture area in 1969.
2. Will be grazing it with cattle or sheep in 1970.
3. Will be willing to cooperate with the University of Minnesota in testing this clover in a manner that will be useful in the project.
4. Will have a soil test taken and apply the needed amount of fertilizer as recommended for good alfalfa production.
5. Will graze in rotation or cross fence so the test can be rotationally grazed.
6. Use cultipacker if necessary after seeding.

Other plots including Ladino, wild white clover, birdsfoot trefoil and three alfalfa varieties will be used in comparing the new variety. Total area needed for the test will be about 300 feet by 50 feet and include 28 plots 12 by 50 feet. The seeding will be done by university personnel, ground preparation would be done by the cooperator. If anyone is interested in cooperating in this test, contact the county agent for further details.

Peterson also lists the following calendar of events for the coming month:

Feb. 19 Stephen—Crops and soils meeting, 7:30 p.m.

Feb. 22, Crookston — winter shows (Youth Day), dairy judging contest, 8 a.m.; dairy demonstrations, 8:45; general livestock judging 9; 4-H exam clinic, 9:00; youth opportunities in agribusiness, 11; future judging 12:30 p.m.; potato judging and identification 1:30; radio speaking contest, 1:15; youth opportunity in agribusiness, 3:30; and youth banquet, 6.

March 1, Middle River—East home council luncheon, 12:30 p.m.; March 10, Argyle—4-H federation, 8 p.m.

Hallinglaget Sets Convention

Hallinglaget of America, a Norse group, will hold its 62nd annual convention at Concordia college in Moorhead on June 20 and 21. Heading the committee on arrangements is Miss Almeda Sonsteng of Fargo.

Officers of the Hallinglaget are: Dr. O. Myking Mehus, Branson, Mo., president; Tollef Lee, Kindred, N. D., vice president; A. O. Lee, Devils Lake, N. D., secretary; and Peder Nelson, Northwood, N. D., treasurer.

Soft touch for spring promises a lessening of the costume look so prevalent in fashion today, in favor of a timeless softness. Fabrics are lightly soft; sometimes clinging, lines are gentle, curved, and fluid.

February Is Immunization Month in T.R.F.

February has been designated as immunization month in Thief River Falls schools, according to Maruret Race, school nurse. Permits for diphtheria-tetanus and smallpox protection have been sent home with the students.

Only grade 6 and grade 12 students are on the regular schedule this year, due to revisions by the state department of health a year ago. Students in grades three and nine no longer need the usual dephtheria-tetanus booster. However, students, in any grade level who have not been protected for close to six years may also be included in the program.

Cost for each immunization will be 50 cents during February only.

Parents are also asked to check on their child's oral polio vaccine. Families should see that they have had two or three polio feedings—three if given separately, or two doses of the combined viruses.

"Tonight, I want you to ask God to bless everyone in the whole wide world.

"On World Day of Prayer, children in every corner of the globe, grown-ups too, will pray that God will make this world a better place.

"Remember last summer at camp when you called out at the edge of that cliff and your echo came answering back? Well, imagine all the people in the world calling out at once in prayer. Imagine how big the echo would be, and how much it would please God to hear it.

"You are lucky because you live here in America, because you have your Church and the right to attend it. So tonight, thank God for things like that, darling, even if you don't entirely understand them. And when you've finished . . . ask Him to bless everyone."

Welcome, Lions

Thief River Falls will be host Friday, Saturday and Sunday to the annual mid-winter conference of District 5M-3 Lions clubs. The event has been named in honor of Jim Parkins, veteran member of the Thief River Falls club, who has been active in the organization at a number of levels.

We congratulate Jim on the deserved recognition, and we welcome the many Lions club members and their wives who will be visitors in our city this week. We encourage Thief River Falls residents to extend all courtesies to our guests and to make them feel welcome in our friendly city. Among the visitors will be a large number of Canadian Lions from clubs north of the border.

Thief River Falls Lions are proud to host the conference, and general co-chairmen Frank Hamerlinck and Fred Sorensen promise a fine event. Welcome, Lions.

Impressive Gesture

There was once a time when high school athletics were supposed to be character builders, and it wasn't "whether you won or lost, but how you played the game". Those days are apparently lost in antiquity, with emphasis being placed on winning and records.

There is no question that the object of competitive sports is to win. But when there is a winner there must be a loser, and the youthful participant must be taught humility in victory and dignity in defeat. This would apply to individual accomplishments or disappointments in competitive athletics as well as team victories or losses.

It was with a great deal of pleasure that we observed the sportsmanship of the Ada Vikings basketball team in their game against the Lincoln high school Prowlers Monday night. Four Prowlers left the game on personal fouls in the contest and, as each retired to the bench, several Vikings ran over to shake hands with the departing player. It was an impressive gesture, and one which speaks well for the players and their coaches.

Contrast this attitude, if you will, with the player called for a fifth foul who displays indignation at the call, stamps his way to the bench in a temper tantrum and plays the dejected athlete role to the hilt. Discipline is a part of athletics, and should include personal conduct. Emotions may be hard to control, if they are genuine, but too often are displayed to evoke sympathy or attention. Learning to control the outward expression of those emotions should be as much a part of high school basketball as learning to control body balance.

Perhaps the reason we were impressed with the Ada sportsmanship is because so little of it is displayed on a full team basis. Be competitive, yes. Give total effort for victory, yes. Play defense with tenacity, yes. But accept the breaks of the game as they come and show a little strength of character. A little show of sportsmanship can make a big impression.

Challenge in the Earth

Dr. Allan A. Stockdale wrote the following thoughts in the Electric Times, monthly magazine for the employees of the West Texas Utilities company:

"When God made the earth, He could have finished it. But He didn't. He left it as a raw material—to tease us, to tantalize us, to set us thinking and experimenting and risking and adventuring! And therein we find our supreme interest in living.

"Have you ever noticed that small children in a nursery will ignore clever mechanical toys in order to build, with spools and string and sticks and blocks, a world of their own imagination?

"And so with grown-ups too. God gave us a world unfinished, so that we might share in the joys and satisfactions of creation.

"He left the oil in Trenton rock.
"He left aluminum in the clay.
"He left electricity in the clouds.
"He left the rivers unbridged—and the moutains untrailed.
"He left the forests unfelled and the cities unbuilt.
"He left the laboratories unopened.
"He left the diamonds uncut.
"He gave us the challenge of raw materials, not the satisfaction of perfect, finished things.
"He left the music unsung and the dramas unplayed.
"He left the poetry undreamed, in order that men and women might not become bored, but engaged in stimulating, exciting, creative activities that keep them thinking, working, experimenting, and experiencing all the jobs and durable satisfactions of achievements.

"So it is with all the world. There is no Shangri-La where our every want can be supplied by wishing. There is no substance to the philosophy of 'getting by.' There is nothing worth while gained by chance.

"Work, thought, creation. These give life its stimulus, its real satisfaction, its intriguing value.

"In Oberlin, Ohio, there is a woodshed, and by the woodshed, a grave. There lies Charles Martin Hall. For years he experimented in that woodshed on how to get aluminum out of clay at less than the then market, price of $500 a pound. He risked his time and money. He suffered discouragement after discouragement. But when at last he found the way, he created an industry which today employs a quarter-million workers.

"Each year thousands of high school and college graduates leave their study halls to seek jobs. A few with ability to experiment will accept the challenge of raw material as did Charles Martin Hall. In realizing their dreams they will enlist the support of others with faith in them and the courage to back that faith, at the risk of their savings, through periods of discouragement and disappointment. Then management know-how will translate those dreams into buildings, machinery, stable jobs—to make life better for all Americans.

"That is how our nation has progressed from a wilderness frontier. That is how we will reach a standard of world civilization yet undreamed.

Progress comes, not by some magic word and not by government edict, but from the thoughts, the toil, the tears, the triumphs of raw material—and by the grace of God-given talents produce results which satisfy the needs of men."

Compelling Incentive

From the Fairmont Sentinel comes the following editorial:

The Paris peace talks are seemingly progressing at a speed that is altogether too lethal and too deliberate to satisfy soldiers on all sides and their anxious parents at home.

Perhaps a change is in order on the site of the talks.

Perhaps it is time to introduce a more compelling incentive for the diplomats of the four nations—yes, five nations—involved; such as setting a time limit in which a fair, just, equitable and acceptable agreement can be reached. Such as 30 days, for example.

The soft beds of Paris with their 8-foot thick mattresses, bright lights, the presence of dazzling women, heady wines bubbling champagne; food fit for kings available to the negotiators; the 100 per cent safety insured them, is a far cry from the "comforts" afforded and extended to the fighting men of North Vietnam the Viet Cong, South Vietnam and the armed forces of the United States.

Therefore, it is high time to have done with the sluggish, puny and pitiful efforts of the corps of negotiators. Give them 30 days to come up with a solution, or draft them — including the monkey wrench throwers from Russia—and send them to take their places along-side of the fighting men of the nations involved. Let them hear the whine of bullets fired by snipers. The sting of the bombs and bullets of the enemy; the squish of the boots as they painfully struggle through the marshes of the Mekong Delta. There let the diplomats re-assemble to continue their deliberations, in earnest and under fire.

Meanwhile let a new staff of negotiators take their places, within hearing, eyesight and range of the fighting. That, if anything, will come as close to resolving the dispute as anything yet suggested or tried.

A Midwest newspaper ran this help wanted ad in its classified section: "Wanted, big executive, from twenty-two to eighty, to sit with feet on desk from ten a.m. to four-thirty p.m. watching other people work. Must be willing to play golf every other afternoon. Salary to start: One-thousand dollars a week. We don't have this job open, you understand. We just thought we'd like to see in print what everybody is applying for."

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I was heartened when I read the full page expression about Boy Scout Week. What especially caught my attention were the words, "Support Scouting—GIVE". May I interpret what this meant to me?

We moved to TRF several months ago with two boys firmly planted in scouting. Much to our dismay we found scouting involving very few boys in the community. Scout night meetings were held on Mondays for two troops and an Explorer post. Another troop met on Tuesdays.

A boy starts Scouts at age 11. As of December 16 and going through March 3 Seventh and Eighth grade boys (ages 13-14) are scheduled for hockey games every Monday. Both athletics and scouting have common goals and similar means, and yet each is valuable in its own way. Neither one should have to compete for the boy's time.

Why must a boy chose between the two when there are five meeting nights in each week?

Support Scouting—GIVE. Is it possible but definite meeting nights be fixed so that Scouting or the boys will not lose ground for almost three months? Could the Jr. High, coaches, and scout leaders GIVE a few moments to agree on this? Surely the school sees the value of scouting for its boys. GIVE Scouting time and the scouts will GIVE of their time to this fine community.

Mrs. Joseph Phelps
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Gentlemen of the House Conservation Committee:

In regard to the bounty bill which will be presented to you shortly, which is of major importance to the public, businessmen, sportsmen, sportswomen, resort owners and farmers, I wish to voice my opinion.

We need to protect our deer. I was going to say herds, but here are none left. The danger of extinction is not with the wolf but the deer. There is a group of unknowledgeable people who would have us believe that the wolf is in danger. I will go so far as to say that the Conservation Department is trying to mislead the sportsmen to believe this fantasy, who are their bread and butter. Lets have the facts also the truth, that there is no possibility of exterminating the wolf who has thousands of square miles to roam.

On the contrary the deer have everything stacked against them—man, weather, feed, and wolves.

The remedies to cure this bad situaion:

1. Predator bounty.
2. Close the season on beaver who is the world's first engineer, perhaps the best. They will produce the wetlands with no cost. This is something that does not seem to penetrate the Conservation Department's knowledge of wild life.

There surely are many words which could be eliminated. I suggest start from the top.

4. The Conservation Commissioner should be elected so the voice of the people could be heard, not given as a political plum to pay off some political debt. When elected the debt would be to the public whom it is his duty to serve to the best of his ability.

You must remember that you have the power and authority to make the laws in our state, not the Conservation Department.

Hoping you will please give this some thought and consideration.

Yours truly,

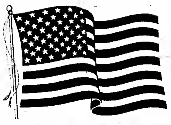
Our Flag - Show It Proudly!



We Americans cherish our Stars and Stripes. It has given us heart and hope and strength ever since this nation was born. It has flown in times of trouble and in times of triumph as a symbol of America's unquenchable ideals, ever since those ideals were first proclaimed. It flies today as a sign that Americans, proud of their country's stirring heritage, are determined to carry the American dream forward.

Millions of us fly the flag or display replicas of it in the windows of our homes and offices and automobiles. Millions more will soon have an opportunity to do so. The February issue of Reader's Digest will have a detachable American flag decal inserted in every one of its 18 million copies. The Digest will offer additional copies at cost to individuals and organizations. This project will constitute the widest distribution in history of the American flag.

When we fly the flag each day, we salute the blessings we enjoy in this great country. We express our support of the American credo: one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Whether you have a full-sized flag or a small reproduction, display it proudly. If we all "show our colors," we shall also show that we know what a privilege it is to be an American.

Lions Club at Goodridge Plans Local Project

Goodridge Lions club is sponsoring a fund-raising campaign to clean up an "auto graveyard" on the edge of that community and has taken an option to purchase the lots from the present owner, according to information received by the Times this week.

The club estimates that about $500 will be needed to accomplish the desired objective and is asking community support for the fund-raising campaign.

Removal of the junked cars and conversion of the site into a roadside trailer park for over night campers are being planned by the club. Several Goodridge residents have already offered time and equipment to haul the junked cars away and clean up the lots.

Two events are being planned for March, which has been designated as "Community Betterment Month" by David Evans, president of Lions International. An old-time dance is scheduled for March 8 with Goodridge men donating time and talent to provide an evening of entertainment. Advance tickets are being sold for $1 each.

On March 14 an evening of basketball is planned with the Goodridge Lions playing area farmers in the feature event. Preliminary games will match elementary boys against their fathers and women of the Goodridge PTA against the Girls' Athletic association.

Water World

By BARBARA BEE
Women's Home Consultant
Bruner Corporation

We live in a magic world of science today, yet people often fail to take advantage of it simply because they don't ask questions.

Anyone who's ever tasted—or even had a whiff of—water containing hydrogen sulfide with its nauseating "rotten egg" odor and taste knows what it's like to have really bad water. Some people have even been known to move just to escape the problem.

This is sad, because nowadays any plumbing contractor can do something about rotten egg water.

And odor and taste are only two of the problems caused by hydrogen sulfide. It makes the water highly corrosive and will cause your silver to tarnish in just seconds. There even have been a few areas where concentrations were so high that they caused nausea, illness and in extreme cases, death.

Such instances are rare. But hydrogen sulfide is present throughout the nation.

If yours is one of the areas, call the plumber.

He can remove low to moderate amounts with what is known as an oxidizing filter. Chemical treatment is recommended for medium to high concentrations. Either chlorine or potassium permanganate is introduced into the water by a chemical feeder apparatus, before it goes into the home. The water is then passed through an activated carbon filter to remove the insoluble sulfur and excess chlorine. Now it's ready to be cleaned by a water conditioner removing hardness minerals and turbidity or any other objectionable factors.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Tragedies mar Christmas for many families. Most of these accidents could be prevented through proper safety measures—particularly surrounding the traditional Christmas tree.

Christmas trees, because they contain pitch and resin and dry out easily, will burn up in less than two minutes.
